CHESTER PASTOR DROPS DEAD

REV. H. O. MACDONALD, 52, IS STRICKEN AT PRAYER MEET IN HIS CHURCH

With Words, "I Will be Made Whole," on His Lips, he Collapses in Chair After Delivering Sermon and Dies in Arms of Wife, Who Rushed to his Assistance.

DEATH OCCURS AS CHOIR BEGINS TO SING PSALM, "ALMOST PERSUADED"

"I Never Felt Better in my Life," Pastor Tells Members of Family at Dinner Table Shortly Before Going to Church to Conduct Special Services.

With the words, "I will be made whole," the concluding sentence of a sermon on the text, "Thou Wilt Be Made Whole," on his lips, Rev. Herbert O. MacDonald, 52, died suddenly in the First Presbyterian church, Chester, at 8:50 o'clock last night.

Stricken with apoplexy as he asked Elder Samuel Newell to lead the prayer after the sermon, the pastor sat down in a chair, his head bowed as if in meditation, and supported himself by placing his hands on a piano nearby. He then nodded to George Hasson to begin the closing song, and looked appealingly toward Mrs. MacDonald, who occupied the second pew.

When the pastor failed to arise with the congregation to join in singing the psalm, "Almost Persuaded," Mrs. MacDonald, exclaiming "I believe Mr. MacDonald is ill," rushed to his side.

Rev. MacDonald then fell back in his wife's arms and died.

Son Calls For Doctor.

Stunned when the pastor was stricken, the choir stopped singing, and members of the congregation hurried to offer assistance to the clergyman.

Besides the pastor's wife, his daughter, Eunice, and son, Paul, were attending the services.

"Get a doctor for my daddy," screamed the boy, who ran toward the rear of the church when he sensed the situation. His sister had joined her mother in efforts to aid the father and husband.

Drs. C. A. Shafer and G. E. Lewis, of Chester, were called, but the minister lived but a few minutes after the physicians arrived.

Dazed by the suddenness of her husband's death, Mrs. MacDonald appeared as if she was swooning. Fellow parishoners immediately applied restoratives.

Born in Oil City, Pa.

Rev. MacDonald apparently had been in good health. At the dinner table, three hours before his death, he said to Mrs. MacDonald and his children, "I never felt better in my life."

Week of prayer was being observed

County Asks State Aid for Wellsville—East Liverpool Road

The county commissioners have applied to the state highway department for state aid in connection with the completion of the improvement of the Wellsville-East Liverpool road, known as inter-county Highway No. 7, between the Jethro fill and the eastern corporation line of Wellsville.

The commissioners seek the state's assistance in resurfacing that part of the road between the western end of the Jethro fill and the new bricked roadway, which was completed last summer, and also that stretch of the road between the western end of the new road and the Wellsville city limits, which is badly worn.

The city of Wellsville, during the coming summer, will resurface Wells avenue and Lisbon street, while East Liverpool will finish the West Eighth street improvement.

Coolidge Confers With Longworth on Legislative Plans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President Coolidge and Repreesntative Nicholas Longworth, in a conference at the White House today, mapped out legislative plans for the remainder of the 68th congress and discussed the possibility of organizing the 69th congress before adjournment of the present congress on March 4.

Longworth reported rapid legislative progress, especially with the appropriation bills for the next fiscal year, and said that administration leaders at the capitol could now see daylight ahead.

Man's Head Split Open by Axe Blow; Body Found in Alley

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8.—His head split open by a blow from an axe, the body of Fred L. James, an employe of the Ford Motor company, here, was found today in an alley in a negro section. He had been dead about four hours, police said.

The body was found by a negro, who notified the police.

DICE SHOOTERS ARE FINED $119

Five alleged participants in a crap game, arrested at the Walter Jackson restaurant, Jefferson street, by Chief of Police Hugh McDermott, yesterday afternoon, were fined a total of $119 by Mayor Charles Brown last night.

Jackson, who is alleged to have been the operator of the game, was assessed $50 and costs while each of the other four men, charged with being players, were fined $10 and costs each. Three of the quintet paid their fines, while the others made arrangements to settle.

MIDLAND CHIEF RE-APPOINTED

Chief of Police F. C. Creps, of Midland, last night was reappointed head of the borough police force by council.

His force will include the following officers: George Wick, G. A. Bleicher, Donald Allen, James Porter, Marshall Ackerw and David Lett, all re-appointed. Ackers and Leet are sergeants.

NEW ROAD OPEN TO RIVER TOWNS

An improved highway, eliminating the necessity of crossing the Ohio river, is now open between East Liverpool and Steubenville, it was announced by the Chamber of Commerce, today.

The best route to the Jefferson county metropolis is now via Wellsville, Yellow Creek, Hammondsville, straight through Hammondsville to New Somerset, over a new road, thence through Knoxville to Toronto on macadam highway. The road between Toronto and Steubenville is also hard surfaced, affording an improved route all the way.

The road through Chester and New Cumberland is not recommended at the present time because of the ferry crossing at the lower end of New Cumberland.

MAN INJURED WHEN ELEVATOR CABLE BREAKS

Charles E. Hanes, 54, Figures in Pottery Accident.

LEG IS CRUSHED

Car, Loaded With Ware, Drops 25 Feet.

Charles E. Hanes, 54, State street, warehouseman at the No. 2 plant of the Homer Laughlin China company, East End, is in the city hospital today suffering from a serious injury to the right knee and hand and arm lacerations, sustained about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the cable on an elevator on which he was riding broke.

Hanes had boarded the car at the first floor of the warehouse with a truckload of ware, which was being taken to one of the upper floors. When the elevator reached the third floor, the big steel cable holding it snapped under the strain, the car dropping 25 feet to the first floor.

Hanes' right leg was caught between the side of the elevator and the cable used in operating the lift, the bone being crushed at the knee. His hands were cut by broken dishes on the truck.

The injured man was taken to the hospital in the Sturgis ambulance. He was attended by Dr. C. R. Larkins.

Hanes is married and has three children.

Mayors and School Boards Join Hands In Relief Demands

COLUMBUS, Jan. 8.—With the view to strengthening their own fight for legislation designed to afford financial relief for municipalities officials of the newly organized State Association of Mayors and Other Municipal Authorities today are endeavoring to enlist the support of Ohio's school officials.

Fifty Ohio municipalities were represented at the conference here late Wednesday at which the association's emergency relief committee was instructed to "work with the school people" in their efforts to obtain authorization for either a new tax levy by school boards, to be collected next June, or to issue short term notes or bonds, in order to relieve the financial distress among schools.

Mayor Clayton C. Townes, Cleveland, was chosen president of the association and Mayor George H. Hoffman, Lorain, secretary. Directors include: City Manager F. C. Eichelberger, Dayton, and Mayor Charles Ball, Canton. The association will meet at Cleveland in June.

George W. Bellows, 42, Famous Painter, Dies in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—George Wesley Bellows, 42, considered by foremost critics of art as one of the United States leading painters, died in a hospital here today of acute appendicitis. He was stricken Saturday. An operation failed to same him. He was a native of Columbus, Ohio.

JUDGE E. H. GARY ASKS COOLIDGE AID TO ENFORCE LAW OF LAND

Urges "Precept and Personal Example" of Federal Officials.

1,000 PETITION

Resolution, Referring to Prohibition, Topic at White House.

By GEORGE E. DURNO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Across the white house breakfast table this morning, President Coolidge was urged to impress vigorously upon all federal officials the importance of obeying and enforcing the law of the land, both by "precept and personal example."

The enlistment of presidential aid was in the form of a resolution adopted by the Citizen's committee of one thousand for law enforcement, and was conveyed to the executive by Judge Elbert H. Gary, president of the United States Steel corporation, who acted as chairman of the delegation that gathered at the white house for breakfast and a discussion of prohibition enforcement.

Judge Gary, in presenting the resolution, told the president that the Citizen's Enforcement committee felt a point had been reached where successful application of the dry laws was largely a question of arousing favorable opinion.

Commends President.

Following Judge Gary, John D. Rockefeller Jr. emphasized the importance of bringing about respect for law among the office holders. He commended President Coolidge for his personal conscientious obedience to the provisions of the 18th amendment.

The president replied briefly to the remarks of Gary and Rockefeller and gave his unqualified endorsement to the principles outlined by his guests.

Those who breakfasted with the president included Frederick A. Wallace, commissioner of collections of New York city, and Clifford Barnes of Chicago, both of whom also spoke; S. S. Kresge of Detroit, W. F. Cochran of Baltimore, V. Everit Macy, George A. Climpton, Paul Patrick, Henry Callahan and Fred R. Smith, chairman of the citizens' committee.

"The people expect of their officials an unwavering loyalty to their oaths of office with respect to a question so vital to the maintenance of our institutions," the resolution presented to the president declared.

It is planned to present like resolutions to the governors of all states.

Ford Faces Libel Suit for Million; Sapiro Sends Letter

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Henry Ford was due to receive a little letter today informing him that a $1,000,000 libel suit is about to be filed by Aaron Sapiro, co-operative marketing exponent for farmers.

The letter is in fact a document demanding a formal retraction of the statement Mr. Ford is alleged to have published in his weekly paper, the Dearborn Independent. This course is required under the Michigan laws as a preliminary to the filing of the suit.

Mr. Sapiro alleges that his name was linked with those of Julius Rosewald, Otto H. Kahn, Bernard Baruch, Albert D. Lasker and Eugene Meyer Jr. in a series of articles charging him with an alleged conspiracy of Jews to control American agriculture, "or to organize farmers of America in th einterests of Communism."

New Hampshire's New Governor O. K.'s. Child Labor Law

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 8.—John J. Winnant, the 79th man to be elected governor of New Hampshire, was inducted into that office here today at a joint session of the senate and house of representatives.

Representatives hall was packed to its capacity when the new chief executive in his inaugural address outlined his policies for the next two years and advanced more than a score of recommendations and suggestions.

Governor Winant recommended particularly the ratification of the child labor amendment and the immediate enactment of a 48-hour work week.

GIRL AND HER ESCORT ARE KILLED WHEN CAR SKIDS AND TURNS OVER

Fatal Crash Occurs East of Industry, Pa., as Woodlawn Motorists are Enroute From Midland.

ONE OCCUPANT ESCAPES INJURY

Accident Happens When Steering Knuckle on Auto Breaks After Party Attends Serbian Celebration.

Enroute to Woodlawn, Pa., from Midland where they had been celebrating the Serbian Christmas day, Miss Katherine Jeich, 15, of Woodlawn, and her escort, Bragon Devich, 17, of Midland, were almost instantly killed, and Adam Krivoshi, of Midland, sustained injuries, when the automobile in which they were riding suddenly skidded and turned over a mile and a half east of Industry at 11 o'clock last night.

A girl, from Woodlawn, a friend of Miss Jeich's whose name could not be learned, escaped uninjured.

It is believed that the steering knuckle on the automobile broke, causing the driver to loose control of the machine.

Two Are Crushed.

Miss Jeich was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jeich, of Woodlawn. Her escort was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Devich, of Midland.

Devich and Krivoshi, it is understood, had brought the girls from Woodlawn to Midland earlier in the day for the celebration.

The accident occurred on a level stretch of road east of Industry. According to Krivoshi, who reported the tragedy to Midland authorities, there was no warning. The car suddenly veered in the road and then crashed over on its side. Krivoshi and the girl with him, riding in the rear seat, crawled from the wreckage. The former suffered only minor bruises and cuts about his shoulder.

The lifeless bodies of Devich, who was driving, and Miss Jeich, who was seated alongside him, were taken from beneath the car.

The bodies were later removed to the Dennis morgue in Midland. That of Miss Jeich will be taken today to her parents' home in Woodlawn.

Ten Million Face Famine as Result Of Chinese Floods

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Ten million persons in China are facing starvation as a result of the famine caused by Yellow river floods, according to S. S. Young, of the China International famine relief commission.

Young is in Washington attempting to secure assistance from the American Red Cross and other philanthropic organizations. He said today it is extremely difficult to raise funds in the United States at the present time. Despite the fact that Americans gave liberally four years ago when 7,000,000 faced famine, Young said, there is a general apathy toward giving assistance in the present famine.

It is impossible to raise funds among Chinese in this country now, Young said, because of the Tong war which has spread throughout the country, making it impossible for groups of Chinese to get together and organize for relief work.

STOP AUTOMOBILE, ROB OCCUPANTS

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—John Thomason, 47 and his son, George Thomason 20, of Dade City, Fla., notified the police that their car had been stopped in downtown Cincinnati Wednesday night by five bandits in another car who assaulted them and stole $110.

SECRECY MARKS DRY UNIT PROBE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A veil of secrecy was thrown around the senatorial investigation of prohibition enforecement today when the Couzens committee opened its inquiry behind locked doors.

Newspapermen were barred from the hearing on the demand of Senator Watson, Republican, of Indiana, while half a dozen witnesses waited to testify about alleged irregularities in the enforcement of the Volstead act.

LABOR COUNCIL STANDS PAT ON MARKET HOUSE

Opposes Transfer of $38,000 Balance in City Fund.

UNIONS VOTE "NO"

Rejects Resolution Condemning Conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg.

Opposition to the plan of transferring the $38,000 balance, remaining in the city's market house fund to another fund was voiced by members of Trades and Labor Council at the semi-monthly meeting last evening.

Councilman Thomas Farrall, a member of Trades and Labor Council, a few weeks ago urged Trades Council to sanction the abandonment of the market house project and give its approval to placing the balance to the credit of another fund where it might be used to a better advantage, if legal, and if not legal turn it back into the sinking fund for the liquidation of the city's bonded indebtedness.

The labor delegates took the matter under advisement and referred it to the various trade unions, with instructions that they report at the first meeting in January. The opin-

Justice of Peace Loses Job; Admits He Took Bribes

DAYTON, O., Jan. 8.—Justice of the Peace A. L. Green of Ebenezer today is out of a job and facing criminal charges, as the result of his confession and resignation late yesterday that he had pocketed fees and bonds in liquor cases and had accepted two $50 bribes from the Keystone club, an alleged gambling joint, for protection.

Green handed his resignation to Prosecuting Attorney Albert Scharrer in the office of J. S. Clifton, state examiner, in this city.

The resignation was demanded by Sheriff Howard E. Webster.

It was estimated that the fees wrongfully kept will amount to $1,500 or more.

GEORGE CREEL, WARTIME NEWS CENSOR, TO BE C. OF C. GUEST

Editor, Author and Humorist Will Speak Here Jan. 28.

ANNUAL MEETING

Dinner Will Precede Session in Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

George Creel, editor, author, publicist and humorist and chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, will be the speaker at the ninth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Wednesday evening, January 28, it was announced today. His subject will be "Current Events and Public Men."

The meeting will be preceded by dinner to be served at 6:30 o'clock. Reports of the secretary, treasurer and other officers will be submitted. The entertainment committee, consisting of T. E. Lewis, H. D. Hoffman, M. J. Newman, L. W. Smith, W. B. Louthan and W. O. Bloor, will meet in the chamber's rooms at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon to arrange the program.

Creel was born at Blackburn, Mo., in 1876. He began his newspaper career in Kansas City, where he worked on "The World." Before he reached his 19th birthday he went to New York and attempted "free lance" writing. His "stuff" didn't sell, so Creel decided that it was too serious and started to write jokes for the New York dailies. This venture also failed and Creel secured a job shoveling snow, but after a few weeks again started to write. Before spring came several New York papers were using his material.

Fought Political Bosses

Creel then went back to Kansas City, where he established "The Inde-

Enlarge Cathedral For Funeral of Archbishop Moeller

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—An addition to St. Peter's cathedral sanctuary is being erected to accommodate the hundreds of clergymen who will take part in the funeral services for Archbishop Henry Moeller next Tuesday morning. The lowering, exterior and interior columns, the altar and the pulpit of the cathedral are now draped in black. The confessional where, Saturday after Saturday, the old archbishop listened patiently to penitents and sent them away lighthearted, likewise bears evidence of mourning.

One year ago, during the celebration of the centennial of the Cincinnati archdiocese, the late prelate was given the rank of papal count by the pope. With his customary modesty, however, Archbishop Moeller never assumed this added dignity.

KELLOGG WILL STAY IN LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Stories in circulation that United States Ambassador Kellogg was to resign from his London post, have made him "all the more determined to remain, it was said at the American embassy today. This was the second denial in two days from the embassy on the subject of Kellogg's retirement. Kellogg is attending the allied financial conference in Paris.

ROBERT F. MCDONALD, 53, SEWER PIPE WORKER, SUFFERS CONCUSSION OF BRAIN

Struck in Right Temple by Piece of Metal When Part of Casting of Dye Machine Breaks.

Robert F. McDonald, 53, sewer pipe worker, is recovering today from a concussion of the brain, suffered Monday, when he was struck on the head with a piece of metal while at work at the plant of the American Vitrified Products company, Elm street, East End.

Mr. McDonald was employed as a trucker. He was operating one of the dye machines when a part of the metal casting broke, striking him in the right temple. Fellow workmen summoned a physician.

He was taken to the hospital where he was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall and W. A. Hobbs. An x-ray examination showed that his skull had not been fractured. He was removed to his home, 1233 Pennsylvania avenue, yesterday.

UNDERWOOD MUSCLE SHOALS FACES ITS FIRST BIG TEST IN U. S. SENATE

Under Unanimous Consent Agreement Upper Chamber Will Vote on Measure Late Today After Being Amended.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The Underwood Muscle Shoals bill faced its first big test in the senate today. Under a unanimous consent agreement the upper chamber was to vote on the measure at four o'clock.

For five weeks, the bill, into which has been incorporated amendments by Secretary of War Weeks, has been knocking around the senate chamber. It would carry out in general the Muscle Shoals recommendations of President Coolidge, that is, providing for goverenmental operation of the project only after every effort had failed to lease it to private interests.

Under the provisions of the bill, the secretary of war would have until Sept. 1 to consummate a lease. That

Chicago Man May Live Altho Bullet Is Squeezed From Heart

Vital Organ of Max Peck, Who Attempted Suicide Because of Loneliness, Stops Functioning as Surgeons Operate.

CHICAGO.—Although your heart stops functioning, you may still live!

At least this is true in the case of Max Peck. Surgeons at the County Hospital here cut open his chest, took his heart in their hands, used pressure enough to force a home-made bullet from the organ, stopped its beating for a few moments and then restored it to its place.

Peck may recover and once again be just as sound as though he had never attempted to commit suicide on Christmas Eve in a cheap lodging house.

When the terrrrible loneliness that overwhelms a man utterly alone in a cheap lodging house on Christmas Eve came to Peck he had no weapon. But to a man determined to end it all that is no hindrance.

A piece of lead pipe was secured, as well as some black powder. And Peck had a spike for a bullet. The home made cannon was placed on a table and set off with a hot wire. When Peck awoke he found himself in the hospital, hovering between life and death.

Surgeons at the hospital counseled an operation. Apparently it has turned out a success.

Record Hog Killing Reported in Family At Aberdeen, Miss.

ABERDEEN, Miss.—There will be a shortage of hogs in this section of the State, according to livestock experts, this season, but not in the family of John F. Plant.

He and his son-in-law, Frank G. Whittaker, killed thirty-four hogs that weighed 14,000 pounds, and the meat and sausages will be distributed among the various members of the family. This is the largest individual killing in this section for many years.

Nose Dive Fails To Improve Army Recruit's Hearing

NEW YORK.—Neither sharp nose diving nor side-slipping in an airplane improved the hearing of Joseph Kling, 28, at whose request an attempt to cure him by this means was tried at Mitchel Field, Mineola.

Kling, who never had been in the air before, rode in a DeHaviland plane for half an hour. Several side slips were made before the big dive was taken.

When he was examined by army surgeons after the trip his organic deafness was pronounced unchanged. He said:

"My condition is just the same."

The man has been deaf ten years and has been rejected for the army frequently because of it.

John Gill, of Springfield, Mass., went to Mineola to take the same treatment, but abandoned the idea when he learned that Kling's hearing had not improved.

Friend of Lincoln Says Mrs. Lincoln Had Bad Temper

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. — Professor Gilbert E. Bailey, who died here recently, was a friend of the family of Abraham Lincoln.

He knew much of the troubled domestic life of Lincoln.

Mrs. Lincoln, according to Bailey, had a violent temper. Once he saw her throw herself flat on the floor and kick her heels together, while she screamed at the top of her voice.

Posed as Gothamite In Germany; Held For White Slavery

BERLIN—Herr Ettlinger, alias "Mr. Ettlinger, from New York," has been arrested here charged with white slavery, following discovery by the police that he had scores of "fiancees" from whom he had obtained, under false pretenses, large sums of money.

Ettlinger let it be known that he was the owner of "great marble works in Colorado, as well as the holder of honors in American boxing." After arresting him, the police tested out his boxing powers, and he was knocked out in a few seconds. They also discovered that the alleged American knew no English.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY SAFELY TOLD BY ONE OF RICHEST AMERICANS

WASHINGTON—Twelve "danger signs" for the guidance of investors have been set up by Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury.

If you want to invest your savings safely, memorize these twelve rules, in which Mr. Mellon summarizes his ve[illegible] knowledge of investments:

[illegible] selling stock. The best looking mine in the world may prove a white elephant. Mining is a very expensive undertaking and the risks are unusually great. There are many good mining investments but this branch of the investment market is generally not for those who depend upon a salary.

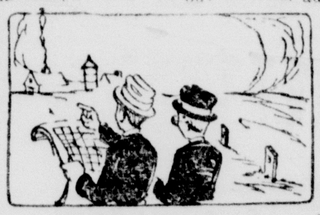

"2—Oil stock. Drilling for oil is costly. The hazards are great. Oil investments are speculative and in a class [illegible] investments.

[illegible] important discovery or invention there comes a host of schemes—airplanes, radio, wireless [illegible]

have only the best intentions, but frequently their enthusiasm is about all they have to sell. Look before you leap.

"4—Investment in real estate in some distant place is sometimes as dangerous as mining stock. People have been known to buy swamps and [illegible] what you are buying before you invest.

"5—Land development' schemes frequently do not pan out. At best it is a long time before [illegible] money comes in from sales. Investment in new companies that are going to 'sell by mail' should generally be avoided.

"6—Patent rights and processes distribution. It is rarely the patentee who makes the money.

"7—'New manufacturing methods should always be closely checked and investigated.

"8—An investment requiring a quick decision is often a fake. If there isn't sufficient time to "sleep over it,' something probably is wrong.

"9—'Special inducements' in cash discounts or stock bonuses urging you to be one of the first to invest are suspicious symptoms.

"10—'Tips alleged to land you 'on the ground floor' are rarely to be taken. Those who are on the ground floor will monopolize the opportunity.

"11—Playing the stock market on the margin and all other forms of speculation are decidedly not for the small investor. Beware of the 'bucket shop.'

"12—Stock in 'mail order' companies being organized with promises based on what others have done seldom turns out well."

American Hickory Has Rival.

Woods found in certain parts of India are likely to become rivals of the American hickory, long preferred for axe and hammer handles. The government in India is making exhaustive tests of the Parrotia Jacquemontiana with particular reference to its ability to withstand strain, and results to date show that it compares favorably with hickory and it is now being cut on a commercial basis.

RUSH WORK ON POWER PLANT

Officials Give Interesting Description of Big Project.

By spending $11,000,000 in the construction of its super-power station along the Ohio river near Toronto, the Ohio River Edison company and the Pennsylvania-Ohio Light & Power company, which will operate the plant under a 999 year lease are providing one of the finest power plants in the United States.

The plan will add not merely to the power resources of this industrial section, but also to the reliability of the electric service enjoyed by approximately 40 communities, officials point out in recent description of the mammoth undertaking.

The Toronto plant will be joined to the existing Penn.-Ohio power transmission system by a steel tower transmission line 39 miles long, running almost due north from Toronto to the big substation under construction at Boardman. Approximately 200 steel towers will be used.

Into this substation at Boardman also will come transmission lines from the Lowellville power generating station and the transmission line from Warren recently placed in service as an important link in the super-power zoning for this section of the country. This "tie-line" connects the Penn.-Ohio system with the Ohio Public Service company so that either company may deliver power from the other as occasion might require.

The system of the Ohio Public Service company already is tied in with the Ohio Power company by a transmission line from Warren to Canton. The Ohio Power company has transmission lines leading to the power station at Windsor and also is tied in with the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company at Akron and the N. O. T. in turn is tied in with the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company.

Thus five large power systems are tied in so that there may be an exchange of power in cases of emergency.

Plant on River.

The Toronto site has a frontage of 2,000 feet along the Ohio river and the structure now nearing completion is the first unit of the plant. It is designed for additional units so that the eventual capacity will be four times the initial capacity. The building is of steel, concrete and brick construction, 200 by 250 feet in dimension.

Actual construction work was started in September, 1923, and is expected to be completed in February, 1925. The excavations were carried on chiefly by floating dredges, the plant being brought close to the low water mark and the intake tunnels for the circulating water being carried to such a depth that the lowest possible stage of the Ohio river cannot interfere with the plant having a thoroughly adequate water supply. The watertight foundation walls rise above the highest known water mark, that of 1884.

Massive Structure.

Some idea of the massiveness of the structure may be gained from the fact that foundation mat upon which the structure rests is one huge slab of concrete with steel reinforcing covering the side of the building and from six to eight feet thick. Five hundred tons of reinforcing steel and 15,000 cubic yards of concrete went into its construction.

The initial installation will comprise two turbo-generator units with requisite boilers, transformers, banks, etc. Each of the turbo-generators will be of 37,500 K. V. A. capacity. The eventual capacity of the plant will be 300,000 K. V. A., approximately 350,000 horsepower. The turbines will take steam at 350 pounds pressure.

The boiler plant will consist of four boilers, each having 21,500 square feet of heating surface. The air furnished by waste gases from the furnace, thus recovering a large amount of heat that otherwise would be wasted up the stacks. The furnaces will be equipped with water screens on all four sides and bottom.

One of the especially interesting features of the plant will be the use of powdered coal for fuel. The fuel after passing through a special pulverizing process wherein it is ground to the finest form of powder, will be blown by air blasts into the furnaces, thus being more nearly akin to the use of fuel oil than to the ordinary method of burning coal.

United States Termed Lenient Landlord in Report Just Filed

WASHINGTON—The United States is one of the most lenient landlords, according to a report filed by Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work.

During the last fiscal year twenty-three small dwelling houses on Government land near the Capitol were rented for $6,010.50. One house in Washington was rented for $100 a year, though the report also mentions one Government-owned house which brought $900 a year.

Steel Girder Pierces Big Dirigible; Causes $17,000 Helium Loss

SCOTT FIELD, Ill.—Helium gas valued at $17,000 escaped, with an explosion-like report here, from the United States Army dirigible TC-5 when the huge bag was pierced by a steel girder on the outside of the hanger from which the ship had been removed preparatory to a flight to Springfield, Ill.

No one was injured seriously, several of the ground crew receiving scratches it was reported.

Many Civic Improvements.

CHILLICOTHE.—A survey of the work done here during 1924, discloses that nearly $200,000 worth of civic improvements were installed during the past year. Most of this money was spent on important paving jobs, the principal one, probably, being the paving of Eastern avenue, which skirts the old Ohio & Erie canal state ground.

Whose Are the Great Lakes?

The decision of the United States supreme court against Chicago's diversion of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan through the drainage canal, declaring it illegal, is a more important one than many citizens have realized.

Chicago has been taking this tremendous amount of water to aid it in the disposal of its sewge. It ras been shown that the withdrawal of so much water from Lake Michigan has lowered the general level of all the Great Lakes, except Superior, as much as six inches, seriously affecting shipping.

The supreme court points out that this is a matter not of local welfare and convenience, but of national and international import. Chicago's claim that the United States has no right to determine the amount of water that shall flow through the channel or the manner of its flow is therefore denied. In the report read by Chief Justice Taft, the court declares:

"This is not a controversy between equals. The United States is asserting its sovereign power to regulate commerce and the control of navigable waters within its jurisdiction. It has a standing in this suit not only to remove obstructions to interstate and foreign commerce, but also to carry out treaty obligations to a foreign power bordering upon some of the lakes concerned and, it may be, also on the footing of an ultimate sovereign interest in the lakes."

Americans in general are too inclined to think of the Great Lakes as our lakes, with little regard to Canada. Citizens of lake cities think of the lake on which they happen to be situated as theirs instead of a possession shared with all the other communities and states along its border. The supreme court's decision should remind everybody that the lakes are no one's private property, and the same reasoning presumably applies to navigable lakes and streams throughout the country.

Trailing Francis Drake

A group of Englishmen have just set sail from Appledore, the Devonshire port from which Francis Drake sailed many years ago, to follow Drake's course around the world. They are voyaging in a three-masted frigate, the "Marian." The crew is made up of 14 hardy mariners selected from hundreds of eager applicants. Most of them will get nothing out of the trip but adventure. The mate is a real sea dog who has spent 60 years on the seas and has never yet shipped on anything but a sailing vessel. There is to be a chronicler for this twentieth century adventure, an Englishman who is an explorer and who has mapped much of Borneo and the islands south of India and China.

The voyage has a historical purpose. The ship is to make stops at numerous cities which have sprung up along the coasts passed or touched by Drake. It is hoped to gather some data of Drake's trip never before recorded.

The farewell message of one of the leaders of the expedition sets an imaginative person to dreaming.

"Sails will serve us better than steam. Time is no immediate object. We shall drop down the Bideford river, as British sailors sailed before, and we may see you all again in five years' time."

Even the presence in the ship's equipment of the most up-to-date moving picture and photographic outfits, or the fear of seasickness, can hardly dispel the charm of that voyage to the stay-at-home to whom time and work are pressing.

The Cross-Word Crook

Evidently there are unsuspected perils lurking in the apparently innocent cross-word puzzle. It may become an instrument of crime.

Consider the sad experience of John Sankowski and Edward Segar, of Lynn, Mass. Those ardent cross-word fans were seated in a restaurant, working out a puzzle, when a stranger came up and won their confidence by showing that he knew more about puzzles than they did. Eventually he invited them to his room to continue working out their solutions.

Later, the two boys reported that the obliging stranger had stolen their overcoats, fountain pens, gold watches and money.

Beware the cross-word confidence man!

Haskin Letter

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

OUR FOREIGN DEBTORS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Within the next few weeks the American people will hear much concerning the indebtedness of European countries to our government. Two developments have brought the question to the fore. First, France has had several things to say recently concerning her large debt, and, second, the life of the World war debt funding commission, the body which has charge of negotiations for the American government, expires by limitation on February 9. Congress must act to extend the life of hte commission or there will be no direct agency with which the foreign debtors may deal.

The original debt of ten billions has grown through interest accretions to over twelve billions. The American people are taxed to pay the interest on the unfunded and dormant portion of this debt, and, as a matter of course, every citizen is concerned with having the question settled.

The present status of the debt is summarized as follows: Forty-two per cent of it is funded. This amounts in figures to $4,249,434,720. Great Britain, our largest debtor, has entered into an agreement whereby she pays yearly instalments averaging $160,000,000. Sixty-two years will be required to repay the whole debt. The other funding arrangements have been or will be on the British model. Interest continues to run throughout the long period so that a far greater sum than the original amount lent will come back to the United States.

Finland has funded her debt of over $9,000,000 and the loan of $50,000,000 to Hungary also has been put on a funded basis. A small loan to Lithuania has been funded and the loan of approximately $160,000,000 to Poland has been taken care of on the British model.

Funding is a term of technical finance which merely means the concluding of a definite agreement for the payment of a debt. When the loans were originally made to the allies and later to the succession states, such as Poland and Finland, they were in the form of demand obligations. That is, each nation gave its notes to pay to the United States on demand the full amount of the loan with accrued interest. No one ever expected payment of the whole sums at once, but so long as they are in the form of demand obligations they constitute an immediate liability. No country can know at what moment the United States might make the demand for payment in full. For this reason it is of importance to the debtors as well as to the United States to make funding arrangements.

CUBA HAS PAID IN FULL

The neighboring republic of Cuba is the only war debtor who has paid in full. The $10,000,000 loan made to Cuba by the United States when the island declared war on Germany has been repaid with interest.

Other debts remain unfunded. France heads the list with a debt of about $4,100,000,000, including interest. Italy, Belgium, Armenia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Esthonia, Greece, Latvia, Liberia, Nicragua, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Russia are the other debtors. Some of these countries have begun negotiations for funding, but about half of them have made no move in that direction at all. This state of affairs shows the importance of extension of the life of the debt funding commission after next February, as it would be impossible to clear up the remaining debts within the intervening brief period.

The case of France is that which has attracted most attention. From the very first there have been many suggestions from various public men of the United States and foreign countries that the United States should cancel all or at least a part of the debt France owes. This is based partially on the heroic part France paid in holding the Germans and partially on the fact that France lent generously to the United States in George Washington's days when we were impoverished and required funds to carry on the Revolutionary war and the functions of government.

This sentiment is not general, it being felt that the American troops who swept back the Germans from French territory repaid the old debt, while the money loan is purely a financial consideration.

The United States already has canceled hundreds of millions of the debt and stands prepared to cancel more. The original loans were made at from 5 to 6½ per cent interest. When the funding negotiation was made with England, as with the other countries, the rate was dropped to 3 and 3½ per cent. Over the 62 years amortization period allowed, this means a virtual cancellation of vast sums. Under the original contracts entered into by the European nations, they agreed to pay the higher rate and the United States legally and morally could hold them to those terms.

CANCEL ONE, CANCEL ALL

Every country which took part in the war contributed heroic efforts, in the view of the American government, and if the debt of one is to be cancelled, the debt of all would have to be. Each president and each secretary of the treasury since the war has stoutly maintained that there can be no cancellation beyond the substantial cancellation represented by the cut in the rate of interest.

Recent developments in the French debt situation have been of the highest interest. Jules Jusserand, about to end 22 years' service as ambassador at Washington, called upon the secretary of the treasury, Mellon, chairman of the debt funding commission, for a talk with him on the debt status, prior to his departure for France. Mr. Mellon outlined in general terms the wishes of the United States. Ambassador Jusseran notified his government of his consersation. He received instructions from Paris to continue, and subsequently a meeting of the full commission was called, at which the French position was considered. It was hinted that later a special mission would come to the United States to settle details.

Thereupon, Winston Churhill, chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain, announced that if France were ready to pay her debts, Great Britain would like to be remembered. This was regarded by the American government as a natural development. Secretary Mellon said: "If a man owes several other men and announces he is ready to pay any one of them, the other creditors step up and suggest that what is due them be also remembered." However, some criticism of the British position was expressed in congress, it being declared that England was trying to block payment to the United States.

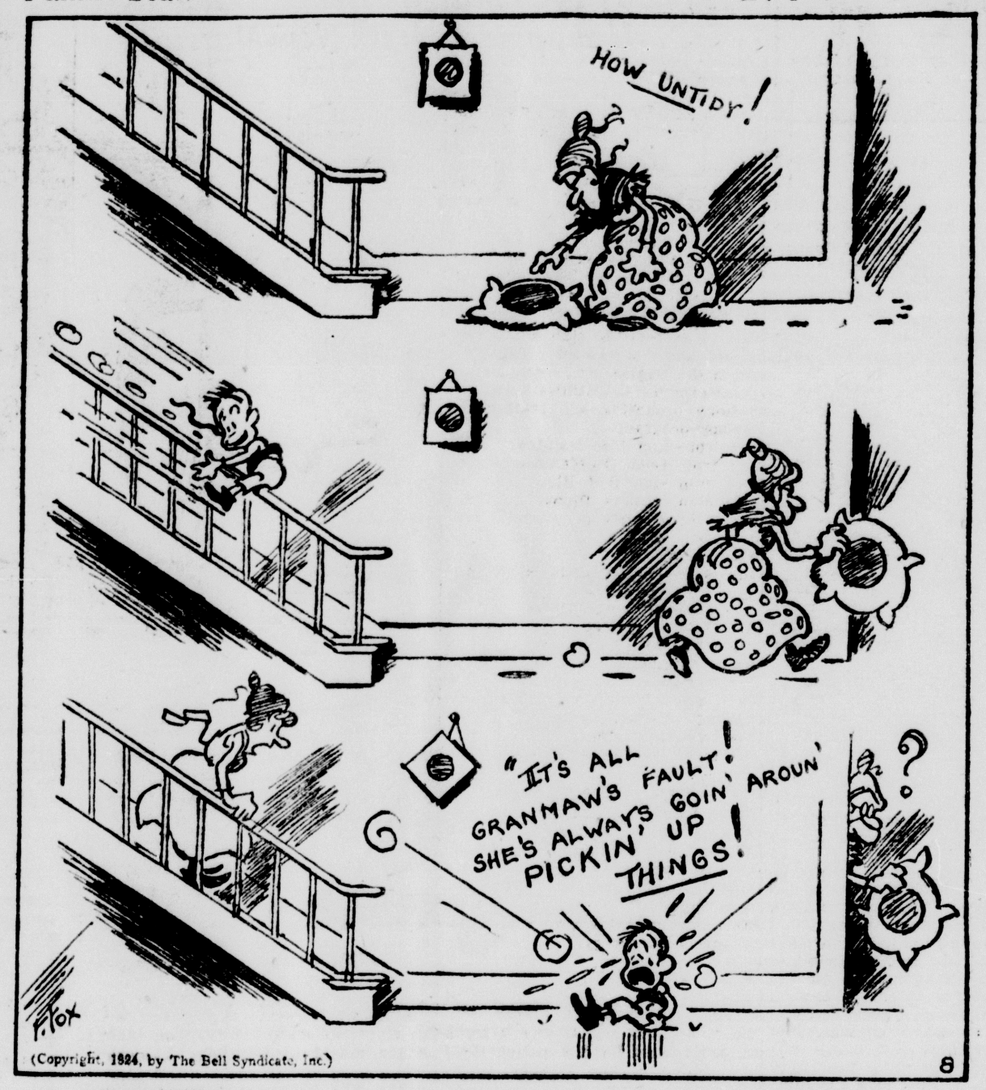

France then said, in effect, that if she had to pay England at once she could not pay the United States. This statement has caused much chagrin and a feeling in this country that France may be resorting to diplomatic means to postpone further negotiations. This is where the case stands now. It is regarded as possible that the American government may dispatch a note to France asking a definite statement of her intentions.

The American policy is to reach an agreement whereby the debtor country can make annual payments in the full amount settled upon without being economically crippled. That is, the United States in no case has sought to exact payments of a magnitude which would impose an undue burden of taxation upon the debtor country. Further, it desires to leave in the hands of the debtor sufficient income adequately to develop its resources and carry on its trade, being aware that the surest way to obtain ultimate payment of the full sum is to advance the prosperity of the debtor rather than reduce it by taking too much wealth out of the country at one time.

Much excitement in New York over the discovery that a certain man works for his wife for mere board and clothing. That's the usual stipend of husbands and fathers elsewhere.

The allies, who have discovered "100,000 hidden guns in Germany," ought to come over here and search our gunmen.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By COPELAND C. BURG.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—Bobbed hair, beaches and California's golden sunshine are causing an increase in Los Angeles divorces.

When middle westerners come here for the winter one-half of the couples want to return home, while the other half insist upon remaining in the sunshine. Divorce suits follow.

Walter Hagen, Omaha merchant, brought his wife, Minnie, here for the winter. When spring came Hagen had to return to his business. Mrs. Hagen refused to accompany him to the Nebraska plains and later won a divorce because her husband would not make this city his permanent home.

Richard Wright was just a "Main Street" family man back in Iowa. He came here for a visit.

"He went wild about women after he visited Los Angeles beaches," his wife charged in court, when she obtained a divorce. "Back in Iowa he used to wear slippers and stay home nights, but here all he wanted to do was visit the beaches and run around with other women."

Dan Stewart and Milton Morris Chase are Los Angeles barbers. Dan likes to bob hair. Milton doesn't.

Their bobbed-hair complexes led them to the divorce courts.

"Dan was fine and dandy until women began to wear short hair and patronize the barber shops," Mrs. Isabel Nesbit Stewart testified. "Then he changed. He tried to make dates with all the women who came into his shop. He whispered into their ears while he stripped their locks. I scolded him. Then he left me and never came back."

"Decree granted," said Judge Charles Crail. "Next!"

Mrs. Gertrude P. Chase spoke to the judge.

"My husband would not support me because he was so lazy," said Mrs. Chase. "He was all right until women began to get bobbed hair cuts and visit his shop. He refused to bob hair. 'Too much work,' he said. 'It takes longer than a man's haircut, and women customers are too particular. You can't ever please them!' He said he would never snap his scissors again until women quit wearing bobbed hair."

Mrs. Chase won her freedom, too.

If a husband insists on buying his wife's hats for her, is she justified in leaving him?

That is the question Judge J. W. Summerfield must decide.

Mrs. Helen G. Leonard brought suit for divorce against John Leonard because she wouldn't let her husband buy her clothes.

"He bought me two hats and a coat," Mrs. Leonard declared, "and they were terrible. One of the hats didn't fit at all, and the only defense he had was that he tried it on himself. But he made no allowance for bobbed hair.

"He also bought me an old purple hat, without a feather, that was weird. It could not have cost more than $1.95. Also, he purchased some stockings at the 10-cent store. They faded and ran all over the place!"

Leonard is 38. Mrs. Leonard is 17 years old.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—During many strolls in the crowded East Side I have seen him, as have many others. It is a poverty stricken face, ashen white under tendrils of crow black hair. The hat is a wide rimmed black hat of the art student.

He seems to mirror all the woe of the district in which he moves. In the little coffee houses and cafes of Second avenue he sits alone, brooding and motionless, like some framed horror. So far as I can learn he has never been seen with anyone else.

Around Letan's where the gypsy violinists play they say he often comes there late at night, retires to a darkened corner and sketches for hours with pencil and pad, drinking as many as 12 cups of black coffee in an hour. Then he tears his sketches into tiny bits and leaves.

Others tell of seeing him at midnight on a span of the Williamsbury bridge steadily gazing down into the odd, acute glitter of the lights on the rippling water. Policemen say he has gone there at midnight and remained until dawn pinks the sky.

He is only one of the hundreds of human mysteries in Gotham. In a smaller city they would learn of his name, perhaps of his disappointments. And no doubt they would crack the veneer of aloofness and get to the heart of things.

But it is the inexplicable manner of New York to shy at grief. It fears the hard luck story. It dodges woe. Men and women may carry their heavy burdens for years and years and no one will question them. Yet if they do reveal their sorrows. They come and go year after year, silent men and women who mumble to themselves along the streets and longing for a friendly hand or voice.

The old-fashioned waltz is returning to its pristine popularity in the jazz halls. All the orchestras are adding waltz numbers and several professional dancers are featuring it in their stage diversions.

The waltz makes one wonder what has become of the old-fashioned dancing master. He taught our generation many other things beside dancing. We learned to curtsey properly before our elders, the correct manners at the table and to toe-out as we walked. He belonged to the age of 10 cents a box paper collars—turned on Thursday, taffy pullings and shoefly neckties. One I remember had a circuit of small towns, visiting each once a week. He was popular with parents and when he died he left an estate of $75,000—a big fortune in those days.

Eventually to complete the cycle I predict the return of the square dance. There must be some relief from jazz and the square dance furnishes it with its, "Balance all, first gent to the right, swing corners, all hands around."

And a friendly correspondent writes me to inquire if I remember the days when the boys had their pants slit at the ankles with three buttons sewed on each pant leg. That was a little before my time. My father, I believe, went in for them. But I belonged to the taffy pulling age and remember distinctly how the hostess would ask all the guests to grease their hands with butter so the taffy wouldn't stick. Butter was then eight cents a pound. It seems to me we had more fun pulling the dark brown candy into a golden brown than the young men of today have swigging drug store gin.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

AGED 105 AND THAT'S ALL

An old gentleman celebrates his one hundred and fifth birthday, not unusual in these days of long living, and newspapers distribute his views.

"Never give any advice," says he, "and don't worry. I have always done what I wanted to do and have never worried."

Never worry and you will live long. Worry poisons the mind and kills in the end.

But the gentleman aged 105, is aged 105, and that's all you can say about him. To do what you don't want to do and to worry may mean shorten life. It also may mean doing something worth while.

To be a Harriman, or a Hill, open up great territories, conquer a Salton sea, make a short cut across Salt Lake, help create the great northwest and die too young is better than never worrying and living to 105.

$70,000,000 PER PLANE

The regularly established airplane service between London and Berlin makes the 600-mile trip in four hours. These machines, headed this way, would cross the Atlantic in 20 hours.

That is something to interest this nation which talks and spends, but makes no airplane progress.

In spending we are very efficient. On airplane service, since the war, this nation has spent more than $400,000,000. How much of that went in waste and graft, do you think?

For our $400,000,000 spent since the war, and about one thousand millions spent during the war, we have, according to official testimony, just 20 airplanes fit to be of service in war.

That makes out good machines average up about $70,00,000 each, which is not cheap. If the country spends $400,000,000 more you may be sure that Calvin Coolidge will get some flying machines for the money. Why not buy, for a start, 1,000 machines abroad, where they know how to make the kind that fly.

THE DROP DID NOT COME

That predicted 1925 drop did not visit the stock market yesterday. Almost everything went up, railroads leading, cotton and wheat following. Call money used in speculation dropped to 3 per cent and all was serene.

The lambs have not gained full headway yet. They are thinking, dear little things. Once they get really started there will be busy moments for stray bears.

Elmer Schlesinger, party of the inside works of Chadbourne, Stanchfield & Levy, lawyers with clients of the big kind, says: "This is going to be such a boom year as nobody living has ever seen." He is a cool, not excitable young man. And he is probably right. Whatever else you do, be careful not to sell short. "That way madness lies." But don't gamble.

MUMMY FINGERPRINTS

When the lawyer writes "hereto I set my hand and seal," he refers to the ancient custom, as old as Egypt, of sealing documents with the print of the thumb.

Three thousand years before Christ fingerprints and thumbprints were used for identification. The Chinese use fingerprints to identify armies of laborers as they are paid off.

Mr. Bogan, expert of the navy, has been making fingerprints of mummies, and says that in all the thousands of years no two human beings have had fingerprints alike.

What's more important, no two have had brains alike, and that accounts for change and progress.

Sugar companies, oil and railroad companies are organizing great mergers, bigger and bigger industrial units are coming. In the end, perhaps, single units will include entire industries. The big steel company would probably control the nation's steel business tomorrow, except that Judge Gary is conservative.

No need to worry it, the bigger the better, if the public gets its share of the savings. If the public is not intelligent enough to watch and regulate one big concern, it won't be able to watch and control the secret inside of a dozen little concerns.

Very expensive is the overhead in wasteful competition, and the public pays the entire bill always. If 10 companies sent five milk wagons and five baker wagons to your block, you and others on the block would pay for the eight unnecessary wagons.

Henry Ford loaded 5,000 automobiles on his ship Oneida in New York harbor yesterday, and sent the load down to Jacksonville, New Orleans and Houston. Factories, mines, forests, waterpower, ships and money enough to buy Morgan & Co., that once imagined it could buy him. When will the first all metal Ford airplane appear?

WHO'S WHO

HSUAN TUNG.

Hsuan Tung, "Son of Heaven," remains an outcast from his native land of China—an exile in Japan. As little Pu Yi, two years old, he ascended the Chinese throne in 1908. Four years later, with the advent of the republic, he abdicated, and since then has been allowed to live in retirement in the palace of his fathers.

HSUAN TUNG

In December, 1923, he married a daughter of Jung Yuan, a Manchu noble, and, learning that western monarchs used personal names, he chose "Henry" for himself and "Elizabeth" for his wife.

A few years ago he angered the imperial dowagers by having his queue cut off. On November 5 soldiers broke into his retreat, demanding that he leave the palace, give up title and privileges and accept reduction of his annual income from $4,000,000 to $500,000. The influence of Sun Yat Sen and the Bolshevist Ambassador Karakhan, have been credited with the action.

Hsuan Tung moved, with the empress and second consort, to the house of his father, Prince Chun. His English tutor, R. F. Johnston, was refused admittance. The new Chinese government granted Hsuan Tung his freedom, and his first act was to fly from the empire—a refugee.

DINNER STORIES

Bernard Shaw, who is not everfond of music now, probably because of his early career as critic, happened to be beguiled to a musicale given by a prominent London society woman, who, during the evening, found the author sitting disconsolate and bored in a corner of the room.

"Now, really, Mr. Shaw," said the hostess, "don't you think this orchestra plays beautifully. These men have been playing together for 11 years."

"Eleven years?" repeated Shaw. "Haven't we been here longer than that?"

125 Guests Will Attend K. C. Ladies' Card-Dancing Party

One hundred and twenty-five guests, members of the St. Aloysius and St. Ann church congregations and their friends, are expected to attend the card and dancing party to be held in the K. of C. parlors and ballroom in the Fowler building, Diamond, tonight, when Ladies of the Knights of Columbus will be hostesses.

Euchre, five hundred and bridge as well as dancing will be the diversions from 8:30 until midnight. Orchestra music will be furnished. Luncheon will be served.

This is the second of a series of parties to be held under the ladies' auspices.

The lodge is considering plans for a Washington Birthday dinner-dance, date for which has not been set.

Patterson-Kennedy Wedding.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Marie Patterson, daughter of Mrs. Mary Mattes of Main street, Wellsville, and Lester Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kennedy of Dresden avenue, this city. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage of the First Church of Christ by the pastor, Rev. B. R. Johnson, at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, January 5.

The bride, who is employed in the Homer Laughlin decorating shop No. 6, wore a light blue gown, with a corsage of bride's roses. The bridegroom is employed as machinist at the Patterson foundry. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy will reside temporarily with the bridegroom's parents.

Odd Fellows' Lodge.

Odd Fellows' lodge No. 379 will meet in the I. O. O. F. temple, West Sixth street, Friday evening, when officers for the coming year will be installed by Deputy Grand Marshal A. Henstock.

Never Let a Cold Get a Start

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like "a vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poltice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

McGlymchey-Laird Wedding.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning in St. Paul's Catholic church of Salem, when Miss Nora McGlymchey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McGlymchey of Etna street, Salem, became the bride of C. J. Laird. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Manning.

The bride was gowned in a blue brocaded solset's. She wore a corsage of bride's roses and sweetpeas. Her sister, Miss Marjorie McGlymchey, who was attired in sea green charmeuse, with a corsage of pink roses and sweetpeas, was the maid of honor. The bridegroom's attendant was his brother, George Laird, of Grafton, W. Va.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, at which covers were arranged for 12 guests. The home was attractively decorated with roses, which were also used in the breakfast appointments, with a color scheme of pink and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Laird left yesterday afternoon for a honeymoon trip through the east. Upon their return they will reside temporarily with the bride's parents in Salem. The bridegroom is employed by the Sebring China company.

Mystery in Finding Of Bodies at Seaside; Officials Baffled

PARIS — The discovery of the bodies of two men on the seashore at Carras, near Nice, together with the broken remains of a small boat, is mystifying the local police.

One man had apparently died of burns, and as there are no signs of burning on his clothes it is obvious that his body must have been clothed after death and then thrown into the sea. The other man was naked.

Suffering Reported.

NELSONVILLE—Considerable suffering is reported throughout the Hocking coal field and in several nearby mining regions, with the coming of cold weather. Heads of families have been idle so long that, in many homes, there is little to eat or wear. Relief agencies are doing what they can to help in many instances.

Men as well as women of the better classes in Greece use cheap perfumery extensively.

Her Tragic Mistake

Not all the tragedies of life are played in the city. A mere farm may provide the background for as thrilling a drama as ever was unfolded. Minnie found that out. Born and raised on the farm, the discontent that came of drudgery grew swiftly into revolt. She longed to escape—to meet real men and women—to enjoy the ease and pleasure she believed were to be found in the great world outside her own.

This true story of a farm-girl who wanted life and "freedom," might well be the story of any girl. It is entitled "A Strange Marriage," and appears as one of the many absorbing features in True Story Magazine for February.

"WAR DEBT MEET O. K."—LOGAN

Encouraging Declaration Made by American Observer.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—"Our conversations are progressing normally."

This encouraging declaration was made today by Colonel James A. Logan, American observer on the reparations commission, when he came out of an hour's conference with Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill of England. The conference was held in the British embassy.

Colonel Logan went to the American embassy where he reported to United States Ambassador Herrick and Kellogg on the progress which had been made toward a settlement of America's war claims.

At the conclusion of his "informal conversation" with Colonel Logan, Churchill immediately took up with Finance Minister Clementel further negotiations looking to a settlement of France's war debt to England.

Clementel's Proposal.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—A proposition for French payments—on long time terms and at low interest rates, but none the less a definite proposal to pay—has been made by Finance Minister Clementel to Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill, official circles here reported today.

By the terms of Clementel's reported proposition, France would pay Great Britain and the United States at the same time, a point on which the British have insisted. France would pay its debt in 80 years, but want's a ten-year moratorium first. The interest rate in the first ten years of payment following the morotorium would be half of one percent and in the second decade one percent with arrangements for payment of the principal left for the present to future negotiations.

Diplomatic circles also were discussing the information informally transmitted to Britain by the United States, advising Britain that under no circumstances can the United States enter a general debt conference unless congress amends the debt funding law.

State Department Satisfied.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Marked satisfaction was expressed at the state department today over the progress being made at Paris impressing upon the allied finance ministers the justice of the American claim to equal participation in the Dawes annuities.

Col. James A. Logan reported to the department after his conference with Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, that the basis for an agreement had been reached.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The shallowness of France's recent "proposals" for settling her four billion dollar war debt was emphasized here today by an official announcement that no meeting of the American debt funding commission will be called to consider the terms proposed in the Clementel memoradum.

After a thorough examination of this remarkable document, administration officials have reached the conclusion that M. Clementel has not proposed, even informally and unofficially, anything worth considering.

Large Crowd Attends Union Prayer Meet In First M. E. Church

A large crowd attended the union service, held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, last evening, in connection with the week of prayer observance.

Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor, presided. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, read the scripture, while a prayer was offered by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The sermon was delivered by Dr. Donald W. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, whose subject was "The Home." He declared the home to be the beginning place for religious instruction, and urged the re-establishment of the family altars in Christian homes.

Tonight's service will be held in the First Baptist church, West Fifth street, when Rev. John Dimit, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, will preach. The concluding service of the campaign will be held in the First Methodist Protestant church Friday evening, when Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will preach.

Acetylene Drill Blamed for Blast; 15 Laborers Hurt

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—A workman with an acetylene drill is believed to have been the innocent cause of an explosion here Thursday morning in which 15 laborers at the East End plant of the Union Gas and Electric company were injured and the lives of scores endangered.

Leaking fumes in the main take-off leader were ingnited by the drill. The walls of the building were rent in many places. Many windows in the neighborhood were shattered and doors were torn from their hinges. The new filtration system, which the men were installing at the gas paint, was wrecked. Harold Wheeler, who operated the acetylene drill, said he thought sewer gas backed into the water gas tank he was borning brought about the explosion. Martin C. McCollum, who lives near the plant, was thrown out of bed by the explosion and declared he thought it was an earthquake.

The force of the explosion was carried through a 42 inch gas pipe and blew off a gas head plate 200 feet from the building, carrying the plate through the air to the river bank, 400 feet away.

Kentucky Youth, Heir to Fortune, is Hold-up Suspect

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—Leroy Wetherell, 20, held by the Cincinnati police on three charges of robbery, is said to be heir to one-third of a million dollar estate at Paris, Ky., and will get the money when he is 21, only a year hence. But Leroy couldn't wait, the police declare, and has been identified by three victims as one of the two bandits who held them up. The youth claims to be the son of the late J. F. Wetherel, a wealthy farmer who lived near Paris. A sister and brother are the other heirs.

The total loot of Wetherel and his pay was $42, it is said. The police declare he told them he served time in the Iowa federal reformatory for "raising" currency.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Stock prices were generally inclined upward in the early trading in the stock market today, but prices changes were narrow and trading was confined to a smaller number of active issues, in which the rails and oils predominated. Dividends on stocks like southern Pacific, which made a strong "play" in the market yesterday were sold in good volume on profit taking and declined a point or two. Oil stocks lost nothing by the heavy volume of selling which came into some of the more active issues; but some of the specialties stocks, including Universal Pipe and Radio, were heavy.

Despite, the Flower about 75,000 barrles of crude oil daily in the new Wortham pool in Texas, total production of oil last week was only 2,000 barrels a day more than in the preceding week, reports reached the traders of pending increases in crude oil prices, some of which may take effect before the end of the month. Already a premium is being paid above posted prices in the Midcontinent and Pennsylvania fields. The oil stocks reflected the better feeling in the industry.

Strength in steel stocks was due to reports that important manufacturers of steel are preparing to speed up production. The United States Steel corporation will expand its operations at 89 per cent of capacity next week, against the current rate of 85 per cent. Motors were also in good demand, though prices showed a tendency to drop to slightly lower levels.

Bears made an effort to dislodge holdings of industrial stocks in the second hour by concentrating heavy selling on American Can, Worthington Pump and other active industrials. The effect of these tactics was to slow up the market rather than to cause any weakness in speculative shares. The use of teh words "bankruptcy, disaster, receivership," etc., in connection with the financial affairs of the St. Paul Railroad by those who presumably intended to be helpful, caused some irregularities in both the stocks and bonds of that company in the listed market. Outside of that the fall list was steady in this period.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent. Cotton and grain markets were fairly steady in the early trading.

ion was almost unanimous that the money should be kept intact and used only for the purpose for which it was voted.

Memorial for Gompers.

The original fund was $40,000 but dwindled to approximately $38,000 by interest on the bonds.

The organization also rejected a resolution submitted by Mrs. Mary Waters, secretary of the City Central committee of the Workers Party, condemning the so-called "criminal syndicalism laws" in connection with the recent conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg, of Lansing, Mich., on charges of sedition. The reolution framed by the Labor Defense Council of Chicago, was merely filed without action on the part of Trades council.

The labor organization also voted to conduct a memorial service for the late Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who died about three weeks ago, at the next regular meeting January 21. Union workers, who were personally acquainted with the labor chief, and who heard him speak at the national convention of the American Federation of Labor at El Paso, Texas, late last fall, just before his death, will speak at the memorial.

VANDERLIP GAVE BOND FOR MEANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Gaston B. Means, former federal agent under $10,000 bail on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice, sprang a sensation at his trial before Federal Judge Walter Lindley today by revealing that Frank A. Vanderlip, international banker, had furnished bond for him.

Means, whose testimony in the Teapot Dome investigation was a feature of the oil scandal, said he persuaded Vanderlip to approve his bond during the investigation.

Means' trial was postponed until Monday at the request of his attorney, Abraham Menin, who said he needed more time to study the case.

Means, who said he had lost sixty-five pounds and was suffering from gall stones, smiled in promising to give some "warm" testimony.

in the church. Visiting pastors had occupied the pulpit during the forepart of the week. Last night the pastor delivered the sermon.

Rev. MacDonald had been preaching for 25 years. He came to Chester from Enon Valley, Pa., about eight months ago, succeeding Rev. H. M. Hanna.

He was born in Oil City, Pa., August 21, 1873, a son of George B. MacDonald, a pioneer oil refiner.

Held Pennsylvania Charges.

Rev. MacDonald attended Slippery Rock Normal school and later entered Grove City college. He graduated from the Western Theological Seminary in 1899. His first charge was at Dawson, Pa. He was later stationed at Carmichaels, Monessen, Mercer and Enon Valley, Pa., coming here from the latter place last May.

Besides his wife, he leaves five children, Mrs. Ruth Malimit, a teacher in a government school at Concho, Okla.; Eunice, Rachel, Paul and Betty, at home. He is also survived by one brother, George, of Newport, Ky.; two sisters, Mrs. Earl McClymonds, Ellwood City, Pa., and Mrs. Edward Dombaugh, of Portersville, Pa.

The body was taken to the C. A. Arner Funeral home.

Missing Cashier's Family's Plight is Sad; Search Renewed

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 8. — Detectives for three private agencies as well as those of the county and state redoubled their efforts today to apprehend Joseph M. Schilling, 40, missing bank clerk who is alleged to have stolen $32,000 in currency from the foreign department of the Dollar Savings & Trust company here.

Friends of Schilling in Pittsburgh are being questioned in an effort to trace him. Detectives also visited the Schilling farm near Salem to learn more of the man's habits. It developed, Schilling recently sold the farm, containing 200 acres, and has left his family consisting of his wife and five children almost destitute.

Schilling's description was broadcast over the radio as an aid in the search, and all seaports are being watched as it is believed by police he will attempt to escape the country.

Former Cleveland Discount Company Officers Indicted

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—Josiah Kirby, now under arrest in Los Angeles on a federal warrant charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud, and former president of the Cleveland Discount company, an alleged $42,000,000 concern, was indicted by a federal grand jury here today. He was charged with issuing a false financial statement.

J. R. Poland, former treasurer of the company, was also named in the indictment. His arrest is momentarily expected.

Following the indictment it was learned from authorities here that a nation-wide search has been started to locate Kirby. Following his arrest in Los Angeles and his posting of a $15,000 bond he disappeared, it is claimed. He was last seen in Chicago ten days ago.

200 Clasp Evangelist's Hand After Church of Christ Sermon

Dr. W. J. Lockhart Appeals to Hearers to Live as Christians — Discourse on "Transformed Church."

More than 200 church members passed down the aisles of the First Church of Christ, last evening, and clasped the hand of Evangelist W. J. Lockhart, at the close of his sermon on the subject, "A Transformed Church."

The evangelist voiced an appeal to the church member "to so live that the world may know there is a difference, a real difference between the Christian and the man without the church." A greater part of the audience stepped forward at the close of his sermon, pledging themselves to live closer to God.

Special musical numbers were given by Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Harbison, of Fairmont, Ind. Rev. Mr. Lockhart will speak on the subject, "Is There a Real Hell?" at Thursday night's service.

"This is a fine growth of interest," said Mr. Lockhart, "not so much in the crowd as in the way you look at us and respond. A revival never begins till people quit sizing up the evangelists and begin to think about what they say. And I want to say to you tonight that the church and the church people must be transformed. A lot of you have been doing the very same thing the world has been doing, singing the same songs, attending the same shows, going to the same dances, taking the same joy rides, leading the same crooked lives, and then you wonder why the young people have been going to the Devil and the church losing its power. The church can not conform to the world in its services and give people, as the theatres do just what they want. The church must give people what they need. That is what I am going at least to try to do while I am in your city.

"You may not like my plain preaching, but I don't have to please you. I am working under a higher authority than yours. I must please Him who sent me. It is not always popular to tell the truth. It was not in John's day. He told the old wicked king of his licenciousness and how he was living with a woman who was not his wife as no doubt a lot of you fellows in this town are doing, and he lost his head. Jesus spoke the truth and they crucified him. The apostles came on and bore testimony to truth and they, too, with one exception, lost their lives. Yet my friends, the Master does not make it any easier today. He bids me call you from conforming to the world and asks that ye be transformed.

"My friends, the Christian must live a different life. It is not an easy thing to be a Christian, but it is a wonderful thing. In this day it means character. It takes courage. I do not understand the philosophy of the Cross of Christ but I know that until we are willing to suffer for Jesus' sake we cannot find power in turning the world to. Him. But when you get to the place that you are willing to give up all for Jesus, then you gain power over others."

pendent" in 1899. For 10 years he fought the political machine and their bosses and his great victory was the election of J. W. Folk as governor.

In 1909 he went to Denver where he became associated with the Denver Post and later with the Rocky Mountain News. In Missouri, Creel's writings were largely responsible for the adoption of the initiative and referendum act and as many other reforms, including the mothers' compensation law, home rule [illegible] cities, workmen's compens[illegible] labor laws, eight-hour [illegible] and similar measures. [illegible] formed a "Citizens' Party" which elected a mayor, abolished the "red light district" and fought the open saloon.

When Creel left Denver he was practically penniless, but had the endorsement of better element of citizens, churches, non-political clubs and organizations. Within a year he was writing articles for magazines, but found time to travel the country in the interests of municipal reforms, equal suffrage and child labor laws.

Offered Presidential Appointment.

It was in 1916 that Creel's work attracted the attention of President Wilson. He was offered a presidential appointment but he refused to enter politics. President Wilson drafted Creel as chairman of the committee on publicity information shortly after America entered the war. In this post Creel built up vast publicity machinery which reached to every corner of the United States and every part of the civilized globe. The printed and spoken word, motion pictures, wireless, airplane and cable—all were used to make Americans understand, to stimulate the allies and shatter the enemy morale. In March, 1919, Creel returned to private life and between books conceived the idea of "Uncle Henry." This series of articles, which have been published by one of the country's leading magazines for two years, have been taking the nation by storm. His entrance to the lecture field is another proof of Creel's versatility.

The auditing committee of the chamber of commerce made up of L. C. Cooper, J. W. Moore, J. A. Anderson met this afternoon to go over the books of the treasurer and secretary. Their report will be made at the annual meeting.

Results of the election for seven members of the board of directors also will be announced.

Reservations for the meeting may be made with H. B. Barth, secretary of the chamber.

AUTO LICENSE BILL FRAMED

Senator Hagus Has Bill to Change Distribution Method.

State Senator Wright Hagus of Ohio county, announced yesterday that he will introduce a bill in the legislature when it convenes next week, providing for local distribution of auto licenses.

The inability of the commission to provide prompt delivery of the license plates and its arbitrary refusal of any time extension has resulted in thousands of automobiles and trucks being forced out of service.

This condition which Senator Hagus plans to remedy with his change in the state road law has been of yearly occurrance. The commissioners have been deaf to all requests for the establishment of a system of distribution in the various sections of the state.

Senatof Hagus proposes to relieve the commission of this work and in his bill he would have local automobile dealers given authority to sell the plates under regulations similar to those now in effect in Ohio.

In this way every automobile owner in West Virginia could be supplied with his plates within one or two days, Senator Hagus believes. And there would be no additional expense for the state. Experience elsewhere has been that automobile dealers and garage owners are more than glad to avail themselves of this opportunity to maintain close contact with the motor trade.

Senator Hagus believes his bill will have much support as reports from other districts indicate that the confusion and inconvenience is worse in many instances than in Wheeling.

STADIUM WORK BEING SPEEDED

Harry A. Stansbury, athletic director of West Virginia University, and active head of the organiation in charge of the drive for funds for the new West Virginia stadium, said last evening that the new stadium will be entirely completed within the next 30 days, and that the contractors will submit their final estimates.

He said that the subscriptions made by West Virginians to date aggregate $490,000, just $10,000 short of the $500,000 required. Of this amount $251,000 has already been paid in cash and the remainder is payable at six months intervals on deferred payments during the next three years.

Mr. Stansbury said that West Virginia's greatest need for the advancement of athletics has been realized, and that the stadium is a monument to the generosity of the public-spirited citizens of West Virginia.

WIT AND HUMOR FROM AFRICA

Repetition is the mother of knowledge.

Morning will not remove a difficulty.

An easy life is the death of valor.

Death treats all men alike.

Today's installment (No. 12) of this series on the proverbs of the various peoples, is made up of axioms of African tribes:

Do not build your hope upon the word of any man the word of any man and you will not be disappointed.

Ignorance and want are allies.

The heart is never satisfied.

A big dog and a little dog will not quarrel over a bone.

The foolishness of a man will not become known as quickly as that of a woman.

Criticism and calumny cannot hurt a good man.

Peace is made by the edge of the sword.

Water never loses its way.

There are forty kinds of lunacy, but only one kind of comon sense.

Laziness and want are always found together.

A promise is a debt.

The best morsels are never given to a beggar.

A single passenger will not cause the canoe to sink.

No Slave can free another.

A lie has seven variations; a truthful story none at all.

Leniency will never pay a debt.

Every quarrel has a cause.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

STAINED TEETH

WHITENED INSTANTLY -- SAFELY

Bleazdhodent Combination consists of a mild safe liquid, which softens stains—and a special paste which gently removes them. Dull, spotty, dark or tobacco-stained teeth become flashing white, lustrous, clean. Perfected by two dentists of high standing who spent four years proving its safety. No effect on enamel. Say good-bye to stained teeth! Get Bleachodent Combination today, at all good dealers, such as C. G. Anderson, Bulger's Pharmacy, Herche's Drug Store, Hodson's Drug Store, Carnahan-Gusken Drug Co., C. T. Larkins.

Mothers, Do This—

When the Children Cough, Rub Musterole on Throats and Chests

No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then's when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief. It does not blister.

As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Thousands of mothers know it. You should keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

DATE FIXED FOR FARM MEETING

Nominating Committee Will Present Ticket at Session.

The date of the annual meeting of the Columbiana County Farm bureau has been changed so that the meeting will now be held commencing at 10 o'clock the morning of January 17 in the Grand theater, Lisbon.

L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, has advised the Columbiana County Farm bureau officers that he will be in Lisbon to attend this meeting, leaving Columbus Friday evening before.

The nominating committee which met this week, will present its ticket at this meeting, although it may be augmented by other nominations from the floor of the meeting.

Officers to be voted upon for the 1925 term are:

President—John F. Kerr, C. W. Heim, O. O. Thomas.

Vice President—E. Y. Gamble, A. E. Bailey, Clark Thompson.

Secretary—Van J. Morris, L. H. Everett, H. H. Lang.

Treasurer—A. W. Noble, Jesse Potorff, E. H. Myers.

Women Directors, three to elect—Mrs. Leroy Frederick, Mrs. E. M. Farmer, Mrs. C. Q. Gonzales, Mrs. Sidney Cope, Mrs. Thurman Underwood.

Delegates to the State Convention, three to elect—Ellsworth Rice, Frank Bowman, E. N. Hiekman, J. V. Wilms, Dallas Hahn.

Soon after the annual meeting is called to order, President John McB. Kerr will read his annual report. Former County Agent Clarence E. Rowland will also attend this meeting and he will read a combined report of the activity of all agencies associated with the county organization.

Various townships will put on the entertainment features. The address of Mr. Palmer will feature the work of the state organization, and he is expected to also mention some legislation that is expected to be enacted at the present session at Columbus that will be helpful to the farm interests of the state.

Columbiana

Columbiana High School basketball teams won two games Friday night in the home gym from Monaca High school, a fair-sized crowd viewing games. The local boys won 30 to 18. Coach McKain's boys did not display their real ability, due perhaps to some extent to the injection of subs several times. The Monaca boys were in poor physical condition and took time out repeatedly and also made frequent substitutions. Metz played a fine game at guard while Burkle and Rupert led in the scoring, each with ten points.

The girls home team won 44 to 12. Coach McKain using all his second string players at various times. The Monaca girls are playing basketball for the first time this season and accordingly displayed little knowledge of the game. Capt. Gleckler, as usual, was the Columbiana star, making seventeen points, even though she played almost half of the game at guard. Lower played her best game of the season and W. Mitchell guarded well.

Coach R. E Knesal and his East Palestine squad scouted the game as they play both Columbiana and Monaca later in the season.

The New Year's night bill of basketball was very interesting, the feature event being Miller Brothers win over the Tri-State Collegians by a score of 40 to 34, in their fastest game of the season. Graham played his best game this season, Anderson guarded well and Bob Marshall and "Buck" Burkle did well, playing in the absence of Hawkins and the illness of Hoover. Paul McKain, last year C. H. S. captain, played a wonderful guarding game for the Collegians.

In a preliminary game, the C. H. S. girls alumni team won from Fairfield Alumni girls by a score of 29 to 16.

Next Wednesday night Miller Bros. play the St. Aloysius Club of Youngstown, a team that gave them plenty of opposition last year.

C. R. Todd, who has been conducting a retail coal and ice business for several years, has sold out his business to Harry Oesch, who has moved from his farm east of town to the Fitzpatrick duplex on West Friend street. Mr. Todd has not announced his future plans.

TOTAL ECLIPSE OF SUN WILL OCCUR JAN. 24

Rare Sights for First Time in U. S. in 100 Years.

MOON'S JOURNEY

Scheduled for 9:10 a. m. in Most Eastern Cities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 8.—All traffic squads, attention! On the 24th of Jannary there will occur in the skies something that you probably will never see again—a total eclipse of the sun, in some places, and a partial eclipse over the greater part of the United States. Caution all drivers to go slowly.

If you live in a belt 100 miles wide and 5,000 miles long and flung from northern Minnesota across northern Wisconsin and Michigan, over the Great Lakes to New York, Long Island, Connecticut and Rhode Island, parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Massachusetts you will see the flaming son blotted out on the morning of the 24th.

Those who live near this path across the country—a path that ends at sunset near the north of Scotland—will see the sun shadowed in part.

Moon the Cause.

For the first time in more than a hundred years the moon will pass between the earth and the sun, throwing its shadow on our sphere. It is the first total eclipse of the sun visible in this section of the country since 1806.

This eclipse will be total in Duluth, Buffalo, New York city, New Haven and many other large cities in this part of the country. The partial eclipse will be very large, nearly total, in some of the largest cities in the United States, including Boston, Providence, Albany, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Chicago. Even as far south as New Orleans, and as far west as St. Louis and Omaha, the partial eclipse will be large.

The total eclipse in New York city will take place about 9:10 a. m., and the time of the greatest eclipse for most of the cities in the east that keep Eastern Standard time will vary but a few minutes from this time. The partial eclipse will begin about 8 o'clock in the same section, and the eclipse will be over about half-past ten.

Solar Corona Seen.

The brighter stars and planets, and also the beautiful solar corona that the astronomer is so anxious to study, appear. This is a magnificent halo of pearly light extending to a great distance from the sun, and different in shape and appearance at every eclipse. It is never visible except during a total solar eclipse and can be studied only at that time.

Those who find themselves within the path of total eclipse should look for the shadow bands—wavy bands of light and shade that flit over the landscape and buildings just before and after the total eclipse. Also, they should look out for the interesting phenomenon known as "Baily's Beads," which are seen as the thin, thread-like solar crescent breaks up into beads of light as the total eclipse is about to begin, and which are seen again just as it ends.

Glowing Gases.

Look, also for the scarlet solar prominence during the total eclipse, which are flames of glowing gases of hydrogen and helium rising from the hidden surface of the moon to heights of thousands of miles and visible beyond the edge of the moon in queer forms and shapes.

The brighter stars and planets appear during the total eclipse and even a little before and after it. The three planets, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter, should be seen in a close group some distance to the southwest of the sun.

Although the event of this one day dwarfs all others by comparison in the January skies, it must be remembered that in midwinter the evening skies are at their best, the American Nature Association points out. There are more brilliant stars in view than at any other time of the year.

Strange to say, many people fail to notice how greatly the stars differ in color. Nearly everyone is aware that the planet Mars is decidedly red, but how many know the colors of the first-magnitude stars? Over in the southwest this month one will have a good study in star colors. Take the constellation of Orion alone. There is Rigel, blue-white in color, a perfect "diamond in the sky;" and Betelgeuse, in the same constellation, is a deep red—a ruby, rather than a diamond, of the sky. There is Aldeberan, the "eye of the bull," another deep red star in the Hyades, a little to the northwest of Orion, in Taurus.

As an example of a perfectly white star there is Beta Tauri, which is at the tip of one of the horns of Taurus and directly south of Auriga and north of Orion. Procyon, in Canis Minor, the Lesser Dog, is yellowish-white; and Sirius, in Canis Major, the Greater Dog, following close on the heels of Orion, is white in color.

PIMPLES SPREAD ALL OVER FACE

Itched and Burned Badly. Cuticura Healed.

"I was troubled with blackheads and pimples which soon spread all over my face. The pimples were hard and very large, and itched and burned so badly that I could not sleep. My face looked awful.

"I used several remedies but they did not help me. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped me so I purchased more, and after using about four cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and a half boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." Mrs. J. H. Collins' Family Claims New Sunday School Mark

Mrs. J. H. Collins, whose address is R. F. D. No. 2, East Liverpool, claims to have a record for Sunday school attendance in her family that is far superior to that of the family of Lewis M. Andric, 920 Florence street.

Walter A. Collins, her eldest son, has 12 years' perfect attendance to his record; Rodney, another son, and May, a daughter, each have attended Sunday school for ten years without missing. Mrs. Collins, the mother, has not missed for nine years. The total attendance of the four members of the family is 4 years as compared to 24 years recorded by the four members of the Andric family.

The Collins family attends the Methodist Episcopal church and have books presented from year to year, in recognition of their faithful attendance.

Weakening Night Coughing Banished Very Simple Way

It is really astonishing how a persistent, exasperating cough that has kept you awake night after night, and is rapidly wearing you down is usually stopped short by a very simple method. Hundreds have found that they can sleep the whole night through undisturbed often the first time they try it.

The method is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. Getting at the cause like this, in a perfectly simple way, it stops the spells almost instantly, you get your best night's rest perhaps in weeks, and in a very short time the whole cough condition is gone.

This simple treatment is splendid not only for coughs and chest colds, but also for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and almost every kind of throat irritation, including children's spasmodic croup. Very economical too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. On sale at all good druggists. Ask for

Its Greatest Values Cannot Be Copied

The Chassis is Patented

As its Coach Body changed the whole trend to closed cars, so the Essex Chassis likewise forecasts the mechanical design of the future.

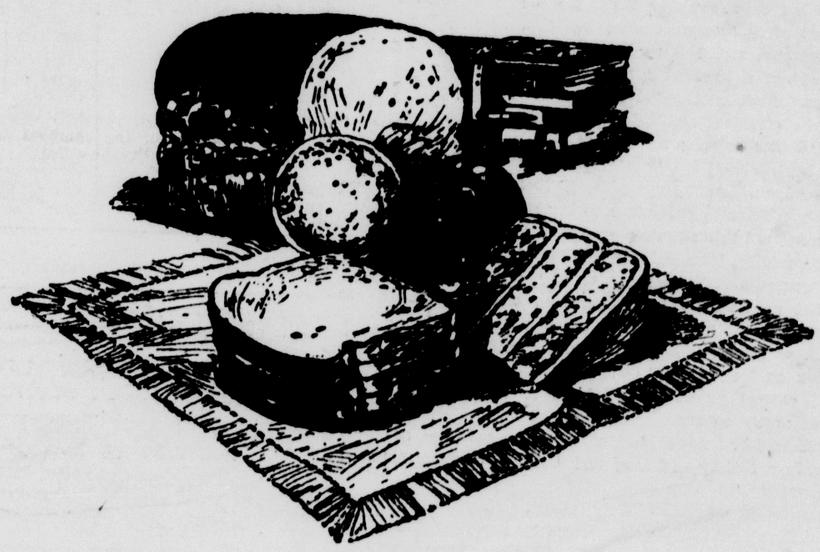

Essex provides stability without unnecessary weight. It has economy without sacrifice of performance.

It is low priced without disappointment in looks or reliability.

It is more than up-to-date in design. It is in advance of any car with which its price can be compared.

In quality Hudson and Essex are alike. The patents which make the Super-Six the most enduring, smoothest motor and give it all advantages sought in eight cylinders, prevent any from copying its chassis as has been so generally done in copying the Coach body.

Take Care of School Children's Diet

THE boy or girl in school, particularly in high school, should have a diet high in energy building food. The continuous mental effort they put forth demands it.

When you prepare their luncheon see that the predominant food is good bread—BETSY ROSS Bread. There are so many ways to make attractive, appetizing sandwiches that the noon day lunch requires little else—fruit perhaps, and an occasional slice of cake or pastry.

By giving them an ample supply of BETSY ROSS, you give them the energy they need, for a pound of BETSY ROSS contains 38% of all the energy the body needs.

But, remember "There's a difference in bread"—select yours wisely and be sure of high food value. Don't say "bread"—say BETSY ROSS.

Mary Bliss opened her eyes swiftly, "I thought it was he coming to see!" she said in a terrified whisper.

"No, no," Karesia soothed. "All he wanted was to keep you from being ill as you were this afternoon. Don't you remember how you frightened me? He is the father of that pretty girl you like, and my friend. You must not be afraid of him."

The woman reached and caught her hand. "You won't let him come in here? You won't?" she begged pitifully.

With a resolute effort Karesia borrowed some of Dascome's firmness. "Not if you will go to sleep. Try to go to sleep now and I promise no one shall come near you. Then in the morning you can talk to the pretty girl."

"I will," Mary Bliss promised humbly. Her twisted mouth quivered. "You're so good to me—to that girl, too, but I'm afraid he'll hurt you. I'm afraid——"

"Don't be afraid, dear," Karesia repeated. "Now go to sleep."

She stayed a few minutes, smoothed Mary Bliss' hair and held her hand, as one would with a frightened child, and, when the woman said that she wasn't frightened any more, she left her. Dascome was standing in the glazed room, looking at the lights on Rossiter Hill. Evidently Rossiter was not sleeping; here were two men looking at each other across a black gulf.

But he smiled at Karesia she she came in. "She has not had another attack?"

"No, just frightened—she is always frightened."

"I can stay only a few minutes, but please be comfortable while I am here. Lie back on the couch and put your feet up—you look ill."

He piled the cushions behind her, then took the Russian shawl of many colors from the foot of the couch and laid it over her, his hand touching her cheek as he folded it back from her face. Then he closed the doors into the next room and they were in partial gloom.

He stood looking down at her. "You thought I was brutal to that woman. I am sorry," he said abruptly.

"I didn't understand at first—I do now," Karesia protested. "You meant that she should not have one of those attacks, and you had to act quickly."

"And apparently brutally," he appended. "There is certainly something seriously wrong with that woman. I think that probably she has been ill-treated, as you said this evening, and her brain dulled, but I believe her main trouble is hysteria. The sort of fit into which she was throwing herself is dangerous, and I know that a shock will sometimes divert a hysterical patient and prevent convulsions. That is why I did as I did. I don't want you to be afraid of me." Dascome's deep voice had deepened into appeal; as if most people feared him and it hurt.

"Sit down here by me, please," Karesia said impulsively. When he was close to her she said softly: "You must not think that, ever. When I see anything done forcefully, I am a little frightened. I get very angry sometimes, but I am a timid woman, really." She felt an uncontrollable desire to comfort him; there was something desolate about the man. "Do you know what I thought that first evening, almost as soon as I saw you?"

"I cannot guess. You'll have to tell me," he said as softly as she.

"That I had never met a man who gave me so instantly a feeling of liking and trust, of confidence and security."

Dascome was absolutely silent. Karesia felt rather than saw that he was swept by emotion; that he was scarlet and tongue-tied. She was startled; never in her life had she said anything with an honester intent. She flushed in confusion. "So you see, I was not afraid to entrust even my precious paintings to you," she added with a poor attempt at lightness.

He seemed to have found his voice at last, and it was toneless. "I shall try to deserve your trust."

The unemotional words relieved her embarrassment. She had stirred him deeply, without meaning to do it; the man had tremendous self-control. He went on: "There is something I have wanted to say; you have already suffered a deal of annoyance because of me and my family. If ever my being in your house should make it embarrassing for you, I want you to tell me, and I shall go instantly and without any financial loss to you. I haven't words to thank you for your kindness to that poor child in there—and to me. I have traveled this world over pretty well—I have never met a woman who is more genuinely a woman than you are. You deserve happiness."

Karesia was thankful for the dimness, for the tears stood in her eyes. He knew; he was thinking of Rossiter when he said that. "Thank you," she said. "You are sitting in your home now. It is my house and I want you here." She hesitated, then, "Mr. Dascome, I want to ask you something, and I know you will not misunderstand me. Is your daughter in love with Randsome Rossiter?"

"Yes—completely so."

"And—he?"

"I think not. Not now. He met her in New York and she did not give him her right name. She knew who he was, she had seen him on the stage when she was a child—Clarice has the theater in the very marrow of her bones. She intrigued him. She met him several times, but she would not tell him who she was. He thought her a French girl—she speaks French perfectly. There is no doubt that he was interested in her, fascinated for the time being and devotedly attentive. He told her about Hollywood and the studios here and about his home here. Clarice understood that he was unmarried. Then, suddenly, he failed to keep an appointment and Clarice learned that he had left for Hollywood.

"Clarice was with the woman who has been her teacher and nominal guardian for a number of years. I was in Los Angeles on business. First I received a telegram from Clarice that she was coming out here to me; then in a few days she came. She told me she wanted to go into pictures. The child has it in her, and she would screen wonderfully. I was only too glad that she was interested—she would be a great deal safer here than in New York, and not idle. So we came to the Hollywood Hotel.

Duchess Seeks Leader for Scottish Clan on This Side of Atlantic

The Duchess of Portland, wife of one of the wealthiest peers of England, is coming to America to seek the senior member of the Scottish clan of Dallas. The death of the Duchess' father, Thomas Dallas-York, leaves the leadership of the clan unclaimed, and she believes she can find the rightful heir to the title on this side of the water.

General Tire Co. Chief Hits British Tax Burden on Auto

Interest on both sides of the Atlantic has been attracted by a statement recently made by William O'Neil, president of The General Tire & Rubber company, Akron, in a recent public address in which he criticised the tax burden placed by the British government on the automobile, and analyzed the failure of the motor car industry to develop in England. "A grave economic mistake is being made," declares Mr. O'Neil.

In England it costs nearly $500 a year in taxes alone to own and operate a car of the Ford class, and from there on up. Such an imposition makes it impossible for automobiles to come into popular use. The car industry is practically at a standstill in England,—a country with 2,000,000 unemployed men. It is strange that the British government has never seemed to sense a connection between the two,—nor sensed a cure for her industrial illness.

If a similar tax burden were placed on the manufacture and use of automobiles in America today, the industry would practically stop. America should have immediately some 5,000,000 unemployed, and that number would increase to 20,000,000 in six months. England stands in her own light, in her attitude toward the automobile.

If the taxes on car owning and operating were abolished or lowered to a minimum and the purchase and use of cars were thus encouraged, there would be a startling decrease in unemployment at once. There would be more and larger car makers, with many more employees, more agents and salesmen; more garages and repairman; more handling of gasoline, tires and accessories, and thus the unemployed would be put at work. Wages would be created, every kind of business would be stimulated and government revenues from other sources would quickly increase to an amount much greater than the sum now derived from the various automobile taxes. As the situation now stands, the British throttle this great potential source of prosperity before it has a chance to function.

1925 World Almanac, Indispensable Annual, Is Better Than Ever

America's standard annual is now in its fortieth year. The World Almanac and Book of Facts for 1925, just published, has promptly fallen into its accustomed place as the one indispensable book of reference ready at your hand. Ask the question, here's the answer.

Compressed into its 900 pages is the history of the United States and of the whole world, in fact, for 1924. The index points the way to a million facts. The multitude of carefully revised tabulated statistics are up to date, as are all its well-tested familiar features.

Essential facts that every one must have before him whereby he may form his judgment on the big problems of 1924-1925, are here—from reparations and the Dawes plan to the balance sheet of the American farmer; from the air flects of the great powers to the enforcement of the prohibition law, from the immigration law to the income tax. The aim of the editor is accuracy in collection of these facts; terseness in handling them, and accessibility in presenting them.

As a hand-book of politics and public affairs it is unequaled. The record of the presidential year is given for all time in the 48 pages of election returns by states, the popular and the electoral votes in the last nine campaigns, and, further, in the reports of the national conventions, with the three party platforms in full. As many pages are needed also for the records of the great sporting events of the year.

It is a mine of information for the busy man.

The World Almanac is published by The New York World. Price, 50 cents postpaid. Readers who appreciate the advantage of keeping the series on their book shelves will welcome the cloth bound copies published at 90 cents.

Exciting Experience.

POMEROY.—Mr. and Mrs. Victor Waelchli and infant enroute here from Northwest, Pa., in an auto, were pinned under their car which left an icy road near here. They remained imprisoned for a considerable time in the bitter cold. The parents were quite badly hurt but the child was not harmed.

Forty-Niners Pass Bonanza.

Although any Forty-niner who made good in the gold rush to California in 1849 had no bone to pick with his fate, it is a comment that many of them and their brothers who were not so successful walked right over a rich bonanza in the southern part of Mexico, along the Isthmus of Janama over which many of them trekked. Along the river of the Winding Snake many Forty-niners walked on their way to the Pacific Coast, little knowing that later prospectors would find a rich field of oil beneath their feet.

Suburban railways in and about Cape Town, South Africa, are to be electrified.

facts about Child-birth

IT has been proven conclusively that much of the suffering, pain and dread experienced during expectancy, as well as at child-birth is entirely unnecessary.

An eminent physician, Dr. J. H. Holmes, expert in this science, first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend," which aids the muscles and tissues to expand more easily, during the constant readjustment, month after month, right up to the climax of child-birth.

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally. Three generations of expectant mothers have used it. "Pains disappeared in two days after using 'Mother's Friend,'" writes a user. "I owe my life to 'Mother's Friend,'" declared another. Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did, start today and experience the wonderful comfort it will give you.

Walker Fails In His Effort to Lift McTigue's Title

Runyon Says

Metoquah Wins Some Titles.
Is Now Champion of Two Americas.
The Old Globe Trotter Writes.
Hays Dixon Greatest Bantam.
McCoy Could Have Licked Firpo.

By DAMON RUNYON.

CHIEF METOQUAH writes.

Metoquah is a tall, skinny fellow from Hutchinson, Kansas who has been winning heavyweight titles in Central and South America.

Metoquah claims he is an American Indian. He is quite swarthy and has a Dixie accent. Mike O'Dowd, the former middleweight champion of the world, first brought him East, if memory serves.

Later Metoquah was in Jess Willard's training camp.

That was when Willard was attempting his famous "come-back." He "came back" far enough to whip Floyd Johnson, but fell before Luis Angel Firpo.

The writer saw Metoquah in Leiperville, Pa., on the baronial premises of Mr. Dougherty. "The Baron of Leiperville." At that time Metoquah was training with George Godfrey, poetically known as "The Black Shadow of Leiperville."

Leiperville is a place of much pugilistic romance and tradition. You should see it. Godfrey told the writer that Chief Metoquah had an excellent left hand, but he wasn't sure how the Chief could "take it."

Afterwards Chief Metoquah came to New York and knocked out a young man named Haines in Madison Square Garden with his excellent left hand.

Then the Chief went to Cuba and knocked out somebody there. He was with Jack Dempsey for a short time in Florida as a sparring partner. Next he returned to Cuba and was in turn knocked out by somebody in two rounds. Then he faded into the silences.

The Chief's letter is written from Cristobal, in the Canal Zone, in a neat hand. He says he knocked out Ben Johnson, heavyweight champion of Peru in twelve rounds.

This was a slight business error on the part of the Chief. There was no one else in Peru for him to fight. He had to go to Panama. There he beat one King Solomon for the championship of Central America in fifteen rounds.

Following this exploit, the Chief knocked out one Gunboat Smith in six rounds.

This Gunboat Smith must not be confused with the original Gunboat Smith, a real good heavyweight of some years back. The original Gunboat Smith now works for Tex Rickard at Madison Square Garden, and you may hear his voice in front of the ticket windows on the night of a fight yelling, "Get in line, there!"

The original Gunboat Smith has a very loud voice. He was a heavy hitter, knocking out opponents by slugging them back of the ear. He fought Dempsey a four-rounder when Dempsey was first rising to fame. He hit Dempsey back of the ear and Dempsey didn't know whether he was afoot or horseback for a couple of hours.

That is real hard hitting.

The Gunboat Smith who was knocked out by Chief Metoquah is a chap who has been fighting in Central and South America for some years.

He once fought Luis Angel Firpo. There is no record of his activities in the United States.

Metoquah says he is coming back to New York after another stop in Cuba. He says he went away to acquire more experience, a statement which would indicate that the Chief has some intelligence.

He is a good boxer, no doubt of that. The question remains; can he "take it?" That is most important.

You need not smile at Metoquah's titles, heavyweight champion of Peru

Welter Champion, However, Is Given Popular Decision

Wins Clean Lead Over Heavier Opponent in Eight of the 12 Rounds; Mike Takes Three as he Fights Defensive Battle.

By Tom Thorp.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 8.—Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, gained a clean-cut decision over Mike McTigue, light heavyweight title holder, in a fast and furious 12-round bout at the Sussex armory last night.

Walker had a clean lead on his heavier opponent in eight of the 12 rounds. The fifth was even, while McTigue was given credit for the sixth, seventh and eighth. In all of the others Walker displayed superior fighting ability.

It could be no more than a popular decision, for the Jersey law permits no other. Walker could have added another title only by a knockout.

Walker gained the popular decision by carrying the fight to his adversary from the opening of the final gong. The weights were: Walker, 149½; McTigue, 160.

McTigue attempted to fight a defensive battle. His work was of the inferior sort. Time and again when Walker wanted to carry at a fast pace he was stopped by McTigue's holding on.

Walker scored the greater number of blows and most of these had strength behind them. It was only at rare intervals that McTigue came back. Because of his aggressive tactics Walker piled up points until nothing but a knockout could have won in the closing rounds for McTigue.

Carrying the fight to his adversary tired Walker.

He kept pummeling McTigue's head and body. Few of these blows, toward the close of the fight, carried any real steam behind them. However they were of sufficient importance to gain the popular decision for Walker. He was roundly cheered as he made his way out of the ring to his dressing room.

FREMONT GETS OPENING DATE

Short Ship to be Approved by Stewards Jan. 23.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—Stewards of the Ohio Short Ship Circuit were to return to Cleveland January 23 to iron out difficulties in schedule-making left after yesterday's meeting at which a tentative schedule of trotting and pacing events throughout the circuit was drawn up.

The season will open at Fremont May 25. Canton gets the week of June 8, Mansfield August 3 and either Marion or Akron the week of June 1. The weeks beginning June 15 and July 6 were assigned to Cranwood and July 16 to Brooklyn.

Changes in rules made by the stewards of the Grand Circuit were ratified.

A banquet designed to bring together 500 Ohio horsemen will be one of the features of the adjourned meeting Jan. 23.

Phillies Learn Art Of Getting to First

The Philadelphia Nationals led the National League last year in being hit by pitched balls. No great honor can be attached to the distinction but the fact, as revealed in statistics of the outfit for 1924, is interesting for one reason. That is because Art Fletcher, crafty leader of the Phils, is a past master himself at stopping pitched balls with his body, thereby earning free transportation to first base.

Fletcher led the league season after season in being the victim supposedly unwilling, of wild pitches.

The fact of the matter was however, that Fletcher had reduced the art of getting hit to a science.

He stood close to the plate when batting. Pitchers tried to scare him back by hooking them to the inside of the plate. This was what Fletcher wanted. He would apparently turn away to escape the ball but would fail to dodge it. The ball would hit his left arm, raised to protect his head, or glanced off his shoulder. Rarely was he severely hurt, so adept was he at the game. Can it be that he has taught his Philly regulars the art?

Pacific Coast Star Has to Show Robbie

When Outfielder Cox of the Portland Pacific coast league club reports to Uncle Robbie, Brooklyn Dodger boss, next spring, the westerner will have to step some to convince Robbie that he has the goods. Through no fault of Cox's either. The outfielder comes to the Dodgers as the memory of two dismal failures purchased from the same coast league club, lingers with Robinson and Owner Ebbetts. They willingly paid $50,000 for Pitcher Yarrison and Infielder Johnny Jones last year, only to see both prove themselves spring bloomers. Both have been shifted back to the minors.

Cox, however, seems to be a more staple article. His work with Portland was more consistent than flashy. He joins the Dodgers at the right time. Tommy Griffith, diligent rightfielder, is feeling the effects of his years of service. Cox will be given every opportunity to prove that he can hold down the berth.

LIVELY TRADE SESSIONS LOOM

National League Clubs Said to Be Unusually Active.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Dame Rumor has it that there will be considerable trading between clubs of the National League before the training season begins.

With the exception of Pittsburgh and Chicago, the clubs in the older organization have done little to strengthen themselves. At the joint meeting of the two leagues here practically all the trading was done by American League managers.

The clubs which are most anxious to complete a deal of some sort are Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Boston. The magnates of the latter two clubs realize that they must get out of the second division or face financial disaster, while the good burghers of Porkville yearn for a return to the pennant-winning days.

The Phillies and the Braves, strangely enough, plan to get new players from the Reds. Cincinnati is said to be willing to part with Fanseca, Caveney and Bohne, all infielders.

Jack Hendricks is casting wistful eyes on "Stuffy" McInnis, Boston's veteran first baseman. Bancroft also might part with Cotton Tierney, the second baseman, and Mickey O'Neill, the lively backstop.

Bancroft and Fletcher both announce that they plan completely to reorganize their teams. Which of their players Hendricks would be willing to accept in trade, however, is not known. The Cincinnati manager would like to bring Jimmy Ring back into the Redland fold, but he is the one player whom Fletcher wants to keep.

The only solution for Philadelphia and Boston is to loosen up on the bankroll for new talent, a procedure extremely distasteful to both.

The Giants will, in all probability, present an unchanged line-up this season. McGraw still has the best team in the National League, and knows it.

He has no intention of trading Bill Terry to Cincinnati unless he gets Donohue or Ed Roush in return.

In the American League there has been considerable activity in the trading mart, with the Yankees, the Senators and the Browns in the limelight. Stanley Harris, the "boy manager," set a precedent by acquiring old players instead of young ones to strengthen the champions. With Vean Gregg, Dutch Ruether and Stanley Coveleskie added to the payroll, the Washington club will look like an old men's home, yet the pitching effectiveness of the staff which they augment has other clubs a bit worried.

Can't Beat the Finns.

High Cagers Take First Trip of Year Tomorrow

St. Stephens Passers Lose to Ford Motors

On the St. Stephen's floor last night the Ford Motors defeated the St. Stephen's basketball tossers by the score of 41 to 28.

The St. Stephen's aggregation played good basketball but was outclassed by the superior playing of the Motors. No one starred individually for the Fords and all figured in the scoring.

Webb for the St. Stephen's five was the scoring ace of the game, while Mackey and Sayre also performed well for the St. Stephen's passers.

Lineup and summary:

Ford Motors		St. Stephens
Vail	F	Webb
McDevitt	F	Hancock
Canne	C	Mackey
Patton	G	Sayre
Bromby	G	Pennybaker

Field goals—Patton 5, Vail 4, McDevitt 3, Canne 4, Bromby 3, Webb 7, Mackey 2, Sayre 2.

Foul goals — Vail, McDevitt 2, Webb 3, Mackey 2.

Referee—Davies.

Clash With Warren School Quintet; Meet Bethany Freshmen Passers on Local Floor Saturday Night.

For the first time this season, East Liverpool high school cagers will leave the home court tomorrow night. They are scheduled to mix with the Warren scholastic quintet at Warren in the first of two contests between the two teams.

One other out of town engagement originally had been billed for the Blue and White, but this game, with New Castle, was called off by the Pennsylvanians.

The Warren clash will furnish a severe test. And on Saturday night there will be another when the Bethany Freshmen appear on the local court.

These two contests mark the beginning of hard work for Boone's boys. They will be at it constantly for the remainder of the season, or up until the tournament, playing one and sometimes two games a week. The games that might be classified as easy, if any, are few and far between.

What appears at the present time as the outstanding clash of the season is scheduled for February 13 with New Philadelphia at East Liverpool.

Lindstrom Learning Now What Fame Means

Freddy Lindstrom, young Giant infielding star, now realizes even more clearly than he did last fall, what fame means. Freddy knew it meant something when he heard the plaudits of 40,000 wild bugs ringing in his ears and then cashed a check for several thousand berries as his share of the world's series divvy. But he got a more striking illustration the other day when he read about some enterprising person out west forging his name to a worthless check.

As Freddy himself remarks, a year or so ago it would have been hard to find a bank teller who had ever heard of him.

M'EWAN COACH OF ARMY TEAM

Named to Direct Cadets for Another Season.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—Captain John E. McEwan has been named as head coach of the army football team for another season, it was learned today. He served in that capacity in 1923 and 1924, and was a line coach before that. McEwan was named all-American center by Walter Camp in 1916.

Fonseca and Caveney Doomed to Pass Out

Louis Fonseca and Jimmy Caveney, both youngsters in baseball, seem destined to pass out of the photo at an early date, the victims of Fate.

When the two joined the Cincinnati team a few years ago they were destined to take their places in the Red lineup and hold them for years.

Caveney was a wonderful fielder, fast on his feet, a good thrower and a heady player. Fonseca seemed a star in the making.

Then Caveney's legs failed to stand up under the pounding an infielder's legs receive day after day.

Fonseca found himself chased constantly by old man Joe Hoodoo. Louis would get his chance in the infield, go like great guns for a few days and then come a cropper by injuring himself.

All Star Team Needs Layden and Crowley

"Red" Grange opines that an All-American football team which doesn't include Jim Crowley and Elmer Layden of Notre Dame isn't complete. Which ought to settle the argument. Grange ought to have some ideas on the subject of good football players. He's the best in the game right now, if not the greatest of all time.

NURMI PLANS TO LIVE IN U. S.

Human Thoroughbred May Revive Interest in Track.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Paavo Nurmi, the greatest of human thoroughbreds, is planning to make his home in America. Like his good friends and compatriots, Hannes Kolehmainen and Willie Ritola, Nurmi finds this country much to his temperamental taste. If he does go back to Finland it will be for a short time. The western germ has taken a firm hold.

It wasn't until the great Olympic champion found himself at home on an indoor track that he began to consider the idea of settling here. Now that he finds indoor racing to his liking his mind is half made up. A group of influential Finns is working on the other half.

His friends made no secret of the fact that Nurmi was a little nervous about running indoors when he first came over. It was a new experience for him. The king of the outdoors shied at the stuffy armories. For a while he even considered returning to Finland without running here at all.

Paavo was offered all sorts of opportunities and jobs, but he turned them all down. He elected to wait and see. He waited but a short time and saw that indoor running was not nearly so hard as he imagined. And then the cold snap came along, which made him feel at home all the more.

Nurmi's main occupation at present is to groom himself for the indoor season. When he isn't out on the track he sleeps. And when he isn't doing that he eats plenty of white bread and fish that isn't dry.

Nurmi has made remarkable progress in his indoor workouts. At first he experienced a little difficulty in breathing. But he has overcome that. On his present form he should have little trouble winning all his races here.

Whether he leaves this country or stays, Nurmi's visit will have a more far-reaching effect upon distance running in America than all the campaigns which have been launched in its behalf since the sport began to die an unnatural death.

Nurmi hopes to show athletic aspirants that distance running is quite as much an art as, and even more spectacular than, the much overplayed sprints. He expects to show them that distance running is not drudgery except when it is not well done. He will show them how to do it well.

America has not fared so well in long-distance events at the Olympic games because United States runners talked themselves into the belief that they couldn't compete with Finland. The reasons advanced were that the Finns, living in a colder climate and feeding on black bread and dried fish, are naturally trained for endurance.

That endurance is not a matter of geography or climate may be proved by America as soon as its athletes take up distance running in a serious way. The material is here. All the athletes need is a little more training and a little more perseverance.

NURMI BOOKED FOR MORE RACES

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—Paavo Nurmi, who set three world's records at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night, will run in Chicago, Boston, New York and Baltimore during ensuing weeks, it was learned today. His next appearance will be at the Garden next Thursday night in a three mile team race against the country's leading distance runners. Then he will go to Chicago to participate in the Illinois A. C. games.

His entry in the Millrose A. C. games in New York, the Boston A. A. tournament in Boston and the Johns Hopkins college meet in Baltimore is expected.

FIRPO AT LOSS AMONG ENGLISH

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, looking for a London match with Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, was up bright and early today searching for Spanish friends living in London. He was at considerable loss on his arrival yesterday when he missed connections with them and faced an English speaking metropolis with but a few words of ammunition.

Firpo intends to have a conference today with "Peggy" Bettinson, head of the National Sporting club, over the prospective Gibbons match.

Howard Shanks Ready To Start 13th Year

Howard Shanks, veteran utility player recently traded to the Yanks for Mike McNally, is waiting to start his thirteenth year in the big show. He has set an unusual record. For 12 years he has remained in fast company despite the lack of a good batting eye. Only once in his career has he hit .300 or over for the season. That was in 1921, when he socked the ball for a .302 average.

The rest of the time his average has been around two dollars and a half.

Shanks has played the outfield and all infield positions in his career. His value lies in his ability to step into ony one's shoes and play a dependable game afield while adding strength to the team through his keen baseball brain.

Because of a shortage of bristles in Russia and China, Germany's brush industry is facing stagnation.

LANDIS WILLING TO TELL PUBLIC ABOUT SCANDAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—Promise that he will make public testimony in the case which resulted in the banishment of Jimmy O'Connell and "Cozy" Dolan, of the Giants, from organized baseball is made in a letter received by New York baseball writers today from Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

The Commissioner promised, it was stated, that O'Connell's testimony will be made public within a few days. It has been withheld since last October, when Henry sand, of the Phillies, charged he had been offered a bribe "not to bear down" against the Giants, then in the thores of a hectic pennant struggle.

and Central America. We have pugilists claiming championships over much less territory than that.

The same mail brings a letter from another fistic tourist of more fame, of more scope than Chief Metoquah.

He is Jack Grace, the old Globe Trotter of Fistiana. He toured those regions just covered by Metoquah long before the Chief was born.

Jack Grace is a great character. He was once a boxer, also variously a promoter and manager of boxers. He is a restless soul, always on the go. The writer has encountered him in many different places, and Jack is usually just starting for somewhere else.

Wanderlust is in his blood. His feet are constantly itching for travel. Many men are that way. The old adage says "a rolling stone gathers no moss." Jack Grace has at least gathered experience, worldly wisdom. He has had his thrills. He has done the thing he wanted to do; therefore he is to be envied.

Grace writes from Chicago. The letter is dated Christmas Day.

He reflects on other Christmas Days in his fifty-some-odd years of life.

Sydney in 1902, where it was very hot. Johannesburg, South Africa, in 1903, where it was just comfortably warm. Buenos Aires in 1904—blistering weather. Calcutta in 1905, with the temperature about 70.

In Chicago as he wrote, he says, it was real old-fashioned Christmas weather—snowy and cold.

His real purpose in writing is to give his opinion of the greatest bantam of all time. The writer's recent article on this subject has produced a surprising amount of correspondence.

Heine Rafael, manager of Frankie Neil, the California bantam, who held the world's title, wrote a long letter holding that Neil could not be overlooked.

Jack Grace does not agree that Neil was a GREAT bantam. He says he saw Joe Bowker, the Englishman, box Neil at the National Sporting Club in London in 1905, that Bowker was far from being an Attell, a McGovern, or a Billy Plimmer, yet he easily beat the American.

All Neil had, Grace says, was a long left hook to the body.

Grace names as his selection of all-time greatest bantam, George Dixon, a wisp of a colored boy, who was known as "Little Chocolate."

"When Dixon beat Nunc Wallace and the late Cal McCarthy, he scaled only 116 pounds," says Grace.

"Another wonder was little Jimmy Barry, who never scaled over 112-13 pounds, and who took on such stars as Sammy Kelly and Billy Rotchford, giving them five and seven pounds. Barry is here in Chicago working at the City Hall."

(The original article on the great bantams named Barry with Coulon and Herman, the name of Kid Williams being later added by Charles Mathison, the veteran boxing expert.)

The writer fears Grace is getting old. He shows it in his reflections on the greatness of the old-time fighters. It is a sure sign.

He says the year 1924 failed to develop a legitimate opponent for Dempsey. He seems somewhat disgusted by Gene Tunney's failure to stop Jeff Smith in their fifteen-round battle at New Orleans.

"I can just picture Jeff Smith fighting Peter Maher, or Kid Carter, or my old pal, Kid McCoy," says Jack. "All of them were terrific punches. McCoy could always do 160 pounds in his prime.

"McCoy would have tamed Firpo, the Wild Bull, in a few rounds. He is too slow and too easy to hit. Tommy Gibbons is a great boxer and has everything but the real knockout wallop. I'm going to Hot Springs, Ark., to conduct a boxing school at the Fordyce Baths in January."

WOOSTER OPENS WITH B-W CAGERS

WOOSTER, Jan. 8.—Wooster college will open the 1925 collegiate schedule here Thursday evening with the fast Baldwin-Wallace team for opposition. Coach Boles has packed a stiff battle for the opener. Last season Baldwin-Wallace had one of the best teams in the conference and has a veteran team on the floor this season.

Wooster basketball fans are anxiously waiting for this game to serve as a sort of a barometer of the strength of the Wooster court five for this season. Last year Wooster's forwards were unable to locate the basket and the Wooster crew had a bad season. New material this season has given Wooster some men who were crack shots with the fresh five last year.

Love, Gee, Dodez and Langell are playing the forward positions. Pfeiffer, Wooster's best scorer last season, is to get back into the game soon. He has been out of the pre-season game due to a football injury.

Anderson and Starn are playing the center place and working at guards. Captain Hurst, Manly, Boxwell and McGlashan are the other defense men.

Fights This Week

Iron Man Stuff Fails To Keep Bell Going

Iron-man propensities aren't enough to hold a pitcher in the big show. Herman Bell, young righthander with the Cardinals last year can tell you that.

Bell was sent in against the Boston Braves in the first game of a double-header last July. He won the first game and asked—to be allowed to pitch the second. His request was granted and he won it. Now he has been released under option to the Milwaukee club of the American association. He served mostly as a relief hurler for the Cards. He pitched five complete games and was credited with a total of three victories.

Last Night's Fights

AT Newark, N. J.—Mickey Walker, Elizabeth, N. J., welterweight champion, won unofficial decision from Mike McTigue, New York, light heavyweight champion, 12 rounds; Bobby Barrett, Philadelphia, stopped Jack Rapparport, Newark, eighth round; Harry Martone, Jersey City, outpointed Charley Arthurs, Newark, ten rounds.

Tremaine is Headed For Crack at Martin

Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantamweight, is destined to get an early crack at Eddie Martin, new bantamweight champion, according to reports. If Tremaine is at his best when the pair meet Martin will be lucky to escape a knockout. But Tremaine probably will be off form. This is typical of Carl. Jimmy Dunn, astute manager of Tremaine, has built the lad up several times to a position where the title was within his grasp, only to have Carl fight like an amateur on the big night. A crushing defeat would send his stock flopping to the bottom again.

He'd Be Useful.

Charley Rigoulat, Olympic light heavyweight lifting a champion, recently set a new world's record by lifting with two hands a bar weighing 336.2 pounds.

EAST END

REV. W. C. STOKES TO GIVE SERMON

Rev. W. C. Stokes, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, will preach this evening at the week of prayer services to be held in Free Methodist church. Rev. J. C. Campbell, pastor of the Second United Presgyterian church, spoke last evening in Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. These meetings are being largely attended.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASSES TO MEET

Members of class No. 13 of the Second Presbyterian church will meet this evening in the church parlors. Orchestra practice will also be held tonight.

Class No. 14 will hold an indoor picnic, business meeting and election of officers tomorrow evening in the church.

Prayer Meeting Held.

Prayer meeting services were held last evening in the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ in preparation for the revival campaign which will open in the church Sunday. Rev. Kaye of New Castle, Pa., will deliver the sermons.

Rev. A. J. Travis, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ, has submitted the following report for his third year as pastor to T. M. Fullerton, church clerk:

Additions 36, statement 2, letter 2, primary 92, total additions 92; funerals 25, lectures 35, sermons 165, amount raised for current expenses $3,219, amount for benevolences $129.80.

Texas Snake Gets Credit.

Dr. W. H. Ballou, speaking before the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., recently declared that a lizard that roamed thru Texas more than 25,000,000 years ago was the father of all snakes. It took more than 10,000,000 years for the lizard to become a snake, he said. A Patagonian serpent that flourished 8,000,000 years ago was the conclusion of this particular development in Dr. Ballou's opinion.

Rubber paving has proved a failure in parts of London and is being replaced by wood blocks.

AFTER LEAVING THE HOSPITAL

Was Weak and Miserable. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Auger's Strength

Lowell, Massachusetts. — "I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books that you send around and I felt very good after I had taken a couple of bottles of it. I had been in the Hospital and felt pretty well at first but I went down to nothing. I was weak and had to lie in bed almost all day. I had dizzy and faint spells, pains in my back and lower parts and was so nervous I could not bear my children around. I hope the Vegetable Compound helps other women as it did me. I do all my own work now and feel so well. I have told my friends about it and my sister and my aunt."—Mrs. OLIVE AUGER, 19 Howard Street Lowell, Massachusetts.

Over 200,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 out of every 100 of the replies say, "Yes" and because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women it should help you.

Reindeer More Than Pay for Alaska Buy; Big Herds Scattered

WASHINGTON. — Domesticated reindeer herds in Alaska are now worth $1,550,000 more than the United States paid to Russia in 1867 for the entire territory, the Bureau of Education announced in its annual report to the Secretary of the Interior.

Natives own the majority of the reindeer, which supply them with food, clothing and a livelihood. The industry has developed since 1892, when the bureau began to import the animals from Siberia.

Plans are under way now, the bureau report said, to establish cooperative marketing, so that reindeer products from the herds which are scattered throughout Alaska may be transported to market. The general consumption of reindeer meat throughout this country depends only on adequate transportation facilities, it was said.

CHESTER PASTOR DROPS DEAD

REV. H. O. MACDONALD, 52, IS STRICKEN AT PRAYER MEET IN HIS CHURCH

With Words, "I Will be Made Whole," on His Lips, he Collapses in Chair After Delivering Sermon and Dies in Arms of Wife, Who Rushed to his Assistance.

DEATH OCCURS AS CHOIR BEGINS TO SING PSALM, "ALMOST PERSUADED"

"I Never Felt Better in my Life," Pastor Tells Members of Family at Dinner Table Shortly Before Going to Church to Conduct Special Services.

With the words, "I will be made whole," the concluding sentence of a sermon on the text, "Thou Wilt Be Made Whole," on his lips, Rev. Herbert O. MacDonald, 52, died suddenly in the First Presbyterian church, Chester, at 8:50 o'clock last night.

Stricken with apoplexy as he asked Elder Samuel Newell to lead the prayer after the sermon, the pastor sat down in a chair, his head bowed as if in meditation, and supported himself by placing his hands on a piano nearby. He then nodded to George Hasson to begin the closing song, and looked appealingly toward Mrs. MacDonald, who occupied the second pew.

When the pastor failed to arise with the congregation to join in singing the psalm, "Almost Persuaded," Mrs. MacDonald, exclaiming "I believe Mr. MacDonald is ill," rushed to his side.

Rev. MacDonald then fell back in his wife's arms and died.

Son Calls For Doctor.

Stunned when the pastor was stricken, the choir stopped singing, and members of the congregation hurried to offer assistance to the clergyman.

Besides the pastor's wife, his daughter, Eunice, and son, Paul, were attending the services.

"Get a doctor for my daddy," screamed the boy, who ran toward the rear of the church when he sensed the situation. His sister had joined her mother in efforts to aid the father and husband.

Drs. C. A. Shafer and G. E. Lewis, of Chester, were called, but the minister lived but a few minutes after the physicians arrived.

Dazed by the suddenness of her husband's death, Mrs. MacDonald appeared as if she was swooning. Fellow parishoners immediately applied restoratives.

Born in Oil City, Pa.

Rev. MacDonald apparently had been in good health. At the dinner table, three hours before his death, he said to Mrs. MacDonald and his children, "I never felt better in my life."

Week of prayer was being observed

County Asks State Aid for Wellsville—East Liverpool Road

The county commissioners have applied to the state highway department for state aid in connection with the completion of the improvement of the Wellsville-East Liverpool road, known as inter-county Highway No. 7, between the Jethro fill and the eastern corporation line of Wellsville.

The commissioners seek the state's assistance in resurfacing that part of the road between the western end of the Jethro fill and the new bricked roadway, which was completed last summer, and also that stretch of the road between the western end of the new road and the Wellsville city limits, which is badly worn.

The city of Wellsville, during the coming summer, will resurface Wells avenue and Lisbon street, while East Liverpool will finish the West Eighth street improvement.

Coolidge Confers With Longworth on Legislative Plans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President Coolidge and Repreesntative Nicholas Longworth, in a conference at the White House today, mapped out legislative plans for the remainder of the 68th congress and discussed the possibility of organizing the 69th congress before adjournment of the present congress on March 4.

Longworth reported rapid legislative progress, especially with the appropriation bills for the next fiscal year, and said that administration leaders at the capitol could now see daylight ahead.

Man's Head Split Open by Axe Blow; Body Found in Alley

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8.—His head split open by a blow from an axe, the body of Fred L. James, an employe of the Ford Motor company, here, was found today in an alley in a negro section. He had been dead about four hours, police said.

The body was found by a negro, who notified the police.

DICE SHOOTERS ARE FINED $119

Five alleged participants in a crap game, arrested at the Walter Jackson restaurant, Jefferson street, by Chief of Police Hugh McDermott, yesterday afternoon, were fined a total of $119 by Mayor Charles Brown last night.

Jackson, who is alleged to have been the operator of the game, was assessed $50 and costs while each of the other four men, charged with being players, were fined $10 and costs each. Three of the quintet paid their fines, while the others made arrangements to settle.

MIDLAND CHIEF RE-APPOINTED

Chief of Police F. C. Creps, of Midland, last night was reappointed head of the borough police force by council.

His force will include the following officers: George Wick, G. A. Bleicher, Donald Allen, James Porter, Marshall Ackerw and David Lett, all re-appointed . Ackers and Leet are sergeants.

NEW ROAD OPEN TO RIVER TOWNS

An improved highway, eliminating the necessity of crossing the Ohio river, is now open between East Liverpool and Steubenville, it was announced by the Chamber of Commerce, today.

The best route to the Jefferson county metropolis is now via Wellsville, Yellow Creek, Hammondsville, straight through Hammondsville to New Somerset, over a new road, thence through Knoxville to Toronto on macadam highway. The road between Toronto and Steubenville is also hard surfaced, affording an improved route all the way.

The road through Chester and New Cumberland is not recommended at the present time because of the ferry crossing at the lower end of New Cumberland.

MAN INJURED WHEN ELEVATOR CABLE BREAKS

Charles E. Hanes, 54, Figures in Pottery Accident.

Car, Loaded With Ware, Drops 25 Feet.

Charles E. Hanes, 54, State street, warehouseman at the No. 2 plant of the Homer Laughlin China company, East End, is in the city hospital today suffering from a serious injury to the right knee and hand and arm lacerations, sustained about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the cable on an elevator on which he was riding broke.

Hanes had boarded the car at the first floor of the warehouse with a truckload of ware, which was being taken to one of the upper floors. When the elevator reached the third floor, the big steel cable holding it snapped under the strain, the car dropping 25 feet to the first floor.

Hanes' right leg was caught between the side of the elevator and the cable used in operating the lift, the bone being crushed at the knee. His hands were cut by broken dishes on the truck.

The injured man was taken to the hospital in the Sturgis ambulance. He was attended by Dr. C. R. Larkins.

Hanes is married and has three children.

Mayors and School Boards Join Hands In Relief Demands

COLUMBUS, Jan. 8.—With the view to strengthening their own fight for legislation designed to afford financial relief for municipalities officials of the newly organized State Association of Mayors and Other Municipal Authorities today are endeavoring to enlist the support of Ohio's school officials.

Fifty Ohio municipalities were represented at the conference here late Wednesday at which the association's emergency relief committee was instructed to "work with the school people" in their efforts to obtain authorization for either a new tax levy by school boards, to be collected next June, or to issue short term notes or bonds, in order to relieve the financial distress among schools.

Mayor Clayton C. Townes, Cleveland, was chosen president of the association and Mayor George H. Hoffman, Lorain, secretary. Directors include: City Manager F. C. Eichelberger, Dayton, and Mayor Charles Ball, Canton. The association will meet at Cleveland in June.

JUDGE E. H. GARY ASKS COOLIDGE AID TO ENFORCE LAW OF LAND

Urges "Precept and Personal Example" of Federal Officials.

1,000 PETITION

Resolution, Referring to Prohibition, Topic at White House.

By GEORGE E. DURNO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Across the white house breakfast table this morning, President Coolidge was urged to impress vigorously upon all federal officials the importance of obeying and enforcing the law of the land, both by "precept and personal example."

The enlistment of presidential aid was in the form of a resolution adopted by the Citizen's committee of one thousand for law enforcement, and was conveyed to the executive by Judge Elbert H. Gary, president of the United States Steel corporation, who acted as chairman of the delegation that gathered at the white house for breakfast and a discussion of prohibition enforcement.

Judge Gary, in presenting the resolution, told the president that the Citizen's Enforcement committee felt a point had been reached where successful application of the dry laws was largely a question of arousing favorable opinion.

Commends President.

Following Judge Gary, John D. Rockefeller Jr. emphasized the importance of bringing about respect for law among the office holders. He commended President Coolidge for his personal conscientious obedience to the provisions of the 18th amendment.

The president replied briefly to the remarks of Gary and Rockefeller and gave his unqualified endorsement to the principles outlined by his guests.

Those who breakfasted with the president included Frederick A. Wallace, commissioner of collections of New York city, and Clifford Barnes of Chicago, both of whom also spoke; S. S. Kresge of Detroit, W. F. Cochran of Baltimore, V. Everit Macy, George A. Climpton, Paul Patrick, Henry Callahan and Fred R. Smith, chairman of the citizens' committee.

"The people expect of their officials an unwavering loyalty to their oaths of office with respect to a question so vital to the maintenance of our institutions," the resolution presented to the president declared.

It is planned to present like resolutions to the governors of all states.

Ford Faces Libel Suit for Million; Sapiro Sends Letter

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Henry Ford was due to receive a little letter today informing him that a $1,000,000 libel suit is about to be filed by Aaron Sapiro, co-operative marketing exponent for farmers.

The letter is in fact a document demanding a formal retraction of the statement Mr. Ford is alleged to have published in his weekly paper, the Dearborn Independent. This course is required under the Michigan laws as a preliminary to the filing of the suit.

Mr. Sapiro alleges that his name was linked with those of Julius Rosewald, Otto H. Kahn, Bernard Baruch, Albert D. Lasker and Eugene Meyer Jr. in a series of articles charging him with an alleged conspiracy of Jews to control American agriculture, "or to organize farmers of America in th einterests of Communism."

New Hampshire's New Governor O. K.'s. Child Labor Law

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 8.—John J. Winnant, the 79th man to be elected governor of New Hampshire, was inducted into that office here today at a joint session of the senate and house of representatives.

Representatives hall was packed to its capacity when the new chief executive in his inaugural address outlined his policies for the next two years and advanced more than a score of recommendations and suggestions.

Governor Winant recommended particularly the ratification of the child labor amendment and the immediate enactment of a 48-hour work week.

GIRL AND HER ESCORT ARE KILLED WHEN CAR SKIDS AND TURNS OVER

Fatal Crash Occurs East of Industry, Pa., as Woodlawn Motorists are Enroute From Midland.

Accident Happens When Steering Knuckle on Auto Breaks After Party Attends Serbian Celebration.

Enroute to Woodlawn, Pa., from Midland where they had been celebrating the Serbian Christmas day, Miss Katherine Jeich, 15, of Woodlawn, and her escort, Bragon Devich, 17, of Midland, were almost instantly killed, and Adam Krivoshi, of Midland, sustained injuries, when the automobile in which they were riding suddenly skidded and turned over a mile and a half east of Industry at 11 o'clock last night.

A girl, from Woodlawn, a friend of Miss Jeich's whose name could not be learned, escaped uninjured.

It is believed that the steering knuckle on the automobile broke, causing the driver to loose control of the machine.

Two Are Crushed.

Miss Jeich was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jeich, of Woodlawn. Her escort was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Devich, of Midland.

Devich and Krivoshi, it is understood, had brought the girls from Woodlawn to Midland earlier in the day for the celebration.

The accident occurred on a level stretch of road east of Industry. According to Krivoshi, who reported the tragedy to Midland authorities, there was no warning. The car suddenly veered in the road and then crashed over on its side. Krivoshi and the girl with him, riding in the rear seat, crawled from the wreckage. The former suffered only minor bruises and cuts about his shoulder.

The lifeless bodies of Devich, who was driving, and Miss Jeich, who was seated alongside him, were taken from beneath the car.

The bodies were later removed to the Dennis morgue in Midland. That of Miss Jeich will be taken today to her parents' home in Woodlawn.

Ten Million Face Famine as Result Of Chinese Floods

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Ten million persons in China are facing starvation as a result of the famine caused by Yellow river floods, according to S. S. Young, of the China international famine relief commission.

Young is in Washington attempting to secure assistance from the American Red Cross and other philanthropic organizations. He said today it is extremely difficult to raise funds in the United States at the present time. Despite the fact that Americans gave liberally four years ago when 7,000,000 faced famine, Young said, there is a general apathy toward giving assistance in the present famine.

It is impossible to raise funds among Chinese in this country now, Young said, because of the Tong war which has spread throughout the country, making it impossible for groups of Chinese to get together and organize for relief work.

STOP AUTOMOBILE, ROB OCCUPANTS

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—John Thomason, 47 and his son, George Thomason 20, of Dade City, Fla., notified the police that their car had been stopped in downtown Cincinnati Wednesday night by five bandits in another car who assaulted them and stole $110.

SECRECY MARKS DRY UNIT PROBE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A veil of secrecy was thrown around the senatorial investigation of prohibition enforecement today when the Couzens committee opened its inquiry behind locked doors.

Newspapermen were barred from the hearing on the demand of Senator Watson, Republican, of Indiana, while half a dozen witnesses waited to testify about alleged irregularities in the enforcement of the Volstead act.

LABOR COUNCIL STANDS PAT ON MARKET HOUSE

Opposes Transfer of $38,000 Balance in City Fund.

UNIONS VOTE "NO"

Rejects Resolution Condemning Conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg.

Opposition to the plan of transferring the $38,000 balance, remaining in the city's market house fund to another fund was voiced by members of Trades and Labor Council at the semi-monthly meeting last evening.

Councilman Thomas Farrall, a member of Trades and Labor Council, a few weeks ago urged Trades Council to sanction the abandonment of the market house project and give its approval to placing the balance to the credit of another fund where it might be used to a better advantage, if legal, and if not legal turn it back into the sinking fund for the liquidation of the city's bonded indebtedness.

The labor delegates took the matter under advisement and referred it to the various trade unions, with instructions that they report at the first meeting in January. The opin-

Justice of Peace Loses Job; Admits He Took Bribes

DAYTON, O., Jan. 8.—Justice of the Peace A. L. Green of Ebenezer today is out of a job and facing criminal charges, as the result of his confession and resignation late yesterday that he had pocketed fees and bonds in liquor cases and had accepted two $50 bribes from the Keystone club, an alleged gambling joint, for protection.

Green handed his resignation to Prosecuting Attorney Albert Scharrer in the office of J. S. Clifton, state examiner, in this city.

The resignation was demanded by Sheriff Howard E. Webster.

It was estimated that the fees wrongfully kept will amount to $1,500 or more.

GEORGE CREEL WARTIME NEWS CENSOR, TO BE C. OF C. GUEST

Editor, Author and Humorist Will Speak Here Jan. 28.

ANNUAL MEETING

Dinner Will Precede Session in Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

George Creel, editor, author, publicist and humorist and chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, will be the speaker at the ninth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Wednesday evening, January 28, it was announced today. His subject will be "Current Events and Public Men."

The meeting will be preceded by dinner to be served at 6:30 o'clock. Reports of the secretary, treasurer and other officers will be submitted. The entertainment committee, consisting of T. E. Lewis, H. D. Hoffman, M. J. Newman, L. W. Smith, W. B. Louthan and W. O. Bloor, will meet in the chamber's rooms at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon to arrange the program.

Creel was born at Blackburn, Mo., in 1876. He began his newspaper career in Kansas City, where he worked on "The World." Before he reached his 19th birthday he went to New York and attempted "free lance" writing. His "stuff" didn't sell, so Creel decided that it was too serious and started to write jokes for the New York dailies. This venture also failed and Creel secured a job shoveling snow, but after a few weeks again started to write. Before spring came several New York papers were using his material.

Enlarge Cathedral For Funeral of Archbishop Moeller

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—An addition to St. Peter's cathedral sanctuary is being erected to accommodate the hundreds of clergymen who will take part in the funeral services for Archbishop Henry Moeller next Tuesday morning. The lowering, exterior and interior columns, the altar and the pulpit of the cathedral are now draped in black. The confessional where, Saturday after Saturday, the old archbishop listened patiently to penitents and sent them away lighthearted, likewise bears evidence of mourning.

One year ago, during the celebration of the centennial of the Cincinnati archdiocese, the late prelate was given the rank of papal count by the pope. With his customary modesty, however, Archbishop Moeller never assumed this added dignity.

KELLOGG WILL STAY IN LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Stories in circulation that United States Ambassador Kellogg was to resign from his London post, have made him "all the more determined to remain, it was said at the American embassy today. This was the second denial in two days from the embassy on the subject of Kellogg's retirement. Kellogg is, attending the allied financial conference in Paris.

ROBERT F. MCDONALD, 53, SEWER PIPE WORKER, SUFFERS CONCUSSION OF BRAIN

Struck in Right Temple by Piece of Metal When Part of Casting of Dye Machine Breaks.

Robert F. McDonald, 53, sewer pipe worker, is recovering today from a concussion of the brain, suffered Monday, when he was struck on the head with a piece of metal while at work at the plant of the American Vitrified Products company, Elm street, East End.

Mr. McDonald was employed as a trucker. He was operating one of the dye machines when a part of the metal casting broke, striking him in the right temple. Fellow workmen summoned a physician.

He was taken to the hospital where he was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall and W. A. Hobbs. An x-ray examination showed that his skull had not been fractured. He was removed to his home, 1233 Pennsylvania avenue, yesterday.

UNDERWOOD MUSCLE SHOALS FACES ITS FIRST BIG TEST IN U. S. SENATE

Under Unanimous Consent Agreement Upper Chamber Will Vote on Measure Late Today After Being Amended.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The Underwood Muscle Shoals bill faced its first big test in the senate today. Under a unanimous consent agreement the upper chamber was to vote on the measure at four o'clock.

For five weeks, the bill, into which has been incorporated amendments by Secretary of War Weeks, has been knocking around the senate chamber. It would carry out in general the Muscle Shoals recommendations of President Coolidge, that is, providing for goverenmental operation of the project only after every effort had failed to lease it to private interests.

Under the provisions of the bill, the secretary of war would have until Sept. 1 to consummate a lease. That

Rev. MacDonald then fell back in his wife's arms and died.

Son Calls For Doctor.

Stunned when the pastor was stricken, the choir stopped singing, and members of the congregation hurried to offer assistance to the clergyman.

Besides the pastor's wife, his daughter, Eunice, and son, Paul, were attending the services.

"Get a doctor for my daddy," screamed the boy, who ran toward the rear of the church when he sensed the situation. His sister had joined her mother in efforts to aid the father and husband.

Drs. C. A. Shafer and G. E. Lewis, of Chester, were called, but the minister lived but a few minutes after the physicians arrived.

Dazed by the suddenness of her husband's death, Mrs. MacDonald appeared as if she was swooning. Fellow parishioners immediately applied restoratives.

Born in Oil City, Pa.

Rev. MacDonald apparently had been in good health. At the dinner table, three hours before his death, he said to Mrs. MacDonald and his children, "I never felt better in my life."

Week of prayer was being observed

County Asks State Aid for Wellsville—East Liverpool Road

The county commissioners have applied to the state highway department for state aid in connection with the completion of the improvement of the Wellsville-East Liverpool road, known as inter-county Highway No. 7, between the Jethro fill and the eastern corporation line of Wellsville.

The commissioners seek the state's assistance in resurfacing that part of the road between the western end of the Jethro fill and the new bricked roadway, which was completed last summer, and also that stretch of the road between the western end of the new road and the Wellsville city limits, which is badly worn.

The city of Wellsville, during the coming summer, will resurface Wells avenue and Lisbon street, while East Liverpool will finish the West Eighth street improvement.

Coolidge Confers With Longworth on Legislative Plans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President Coolidge and Repreesntative Nicholas Longworth, in a conference at the White House today, mapped out legislative plans for the remainder of the 68th congress and discussed the possibility of organizing the 69th congress before adjournment of the present congress on March 4.

Longworth reported rapid legislative progress, especially with the appropriation bills for the next fiscal year, and said that administration leaders at the capitol could now see daylight ahead.

Man's Head Split Open by Axe Blow; Body Found in Alley

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8.—His head split open by a blow from an axe, the body of Fred L. James, an employe of the Ford Motor company, here, was found today in an alley in a negro section. He had been dead about four hours, police said.

The body was found by a negro, who notified the police.

DICE SHOOTERS ARE FINED $119

Five alleged participants in a crap game, arrested at the Walter Jackson restaurant, Jefferson street, by Chief of Police Hugh McDermott, yesterday afternoon, were fined a total of $119 by Mayor Charles Brown last night.

Jackson, who is alleged to have been the operator of the game, was assessed $50 and costs while each of the other four men, charged with being players, were fined $10 and costs each. Three of the quintet paid their fines, while the others made arrangements to settle.

MIDLAND CHIEF RE-APPOINTED

Chief of Police F. C. Creps, of Midland, last night was reappointed head of the borough police force by council.

His force will include the following officers: George Wick, G. A. Bleicher, Donald Allen, James Porter, Marshall Ackerw and David Lett, all re-appointed. Ackers and Leet are sergeants.

NEW ROAD OPEN TO RIVER TOWNS

An improved highway, eliminating the necessity of crossing the Ohio river, is now open between East Liverpool and Steubenville, it was announced by the Chamber of Commerce, today.

The best route to the Jefferson county metropolis is now via Wellsville, Yellow Creek, Hammondsville, straight through Hammondsville to New Somerset, over a new road, thence through Knoxville to Toronto on macadam highway. The road between Toronto and Steubenville is also hard surfaced, affording an improved route all the way.

The road through Chester and New Cumberland is not recommended at the present time because of the ferry crossing at the lower end of New Cumberland.

MAN INJURED WHEN ELEVATOR CABLE BREAKS

Charles E. Hanes, 54, Figures in Pottery Accident.

Car, Loaded With Ware, Drops 25 Feet.

Charles E. Hanes, 54, State street, warehouseman at the No. 2 plant of the Homer Laughlin China company, East End, is in the city hospital today suffering from a serious injury to the right knee and hand and arm lacerations, sustained about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the cable on an elevator on which he was riding broke.

Hanes had boarded the car at the first floor of the warehouse with a truckload of ware, which was being taken to one of the upper floors. When the elevator reached the third floor, the big steel cable holding it snapped under the strain, the car dropping 25 feet to the first floor.

Hanes' right leg was caught between the side of the elevator and the cable used in operating the lift, the bone being crushed at the knee. His hands were cut by broken dishes on the truck.

The injured man was taken to the hospital in the Sturgis ambulance. He was attended by Dr. C. R. Larkins.

Hanes is married and has three children.

Mayors and School Boards Join Hands In Relief Demands

COLUMBUS, Jan. 8.—With the view to strengthening their own fight for legislation designed to afford financial relief for municipalities officials of the newly organized State Association of Mayors and Other Municipal Authorities today are endeavoring to enlist the support of Ohio's school officials.

Fifty Ohio municipalities were represented at the conference here late Wednesday at which the association's emergency relief committee was instructed to "work with the school people" in their efforts to obtain authorization for either a new tax levy by school boards, to be collected next June, or to issue short term notes or bonds, in order to relieve the financial distress among schools.

Mayor Clayton C. Townes, Cleveland, was chosen president of the association and Mayor George H. Hoffman, Lorain, secretary. Directors include: City Manager F. C. Eichelberger, Dayton, and Mayor Charles Ball, Canton. The association will meet at Cleveland in June.

JUDGE E. H. GARY ASKS COOLIDGE AID TO ENFORCE LAW OF LAND

Urges "Precept and Personal Example" of Federal Officials.

1,000 PETITION

Resolution, Referring to Prohibition, Topic at White House.

By GEORGE E. DURNO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Across the white house breakfast table this morning, President Coolidge was urged to impress vigorously upon all federal officials the importance of obeying and enforcing the law of the land, both by "precept and personal example."

The enlistment of presidential aid was in the form of a resolution adopted by the Citizen's committee of one thousand for law enforcement, and was conveyed to the executive by Judge Elbert H. Gary, president of the United States Steel corporation, who acted as chairman of the delegation that gathered at the white house for breakfast and a discussion of prohibition enforcement.

Judge Gary, in presenting the resolution, told the president that the Citizen's Enforcement committee felt a point had been reached where successful application of the dry laws was largely a question of arousing favorable opinion.

Commends President.

Following Judge Gary, John D. Rockefeller Jr. emphasized the importance of bringing about respect for law among the office holders. He commended President Coolidge for his personal conscientious obedience to the provisions of the 18th amendment.

The president replied briefly to the remarks of Gary and Rockefeller and gave his unqualified endorsement to the principles outlined by his guests.

Those who breakfasted with the president included Frederick A. Wallace, commissioner of collections of New York city, and Clifford Barnes of Chicago, both of whom also spoke; S. S. Kresge of Detroit, W. F. Cochran of Baltimore, V. Everit Macy, George A. Climpton, Paul Patrick, Henry Callahan and Fred R. Smith, chairman of the citizens' committee.

"The people expect of their officials an unwavering loyalty to their oaths of office with respect to a question so vital to the maintenance of our institutions," the resolution presented to the president declared.

It is planned to present like resolutions to the governors of all states.

Ford Faces Libel Suit for Million; Sapiro Sends Letter

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Henry Ford was due to receive a little letter today informing him that a $1,000,000 libel suit is about to be filed by Aaron Sapiro, co-operative marketing exponent for farmers.

The letter is in fact a document demanding a formal retraction of the statement Mr. Ford is alleged to have published in his weekly paper, the Dearborn Independent. This course is required under the Michigan laws as a preliminary to the filing of the suit.

Mr. Sapiro alleges that his name was linked with those of Julius Rosewald, Otto H. Kahn, Bernard Baruch, Albert D. Lasker and Eugene Meyer Jr. in a series of articles charging him with an alleged conspiracy of Jews to control American agriculture, "or to organize farmers of America in th einterests of Communism."

New Hampshire's New Governor O. K.'s. Child Labor Law

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 8.—John J. Winnant, the 79th man to be elected governor of New Hampshire, was inducted into that office here today at a joint session of the senate and house of representatives.

Representatives hall was packed to its capacity when the new chief executive in his inaugural address outlined his policies for the next two years and advanced more than a score of recommendations and suggestions.

Governor Winant recommended particularly the ratification of the child labor amendment and the immediate enactment of a 48-hour work week.

GIRL AND HER ESCORT ARE KILLED WHEN CAR SKIDS AND TURNS OVER

Fatal Crash Occurs East of Industry, Pa., as Woodlawn Motorists are Enroute From Midland.

Accident Happens When Steering Knuckle on Auto Breaks After Party Attends Serbian Celebration.

Enroute to Woodlawn, Pa., from Midland where they had been celebrating the Serbian Christmas day, Miss Katherine Jeich, 15, of Woodlawn, and her escort, Bragon Devich, 17, of Midland, were almost instantly killed, and Adam Krivoshi, of Midland, sustained injuries, when the automobile in which they were riding suddenly skidded and turned over a mile and a half east of Industry at 11 o'clock last night.

A girl, from Woodlawn, a friend of Miss Jeich's whose name could not be learned, escaped uninjured.

It is believed that the steering knuckle on the automobile broke, causing the driver to loose control of the machine.

Two Are Crushed.

Miss Jeich was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jeich, of Woodlawn. Her escort was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Devich, of Midland.

Devich and Krivoshi, it is understood, had brought the girls from Woodlawn to Midland earlier in the day for the celebration.

The accident occurred on a level stretch of road east of Industry. According to Krivoshi, who reported the tragedy to Midland authorities, there was no warning. The car suddenly veered in the road and then crashed over on its side. Krivoshi and the girl with him, riding in the rear seat, crawled from the wreckage. The former suffered only minor bruises and cuts about his shoulder.

The lifeless bodies of Devich, who was driving, and Miss Jeich, who was seated alongside him, were taken from beneath the car.

The bodies were later removed to the Dennis morgue in Midland. That of Miss Jeich will be taken today to her parents' home in Woodlawn.

Ten Million Face Famine as Result Of Chinese Floods

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Ten million persons in China are facing starvation as a result of the famine caused by Yellow river floods, according to S. S. Young, of the China international famine relief commission.

Young is in Washington attempting to secure assistance from the American Red Cross and other philanthropic organizations. He said today it is extremely difficult to raise funds in the United States at the present time. Despite the fact that Americans gave liberally four years ago when 7,000,000 faced famine, Young said, there is a general apathy toward giving assistance in the present famine.

It is impossible to raise funds among Chinese in this country now, Young said, because of the Tong war which has spread throughout the country, making it impossible for groups of Chinese to get together and organize for relief work.

STOP AUTOMOBILE, ROB OCCUPANTS

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—John Thomason, 47 and his son, George Thomason 20, of Dade City, Fla., notified the police that their car had been stopped in downtown Cincinnati Wednesday night by five bandits in another car who assaulted them and stole $110.

SECRECY MARKS DRY UNIT PROBE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A veil of secrecy was thrown around the senatorial investigation of prohibition enforecement today when the Couzens committee opened its inquiry behind locked doors.

Newspapermen were barred from the hearing on the demand of Senator Watson, Republican, of Indiana, while half a dozen witnesses waited to testify about alleged irregularities in the enforcement of the Volstead act.

LABOR COUNCIL STANDS PAT ON MARKET HOUSE

Opposes Transfer of $38,000 Balance in City Fund.

UNIONS VOTE "NO"

Rejects Resolution Condemning Conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg.

Opposition to the plan of transferring the $38,000 balance, remaining in the city's market house fund to another fund was voiced by members of Trades and Labor Council at the semi-monthly meeting last evening.

Councilman Thomas Farrall, a member of Trades and Labor Council, a few weeks ago urged Trades Council to sanction the abandonment of the market house project and give its approval to placing the balance to the credit of another fund where it might be used to a better advantage, if legal, and if not legal turn it back into the sinking fund for the liquidation of the city's bonded indebtedness.

The labor delegates took the matter under advisement and referred it to the various trade unions, with instructions that they report at the first meeting in January. The opin-

Justice of Peace Loses Job; Admits He Took Bribes

DAYTON, O., Jan. 8.—Justice of the Peace A. L. Green of Ebenezer today is out of a job and facing criminal charges, as the result of his confession and resignation late yesterday that he had pocketed fees and bonds in liquor cases and had accepted two $50 bribes from the Keystone club, an alleged gambling joint, for protection.

Green handed his resignation to Prosecuting Attorney Albert Scharrer in the office of J. S. Clifton, state examiner, in this city.

The resignation was demanded by Sheriff Howard E. Webster.

It was estimated that the fees wrongfully kept will amount to $1,500 or more.

GEORGE CREEL WARTIME NEWS CENSOR, TO BE C. OF C. GUEST

Editor, Author and Humorist Will Speak Here Jan. 28.

ANNUAL MEETING

Dinner Will Precede Session in Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

George Creel, editor, author, publicist and humorist and chairman of the committee on public information during the World war, will be the speaker at the ninth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Wednesday evening, January 28. It was announced today. His subject will be "Current Events and Public Men."

The meeting will be preceded by dinner to be served at 6:30 o'clock. Reports of the secretary, treasurer and other officers will be submitted. The entertainment committee, consisting of T. E. Lewis, H. D. Hoffman, M. J. Newman, L. W. Smith, W. B. Louthan and W. O. Bloor, will meet in the chamber's rooms at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon to arrange the program.

Creel was born at Blackburn, Mo., in 1876. He began his newspaper career in Kansas City, where he worked on "The World." Before he reached his 19th birthday he went to New York and attempted "free lance" writing. His "stuff" didn't sell, so Creel decided that it was too serious and started to write jokes for the New York dailies. This venture also failed and Creel secured a job shoveling snow, but after a few weeks again started to write. Before spring came several New York papers were using his material.

Fought Political Bosses

Creel then went back to Kansas City, where he established "The Inde-

Enlarge Cathedral For Funeral of Archbishop Moeller

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—An addition to St. Peter's cathedral sanctuary is being erected to accommodate the hundreds of clergymen who will take part in the funeral services for Archbishop Henry Moeller next Tuesday morning. The lowering, exterior and interior columns, the altar and the pulpit of the cathedral are now draped in black. The confessional where, Saturday after Saturday, the old archbishop listened patiently to penitents and sent them away lighthearted, likewise bears evidence of mourning.

One year ago, during the celebration of the centennial of the Cincinnati archdiocese, the late prelate was given the rank of papal count by the pope. With his customary modesty, however, Archbishop Moeller never assumed this added dignity.

KELLOGG WILL STAY IN LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Stories in circulation that United States Ambassador Kellogg was to resign from his London post, have made him "all the more determined to remain, it was said at the American embassy today. This was the second denial in two days from the embassy on the subject of Kellogg's retirement. Kellogg is, attending the allied financial conference in Paris.

ROBERT F. MCDONALD, 53, SEWER PIPE WORKER, SUFFERS CONCUSSION OF BRAIN

Struck in Right Temple by Piece of Metal When Part of Casting of Dye Machine Breaks.

Robert F. McDonald, 53, sewer pipe worker, is recovering today from a concussion of the brain, suffered Monday, when he was struck on the head with a piece of metal while at work at the plant of the American Vitrified Products company, Elm street, East End.

Mr. McDonald was employed as a trucker. He was operating one of the dye machines when a part of the metal casting broke, striking him in the right temple. Fellow workmen summoned a physician.

He was taken to the hospital where he was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall and W. A. Hobbs. An x-ray examination showed that his skull had not been fractured. He was removed to his home, 1233 Pennsylvania avenue, yesterday.

UNDERWOOD MUSCLE SHOALS FACES ITS FIRST BIG TEST IN U. S. SENATE

Under Unanimous Consent Agreement Upper Chamber Will Vote on Measure Late Today After Being Amended.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The Underwood Muscle Shoals bill faced its first big test in the senate today. Under a unanimous consent agreement the upper chamber was to vote on the measure at four o'clock.

For five weeks, the bill, into which has been incorporated amendments by Secretary of War Weeks, has been knocking around the senate chamber. It would carry out in general the Muscle Shoals recommendations of President Coolidge, that is, providing for goverenmental operation of the project only after every effort had failed to lease it to private interests.

Under the provisions of the bill, the secretary of war would have until Sept. 1 to consummate a lease. That

Chicago Man May Live Altho Bullet Is Squeezed From Heart

Vital Organ of Max Peck, Who Attempted Suicide Because of Loneliness, Stops Functioning as Surgeons Operate.

CHICAGO.—Although your heart stops functioning, you may still live!

At least this is true in the case of Max Peck. Surgeons at the County Hospital here cut open his chest, took his heart in their hands, used pressure enough to force a home-made bullet from the organ, stopped its beating for a few moments and then restored it to its place.

Peck may recover and once again be just as sound as though he had never attempted to commit suicide on Christmas Eve in a cheap lodging house.

When the terrrrible loneliness that overwhelms a man utterly alone in a cheap lodging house on Christmas Eve came to Peck he had no weapon. But to a man determined to end it all that is no hindrance.

A piece of lead pipe was secured, as well as some black powder. And Peck had a spike for a bullet. The home made cannon was placed on a table and set off with a hot wire. When Peck awoke he found himself in the hospital, hovering between life and death.

Surgeons at the hospital counseled an operation. Apparently it has turned out a success.

Friend of Lincoln Says Mrs. Lincoln Had Bad Temper

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. — Professor Gilbert E. Bailey, who died here recently, was a friend of the family of Abraham Lincoln.

He knew much of the troubled domestic life of Lincoln.

Mrs. Lincoln, according to Bailey, had a violent temper. Once he saw her throw herself flat on the floor and kick her heels together, while she screamed at the top of her voice.

Building blocks that are being made of sawdust and lime are said to be fire, sound and water-proof.

Posed as Gothamite In Germany; Held For White Slavery

BERLIN—Herr Ettlinger, alias "Mr. Ettlinger, from New York," has been arrested here charged with white slavery, following discovery by the police that he had scores of "fiancees" from whom he had obtained, under false pretenses, large sums of money.

Ettlinger let it be known that he was the owner of "great marble works in Colorado, as well as the holder of honors in American boxing." After arresting him, the police tested out his boxing powers, and he was knocked out in a few seconds. They also discovered that the alleged American knew no English.

Record Hog Killing Reported in Family At Aberdeen, Miss.

ABERDEEN, Miss.—There will be a shortage of hogs in this section of the State, according to livestock experts, this season, but not in the family of John F. Plant.

He and his son-in-law, Frank G. Whittaker, killed thirty-four hogs that weighed 14,000 pounds, and the meat and sausages will be distributed among the various members of the family. This is the largest individual killing in this section for many years.

Nose Dive Fails To Improve Army Recruit's Hearing

NEW YORK.—Neither sharp ose diving nor side-slipping in an airplane improved the hearing of Joseph Kling, 28, at whose request an attempt to cure him by this means was tried at Mitchel Field, Mineola.

Kling, who never had been in the air before, rode in a DeHaviland plane for half an hour. Several side slips were made before the big dive was taken.

When he was examined by army surgeons after the trip his organic deafness was pronounced unchanged. He said:

"My condition is just the same."

The man has been deaf ten years and has been rejected for the army frequently because of it.

John Gill, of Springfield, Mass., went to Mineola to take the same treatment, but abandoned the idea when he learned that Kling's hearing had not improved.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY SAFELY TOLD BY ONE OF RICHEST AMERICANS

WASHINGTON—Twelve "danger signs" for the guidance of investors have been set up by Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury.

If you want to invest your savings safely, memorize these twelve rules, in which Mr. Mellon summarizes his ve[illegible] knowledge of investments:

[illegible] mine in the world may prove a white elephant. Mining is a very expensive undertaking and the risks are unusually great. There are many good mining investments but this branch of the investment market is generally not for those who depend upon a salary.

"2—Oil stock. Drilling for oil is costly. The hazards are great. Oil investments are speculative and in a class with [illegible] investments.

[illegible] important discovery or invention there comes a host of schemes—airplanes, radio, wireless [illegible]

have only the best intentions, but frequently their enthusiasm is about all they have to sell. Look before you leap.

"4—Investment in real estate in some distant place is sometimes as dangerous as mining stock. People have been known to buy swamps ad-

[illegible] what you are buying before you invest.

"5—Land development' schemes frequently do not pan out. At best it is a long time bef[illegible] money comes in from sales. Investment in new companies that are going to 'sell by mail' should generally be avoided.

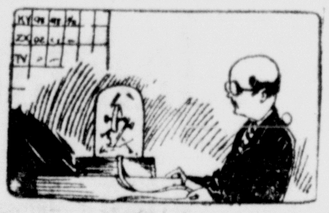

"6—Patent rights and processes distribution. It is rarely the patentee who makes the money.

"7—'New manufacturing methods should always be closely checked and investigated.

"8—An investment requiring a quick decision is often a fake. If there isn't sufficient time to "sleep over it,' something probably is wrong.

"9—'Special inducements' in cash discounts or stock bonuses urging you to be one of the first to invest are suspicious symptoms.

"10—'Tips alleged to land you 'on the ground floor' are rarely to be taken. Those who are on the ground floor will monopolize the opportunity.

"11—Playing the stock market on the margin and all other forms of speculation are decidedly not for the small investor. Beware of the 'bucket shop.'

"12—Stock in 'mail order' companies being organized with promises based on what others have done seldom turns out well."

American Hickory Has Rival.

Woods found in certain parts of India are likely to become rivals of the American hickory, long preferred for axe and hammer handles. The government in India is making exhaustive tests of the Parrotia Jacquemontiana with particular reference to its ability to withstand strain, and results to date show that it compares favorably with hickory and it is now being cut on a commercial basis.

for Strength and Health

Thousands Have Used This RED BLOOD Food

If you are weak, sickly, nervous and run-down, what you need is not merely stimulating medicines and drugs, but something that will put more iron into your blood to make it rich and red, so that it can carry strength and health to every nerve and muscle of your body.

Thousands of men and women have banished every trace of that weak, tired-out feeling and increased their strength, energy and endurance often in just two weeks' time by simply taking organic iron—Nuxated Iron.

For Nuxated Iron is a wonderful new combination of organic iron, like the iron in your own blood. It is entirely different from ordinary iron medicines—does not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. Furthermore, it is so highly concentrated that one dose is equal to eating one-half quart of spinach or a quart of green vegetables. Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks and you'll be astonished how much stronger and better you feel. Money back if not delighted. At all good druggists.

Chicago Man May Live Altho Bullet Is Squeezed From Heart

Vital Organ of Max Peck, Who Attempted Suicide Because of Loneliness, Stops Functioning as Surgeons Operate.

CHICAGO.—Although your heart stops functioning, you may still live!

At least this is true in the case of Max Peck. Surgeons at the County Hospital here cut open his chest, took his heart in their hands, used pressure enough to force a home-made bullet from the organ, stopped its beating for a few moments and then restored it to its place.

Peck may recover and once again be just as sound as though he had never attempted to commit suicide on Christmas Eve in a cheap lodging house.

When the terrrrible loneliness that overwhelms a man utterly alone in a cheap lodging house on Christmas Eve came to Peck he had no weapon. But to a man determined to end it all that is no hindrance.

A piece of lead pipe was secured, as well as some black powder. And Peck had a spike for a bullet. The home made cannon was placed on a table and set off with a hot wire. When Peck awoke he found himself in the hospital, hovering between life and death.

Surgeons at the hospital counseled an operation. Apparently it has turned out a success.

Friend of Lincoln Says Mrs. Lincoln Had Bad Temper

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. — Professor Gilbert E. Bailey, who died here recently, was a friend of the family of Abraham Lincoln.

He knew much of the troubled domestic life of Lincoln.

Mrs. Lincoln, according to Bailey, had a violent temper. Once he saw her throw herself flat on the floor and kick her heels together, while she screamed at the top of her voice.

Building blocks that are being made of sawdust and lime are said to be fire, sound and water-proof.

Posed as Gothamite In Germany; Held For White Slavery

BERLIN—Herr Ettlinger, alias "Mr. Ettlinger, from New York," has been arrested here charged with white slavery, following discovery by the police that he had scores of "fiancees" from whom he had obtained, under false pretenses, large sums of money.

Ettlinger let it be known that he was the owner of "great marble works in Colorado, as well as the holder of honors in American boxing." After arresting him, the police tested out his boxing powers, and he was knocked out in a few seconds. They also discovered that the alleged American knew no English.

"Relief From Goitre"

"Almost Beyond Belief," says Mrs. Richie. Shortness of Breath, Choking, Nervousness, Palpitation Soon Vanished.

Mrs. Mary H. Richie, New Paris, Ohio writes: "My friends soon remarked how much better I look. The first few applications of Sorbol-Quadruple gave me relief, and now I am completely cured. Its so easy to use. Come and see me or write and I will tell you my whole experience."

Record Hog Killing Reported in Family At Aberdeen, Miss.

ABERDEEN, Miss.—There will be a shortage of hogs in this section of the State, according to livestock experts, this season, but not in the family of John F. Plant.

He and his son-in-law, Frank G. Whittaker, killed thirty-four hogs that weighed 14,000 pounds, and the meat and sausages will be distributed among the various members of the family. This is the largest individual killing in this section for many years.

Nose Dive Fails To Improve Army Recruit's Hearing

NEW YORK.—Neither sharp nose diving nor side-slipping in an airplane improved the hearing of Joseph Kling, 28, at whose request an attempt to cure him by this means was tried at Mitchel Field, Mineola.

Kling, who never had been in the air before, rode in a DeHaviland plane for half an hour. Several side slips were made before the big dive was taken.

When he was examined by army surgeons after the trip his organic deafness was pronounced unchanged. He said:

"My condition is just the same."

The man has been deaf ten years and has been rejected for the army frequently because of it.

John Gill, of Springfield, Mass., went to Mineola to take the same treatment, but abandoned the idea when he learned that Kling's hearing had not improved.

RUSH WORK ON POWER PLANT

Officials Give Interesting Description of Big Project.

By spending $11,000,000 in the construction of its super-power station along the Ohio river near Toronto, the Ohio River Edison company and the Pennsylvania-Ohio Light & Power company, which will operate the plant under a 999 year lease are providing one of the finest power plants in the United States.

The plan will add not merely to the power resources of this industrial section, but also to the reliability of the electric service enjoyed by approximately 40 communities, officials point out in recent description of the mammoth undertaking.

The Toronto plant will be joined to the existing Penn.-Ohio power transmission system by a steel tower transmission line 39 miles long, running almost due north from Toronto to the big substation under construction at Boardman. Approximately 200 steel towers will be used.

Into this substation at Boardman also will come transmission lines from the Lowellville power generating station and the transmission line from Warren recently placed in service as an important link in the super-power zoning for this section of the country. This "tie-line" connects the Penn.-Ohio system with the Ohio Public Service company so that either company may deliver power from the other as occasion might require.

The system of the Ohio Public Service company already is tied in with the Ohio Power company by a transmission line from Warren to Canton. The Ohio Power company has transmission lines leading to the power station at Windsor and also is tied in with the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company at Akron and the N. O. T. in turn is tied in with the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company.

Thus five large power systems are tied in so that there may be an exchange of power in cases of emergency.

Plant on River.

The Toronto site has a frontage of 2,000 feet along the Ohio river and the structure now nearing completion is the first unit of the plant. It is designed for additional units so that the eventual capacity will be four times the initial capacity. The building is of steel, concrete and brick construction, 200 by 250 feet in dimension.

Actual construction work was started in September, 1923, and is expected to be completed in February, 1925. The excavations were carried on chiefly by floating dredges, the plant being brought close to the low water mark and the intake tunnels for the circulating water being carried to such a depth that the lowest possible stage of the Ohio river cannot interfere with the plant having a thoroughly adequate water supply. The watertight foundation walls rise above the highest known water mark, that of 1884.

Massive Structure.

Some idea of the massiveness of the structure may be gained from the fact that foundation mat upon which the structure rests is one huge slab of concrete with steel reinforcing covering the side of the building and from six to eight feet thick. Five hundred tons of reinforcing steel and 15,000 cubic yards of concrete went into its construction.

The initial installation will comprise two turbo-generator units with requisite boilers, transformers, banks, etc. Each of the turbo-generators will be of 37,500 K. V. A. capacity. The eventual capacity of the plant will be 300,000 K. V. A., approximately 350,000 horsepower. The turbines will take steam at 350 pounds pressure.

The boiler plant will consist of four boilers, each having 21,500 square feet of heating surface. The air furnished by waste gases from the furnace, thus recovering a large amount of heat that otherwise would be wasted up the stacks. The furnaces will be equipped with water screens on all four sides and bottom.

One of the especially interesting features of the plant will be the use of powdered coal for fuel. The fuel after passing through a special pulverizing process wherein it is ground to the finest form of powder, will be blown by air blasts into the furnaces, thus being more nearly akin to the use of fuel oil than to the ordinary method of burning coal.

NILES MINISTER TO PREACH HERE

A series of special meetings, which will start on Sunday evening in the Second Presbyterian church, and continue for a period of two weeks, were announced today by Rev. Thomas Berger, pastor.

The meetings will be in charge of Rev. J. H. Lawther, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Niles, who will arrive on Monday. Rev. Lawther is known as an excellent speaker.

His subject for Monday will be, "How to Pray Prayers that will be Answered of God." The Tuesday night topics is, "Living and Dying for God."

Special music will be furnished by a chorus choir of young people. The Sunday school also will have a part in the program.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NIGHT FEATURED

Tonight will be Bible school night in the First United Presbyterian church where special services are under way each evening in connection with the prayer week program.

Teachers have been instructed to promote in every way a full attendance. Rev. Ustick's sermon will be "Redemption of Our Companions, or Christ and Our Friends."

The sermon for Friday night will be, "Redemption of Our Amusements." Steward Parker will be in charge of devotionals. The devotionals subject will be, "Young People at Our Colleges."

Ladies of Elks Meet.

Mrs. Lester Donnelly will be hostess to Ladies of the Elks tonight in the B. P. O. Elks' lodgerooms in Eighth street and Riverside avenue. She will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Grafton.

Five hundred will be the chief diversion. Luncheon will be served.

"LIKE WATER TO THE THIRSTY LAND"

may be poetic all right, but the man who finds himself experiencing a shower right in his dining room is not apt to appreciate that kind of poetry. Suppose you have us go over your plumbing. Then there'll be no "little drops of water" where they are not wanted.

Pretty Peggy Marsh Tries to Etude Unhappiness With New Marriage

Has Peggy Marsh found happiness at last? A new chapter has been begun in her troubled life story with her surprise marriage to Keld Fenwick, lord of the manor of Whitham, Lincolnshire. When Peggy, whose son was born of her common-law marriage with the late Henry Field, grandson of Marshall Field, married Albert Johnson in 1921 she thought that she had achieved the summit of happiness; but fate ruled otherwise. Now she is making a new start.

INFANT CHOKES ON BAKED BEANS

Leroy Burger, year and a half old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Burger, of Costonio, near Toronto, choked to death in the family residence Tuesday when a baked bean lodged in his wind pipe.

The child was eating the beans when one became fast in his throat, members of the family said. Before a physician could be summoned, he died.

Wife Asks Divorce.

Charging her husband with neglect, Cora D. Layland has filed an action for divorce from her husband, William H. Layland, of 617 Main street, Wellsville. The petition has been filed in common pleas court by Attorney James E. O'Grady. It is related in the petition that Layland refused to give his wife the medical attention suggested by a physician. The couple were married in Wheeling Aug. 28, 1917, and have two children. Layland is employed by the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad company.

Meet Following Services.

Members of the I. T. Y. T. club will convene tonight in the parlors of the First United Presbyterian church following the regular prayer services.

Class No. 10 To Convene.

Members of Sunday school class No. 10 of the First Methodist Protestant church will meet this evening in the home of Mrs. Arch Parr in Clark avenue.

United States Termed Lenient Landlord in Report Just Filed

WASHINGTON—The United States is one of the most lenient landlords, according to a report filed by Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work.

During the last fiscal year twenty-three small dwelling houses on Government land near the Capitol were rented for $6,010.50. One house in Washington was rented for $100 a year, though the report also mentions one Government-owned house which brought $900 a year.

Steel Girder Pierces Big Dirigible; Causes $17,000 Helium Loss

SCOTT FIELD, Ill.—Helium gas valued at $17,000 escaped, with an explosion-like report here, from the United States Army dirigible TC-5 when the huge bag was pierced by a steel girder on the outside of the hanger from which the ship had been removed preparatory to a flight to Springfield, Ill.

No one was injured seriously, several of the ground crew receiving scratches it was reported.

Many Civic Improvements.

CHILLICOTHE.—A survey of the work done here during 1924, discloses that nearly $200,000 worth of civic improvements were installed during the past year. Most of this money was spent on important paving jobs, the principal one, probably, being the paving of Eastern avenue, which skirts the old Ohio & Erie canal state ground.

RUSH WORK ON POWER PLANT

Officials Give Interesting Description of Big Project.

By spending $11,000,000 in the construction of its super-power station along the Ohio river near Toronto, the Ohio River Edison company and the Pennsylvania-Ohio Light & Power company, which will operate the plant under a 999 year lease are providing one of the finest power plants in the United States.

The plan will add not merely to the power resources of this industrial section, but also to the reliability of the electric service enjoyed by approximately 40 communities, officials point out in recent description of the mammoth undertaking.

The Toronto plant will be joined to the existing Penn.-Ohio power transmission system by a steel tower transmission line 39 miles long, running almost due north from Toronto to the big substation under construction at Boardman. Approximately 200 steel towers will be used.

Into this substation at Boardman also will come transmission lines from the Lowellville power generating station and the transmission line from Warren recently placed in service as an important link in the super-power zoning for this section of the country. This "tie-line" connects the Penn.-Ohio system with the Ohio Public Service company so that either company may deliver power from the other as occasion might require.

The system of the Ohio Public Service company already is tied in with the Ohio Power company by a transmission line from Warren to Canton. The Ohio Power company has transmission lines leading to the power station at Windsor and also is tied in with the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company at Akron and the N. O. T. in turn is tied in with the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company.

Thus five large power systems are tied in so that there may be an exchange of power in cases of emergency.

Plant on River.

The Toronto site has a frontage of 2,000 feet along the Ohio river and the structure now nearing completion is the first unit of the plant. It is designed for additional units so that the eventual capacity will be four times the initial capacity. The building is of steel, concrete and brick construction, 200 by 250 feet in dimension.

Actual construction work was started in September, 1923, and is expected to be completed in February, 1925. The excavations were carried on chiefly by floating dredges, the plant being brought close to the low water mark and the intake tunnels for the circulating water being carried to such a depth that the lowest possible stage of the Ohio river cannot interfere with the plant having a thoroughly adequate water supply. The watertight foundation walls rise above the highest known water mark, that of 1884.

Massive Structure.

Some idea of the massiveness of the structure may be gained from the fact that foundation mat upon which the structure rests is one huge slab of concrete with steel reinforcing covering the side of the building and from six to eight feet thick. Five hundred tons of reinforcing steel and 15,000 cubic yards of concrete went into its construction.

The initial installation will comprise two turbo-generator units with requisite boilers, transformers, banks, etc. Each of the turbo-generators will be of 37,500 K. V. A. capacity. The eventual capacity of the plant will be 300,000 K. V. A., approximately 350,000 horsepower. The turbines will take steam at 350 pounds pressure.

The boiler plant will consist of four boilers, each having 21,500 square feet of heating surface. The air furnished by waste gases from the furnace, thus recovering a large amount of heat that otherwise would be wasted up the stacks. The furnaces will be equipped with water screens on all four sides and bottom.

One of the especially interesting features of the plant will be the use of powdered coal for fuel. The fuel after passing through a special pulverizing process wherein it is ground to the finest form of powder, will be blown by air blasts into the furnaces, thus being more nearly akin to the use of fuel oil than to the ordinary method of burning coal.

Whose Are the Great Lakes?

The decision of the United States supreme court against Chicago's diversion of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan through the drainage canal, declaring it illegal, is a more important one than many citizens have realized.

Chicago has been taking this tremendous amount of water to aid it in the disposal of its sewge. It ras been shown that the withdrawal of so much water from Lake Michigan has lowered the general level of all the Great Lakes, except Superior, as much as six inches, seriously affecting shipping.

The supreme court points out that this is a matter not of local welfare and convenience, but of national and international import. Chicago's claim that the United States has no right to determine the amount of water that shall flow through the channel or the manner of its flow is therefore denied. In the report read by Chief Justice Taft, the court declares:

"This is not a controversy between equals. The United States is asserting its sovereign power to regulate commerce and the control of navigable waters within its jurisdiction. It has a standing in this suit not only to remove obstructions to interstate and foreign commerce, but also to carry out out treaty obligations to a foreign power bordering upon some of the lakes concerned and, it may be, also on the footing of an ultimate sovereign interest in the lakes."

Americans in general are too inclined to think of the Great Lakes as our lakes, with little regard to Canada. Citizens of lake cities think of the lake on which they happen to be situated as theirs instead of a possession shared with all the other communities and states along its border. The supreme court's decision should remind everybody that the lakes are no one's private property, and the same reasoning presumably applies to navigable lakes and streams throughout the country.

Trailing Francis Drake

A group of Englishmen have just set sail from Appledore, the Devonshire port from which Francis Drake sailed many years ago, to follow Drake's course around the world. They are voyaging in a three-masted frigate, the "Marian." The crew is made up of 14 hardy mariners selected from hundreds of eager applicants. Most of them will get nothing out of the trip but adventure. The mate is a real sea dog who has spent 60 years on the seas and has never yet shipped on anything but a sailing vessel. There is to be a chronicler for this twentieth century adventure, an Englishman who is an explorer and who has mapped much of Borneo and the islands south of India and China.

The voyage has a historical purpose. The ship is to make stops at numerous cities which have sprung up along the coasts passed or touched by Drake. It is hoped to gather some data of Drake's trip never before recorded.

The farewell message of one of the leaders of the expedition sets an imaginative person to dreaming.

"Sails will serve us better than steam. Time is no immediate object. We shall drop down the Bideford river, as British sailors sailed before, and we may see you all again in five years' time."

Even the presence in the ship's equipment of the most up-to-date moving picture and photographic outfits, or the fear of seasickness, can hardly dispel the charm of that voyage to the stay-at-home to whom time and work are pressing.

The Cross-Word Crook

Evidently there are unsuspected perils lurking in the apparently innocent cross-word puzzle. It may become an instrument of crime.

Consider the sad experience of John Sankowski and Edward Segar, of Lynn, Mass. Those ardent cross-word fans were seated in a restaurant, working out a puzzle, when a stranger came up and won their confidence by showing that he knew more about puzzles than they did. Eventually he invited them to his room to continue working out their solutions.

Later, the two boys reported that the obliging stranger had stolen their overcoats, fountain pens, gold watches and money.

Beware the cross-word confidence man!

Haskin Letter

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

OUR FOREIGN DEBTORS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Within the next few weeks the American people will hear much concerning the indebtedness of European countries to our government. Two developments have brought the question to the fore. First, France has had several things to say recently concerning her large debt, and, second, the life of the World war debt funding commission, the body which has charge of negotiations for the American government, expires by limitation on February 9. Congress must act to extend the life of hte commission or there will be no direct agency with which the foreign debtors may deal.

The original debt of ten billions has grown through interest accretions to over twelve billions. The American people are taxed to pay the interest on the unfunded and dormant portion of this debt, and, as a matter of course, every citizen is concerned with having the question settled.

The present status of the debt is summarized as follows: Forty-two per cent of it is funded. This amounts in figures to $4,249,434,720. Great Britain, our largest debtor, has entered into an agreement whereby she pays yearly instalments averaging $160,000,000. Sixty-two years will be required to repay the whole debt. The other funding arrangements have been or will be on the British model. Interest continues to run throughout the long period so that a far greater sum than the original amount lent will come back to the United States.

Finland has funded her debt of over $9,000,000 and the loan of $50,000,000 to Hungary also has been put on a funded basis. A small loan to Lithuania has been funded and the loan of approximately $160,000,000 to Poland has been taken care of on the British model.

Funding is a term of technical finance which merely means the concluding of a definite agreement for the payment of a debt. When the loans were originally made to the allies and later to the succession states, such as Poland and Finland, they were in the form of demand obligations. That is, each nation gave its notes to pay to the United States on demand the full amount of the loan with accrued interest. No one ever expected payment of the whole sums at once, but so long as they are in the form of demand obligations they constitute an immediate liability. No country can know at what moment the United States might make the demand for payment in full. For this reason it is of importance to the debtors as well as to the United States to make funding arrangements.

CUBA HAS PAID IN FULL

The neighboring republic of Cuba is the only war debtor who has paid in full. The $10,000,000 loan made to Cuba by the United States when the island declared war on Germany has been repaid with interest.

Other debts remain unfunded. France heads the list with a debt of about $4,100,000,000, including interest. Italy, Belgium, Armenia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Esthonia, Greece, Latvia, Liberia, Nicragua, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Russia are the other debtors. Some of these countries have begun negotiations for funding, but about half of them have made no move in that direction at all. This state of affairs shows the importance of extension of the life of the debt funding commission after next February, as it would be impossible to clear up the remaining debts within the intervening brief period.

The case of France is that which has attracted most attention. From the very first there have been many suggestions from various public men of the United States and foreign countries that the United States should cancel all or at least a part of the debt France owes. This is based partially on the heroic part France paid in holding the Germans and partially on the fact that France lent generously to the United, States in George Washington's days when we were impoverished and required funds to carry on the Revolutionary war and the functions of government.

This sentiment is not general, it being felt that the American troops who swept back the Germans from French territory repaid the old debt, while the money loan is purely a financial consideration.

The United States already has canceled hundreds of millions of the debt and stands prepared to cancel more. The original loans were made at from 5 to 6½ per cent interest. When the funding negotiation was made with England, as with the other countries, the rate was dropped to 3 and 3½ per cent. Over the 62 years amortization period allowed, this means a virtual cancellation of vast sums. Under the original contracts entered into by the European nations, they agreed to pay the higher rate and the United States legally and morally could hold them to those terms.

CANCEL ONE, CANCEL ALL

Every country which took part in the war contributed heroic efforts, in the view of the American government, and if the debt of one is to be cancelled, the debt of all would have to be. Each president and each secretary of the treasury since the war has stoutly maintained that there can be no cancellation beyond the substantial cancellation represented by the cut in the rate of interest.

Recent developments in the French debt situation have been of the highest interest. Jules Jusserand, about to end 22 years' service as ambassador at Washington, called upon the secretary of the treasury, Mellon, chairman of the debt funding commission, for a talk with him on the debt status, prior to his departure for France. Mr. Mellon outlined in general terms the wishes of the United States. Ambassador Jusseran notified his government of his consersation. He received instructions from Paris to continue, and subsequently a meeting of the full commission was called, at which the French position was considered. It was hinted that later a special mission would come to the United States to settle details.

Thereupon, Winston Churhill, chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain, announced that if France were ready to pay her debts, Great Britain would like to be remembered. This was regarded by the American government as a natural development. Secretary Mellon said: "If a man owes several other men and announces he is ready to pay any one of them, the other creditors step up and suggest that what is due them be also remembered." However, some criticism of the British position was expressed in congress, it being declared that England was trying to block payment to the United States.

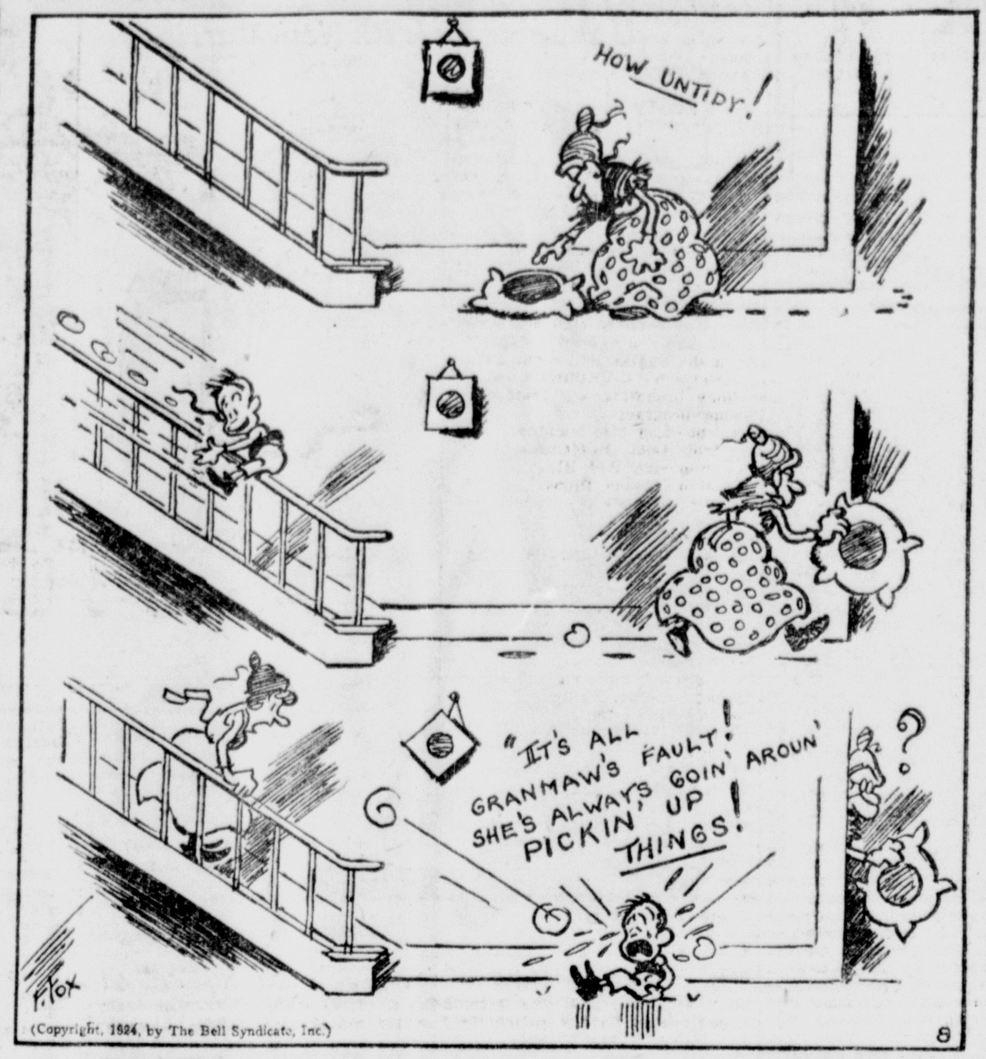

France then said, in effect, that if she had to pay England at once she could not pay the United States. This statement has caused much chagrin and a feeling in this country that France may be resorting to diplomatic means to postpone further negotiations. This is where the case stands now. It is regarded as possible that the American government may dispatch a note to France asking a definite statement of her intentions.

The American policy is to reach an agreement whereby the debtor country can make annual payments in the full amount settled upon without being economically crippled. That is, the United States in no case has sought to exact payments of a magnitude which would impose an undue burden of taxation upon the debtor country. Further, it desires to leave in the hands of the debtor sufficient income adequately to develop its resources and carry on its trade, being aware that the surest way to obtain ultimate payment of the full sum is to advance the prosperity of the debtor rather than reduce it by taking too much wealth out of the country at one time.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By COPELAND C. BURG.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—Bobbed hair, beaches and California's golden sunshine are causing an increase in Los Angeles divorces.

When middle westerners come here for the winter one-half of the couples want to return home, while the other half insist upon remaining in the sunshine. Divorce suits follow.

Walter Hagen, Omaha merchant, brought his wife, Minnie, here for the winter. When spring came Hagen had to return to his business. Mrs. Hagen refused to accompany him to the Nebraska plains and later won a divorce because her husband would not make this city his permanent home.

Richard Wright was just a "Main Street" family man back in Iowa. He came here for a visit.

"He went wild about women after he visited Los Angeles beaches," his wife charged in court, when she obtained a divorce. "Back in Iowa he used to wear slippers and stay home nights, but here all he wanted to do was visit the beaches and run around with other women."

Dan Stewart and Milton Morris Chase are Los Angeles barbers. Dan likes to bob hair. Milton doesn't.

Their bobbed-hair complexes led them to the divorce courts.

"Dan was fine and dandy until women began to wear short hair and patronize the barber shops," Mrs. Isabel Nesbit Stewart testified. "Then he changed. He tried to make dates with all the women who came into his shop. He whispered into their ears while he stripped their locks. I scolded him. Then he left me and never came back."

"Decree granted," said Judge Charles Crail. "Next!"

Mrs. Gertrude P. Chase spoke to the judge.

"My husband would not support me because he was so lazy," said Mrs. Chase. "He was all right until women began to get bobbed hair cuts and visit his shop. He refused to bob hair. 'Too much work,' he said. 'It takes longer than a man's haircut, and women customers are too particular. You can't ever please them!' He said he would never snap his scissors again until women quit wearing bobbed hair."

Mrs. Chase won her freedom, too.

If a husband insists on buying his wife's hats for her, is she justified in leaving him?

That is the question Judge J. W. Summerfield must decide.

Mrs. Helen G. Leonard brought suit for divorce against John Leonard because she wouldn't let her husband buy her clothes.

"He bought me two hats and a coat," Mrs. Leonard declared, "and they were terrible. One of the hats didn't fit at all, and the only defense he had was that he tried it on himself. But he made no allowance for bobbed hair.

"He also bought me an old purple hat, without a feather, that was weird. It could not have cost more than $1.95. Also, he purchased some stockings at the 10-cent store. They faded and ran all over the place!"

Leonard is 38. Mrs. Leonard is 17 years old.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—During many strolls in the crowded East Side I have seen him, as have many others. It is a poverty stricken face, ashen white under tendrils of crow black hair. The hat is a wide rimmed black hat of the art student.

He seems to mirror all the woe of the district in which he moves. In the little coffee houses and cafes of Second avenue he sits alone, brooding and motionless, like some framed horror. So far as I can learn he has never been seen with anyone else.

Around Letan's where the gypsy violinists play they say he often comes there late at night, retires to a darkened corner and sketches for hours with pencil and pad, drinking as many as 12 cups of black coffee in an hour Then he tears his sketches into tiny bits and leaves.

Others tell of seeing him at midnight on a span of the Williamsbury bridge steadily gazing down into the odd, acute glitter of the lights on the rippling water. Policemen say he has gone there at midnight and remained until dawn pinks the sky.

He is only one of the hundreds of human mysteries in Gotham. In a smaller city they would learn of his name, perhaps of his disappointments. And no doubt they would crack the veneer of aloofness and get to the heart of things.

But it is the inexplicable manner of New York to shy at grief. It fears the hard luck story. It dodges woe. Men and women may carry their heavy burdens for years and years and no one will question them. Yet if they do reveal their sorrows. They come and go year after year, silent men and women who mumble to themselves along the streets and longing for a friendly hand or voice.

The old-fashioned waltz is returning to its pristine popularity in the jazz halls. All the orchestras are adding waltz numbers and several professional dancers are featuring it in their stage diversions.

The waltz makes one wonder what has become of the old-fashioned dancing master. He taught our generation many other things beside dancing. We learned to curtsey properly before our elders, the correct manners at the table and to toe-out as we walked. He belonged to the age of 10 cents a box paper collars—turned on Thursday, taffy pullings and shoefly neckties. One I remember had a circuit of small towns, visiting each once a week. He was popular with parents and when he died he left an estate of $75,000—a big fortune in those days.

Eventually to complete the cycle I predict the return of the square dance. There must be some relief from jazz and the square dance furnishes it with its, "Balance all, first gent to the right, swing corners, all hands around."

And a friendly correspondent writes me to inquire if I remember the days when the boys had their pants slit at the ankles with three buttons sewed on each pant leg. That was a little before my time. My father, I believe, went in for them. But I belonged to the taffy pulling age and remember distinctly how the hostess would ask all the guests to grease their hands with butter so the taffy wouldn't stick. Butter was then eight cents a pound. It seems to me we had more fun pulling the dark brown candy into a golden brown than the young men of today have swigging drug store gin.

AGED 105 AND THAT'S ALL

An old gentleman celebrates his one hundred and fifth birthday, not unusual in these days of long living, and newspapers distribute his views.

"Never give any advice," says he, "and don't worry. I have always done what I wanted to do and have never worried."

Never worry and you will live long. Worry poisons the mind and kills in the end.

But the gentleman aged 105, is aged 105, and that's all you can say about him. To do what you don't want to do and to worry may mean shorten life. It also may mean doing something worth while.

To be a Harriman, or a Hill, open up great territories, conquer a Salton sea, make a short cut across Salt Lake, help create the great northwest and die too young is better than never worrying and living to 105.

$70,000,000 PER PLANE

The regularly established airplane service between London and Berlin makes the 600-mile trip in four hours. These machines, headed this way, would cross the Atlantic in 20 hours.

That is something to interest this nation which talks and spends, but makes no airplane progress.

In spending we are very efficient. On airplane service, since the war, this nation has spent more than $400,000,000. How much of that went in waste and graft, do you think?

For our $400,000,000 spent since the war, and about one thousand millions spent during the war, we have, according to official testimony, just 20 airplanes fit to be of service in war.

That makes out good machines average up about $70,00,000 each, which is not cheap. If the country spends $400,000,000 more you may be sure that Calvin Coolidge will get some flying machines for the money. Why not buy, for a start, 1,000 machines abroad, where they know how to make the kind that fly.

THE DROP DID NOT COME

That predicted 1925 drop did not visit the stock market yesterday. Almost everything went up, railroads leading, cotton and wheat following. Call money used in speculation dropped to 3 per cent and all was serene.

The lambs have not gained full headway yet. They are thinking, dear little things. Once they get really started there will be busy moments for stray bears.

Elmer Schlesinger, party of the inside works of Chadbourne, Stanchfield & Levy, lawyers with clients of the big kind, says: "This is going to be such a boom year as nobody living has ever seen." He is a cool, not excitable young man. And he is probably right. Whatever else you do, be careful not to sell short. "That way madness lies." But don't gamble.

MUMMY FINGERPRINTS

When the lawyer writes "hereto I set my hand and seal," he refers to the ancient custom, as old as Egypt, of sealing documents with the print of the thumb.

Three thousand years before Christ fingerprints and thumbprints were used for identification. The Chinese use fingerprints to identify armies of laborers as they are paid off.

Mr. Bogan, expert of the navy, has been making fingerprints of mummies, and says that in all the thousands of years no two human beings have had fingerprints alike.

What's more important, no two have had brains alike, and that accounts for change and progress.

Sugar companies, oil and railroad companies are organizing great mergers, bigger and bigger industrial units are coming. In the end, perhaps, single units will include entire industries. The big steel company would probably control the nation's steel business tomorrow, except that Judge Gary is conservative.

No need to worry it, the bigger the better, if the public gets its share of the savings. If the public is not intelligent enough to watch and regulate one big concern, it won't be able to watch and control the secret inside of a dozen little concerns.

Very expensive is the overhead in wasteful competition, and the public pays the entire bill always. If 10 companies sent five milk wagons and five baker wagons to your block, you and others on the block would pay for the eight unnecessary wagons.

Henry Ford loaded 5,000 automobiles on his ship Oneida in New York harbor yesterday, and sent the load down to Jacksonville, New Orleans and Houston. Factories, mines, forests, waterpower, ships and money enough to buy Morgan & Co., that once imagined it could buy him. When will the first all metal Ford airplane appear?

WHO'S WHO

HSUAN TUNG.

Hsuan Tung, "Son of Heaven," remains an outcast from his native land of China—an exile in Japan. As little Pu Yi, two years old, he ascended the Chinese throne in 1908. Four years later, with the advent of the republic, he abdicated, and since then has been allowed to live in retirement in the palace of his fathers.

HSUAN TUNG

In December, 1923, he married a daughter of Jung Yuan, a Manchu noble, and, learning that western monarchs used personal names, he chose "Henry" for himself and "Elizabeth" for his wife.

A few years ago he angered the imperial dowagers by having his queue cut off. On November 5 soldiers broke into his retreat, demanding that he leave the palace, give up title and privileges and accept reduction of his annual income from $4,000,000 to $500,000. The influence of Sun Yat Sen and the Bolshevist Ambassador Karakhan, have been credited with the action.

Hsuan Tung moved, with the empress and second consort, to the house of his father, Prince Chun. His English tutor, R. F. Johnston, was refused admittance. The new Chinese government granted Hsuan Tung his freedom, and his first act was to fly from the empire—a refugee.

DINNER STORIES

Bernard Shaw, who is not everfond of music, now, probably because of his early career as critic, happened to be beguiled to a musicale given by a prominent London society woman, who, during the evening, found the author sitting disconsolate and bored in a corner of the room.

"Now, really, Mr. Shaw," said the hostess, "don't you think this orchestra plays beautifully. These men have been playing together for 11 years."

"Eleven years?" repeated Shaw. "Haven't we been here longer than that?"

Whose Are the Great Lakes?

The decision of the United States supreme court against Chicago's diversion of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan through the drainage canal, declaring it illegal, is a more important one than many citizens have realized.

Chicago has been taking this tremendous amount of water to aid it in the disposal of its sewge. It ras been shown that the withdrawal of so much water from Lake Michigan has lowered the general level of all the Great Lakes, except Superior, as much as six inches, seriously affecting shipping.

The supreme court points out that this is a matter not of local welfare and convenience, but of national and international import. Chicago's claim that the United States has no right to determine the amount of water that shall flow through the channel or the manner of its flow is therefore denied. In the report read by Chief Justice Taft, the court declares:

"This is not a controversy between equals. The United States is asserting its sovereign power to regulate commerce and the control of navigable waters within its jurisdiction. It has a standing in this suit not only to remove obstructions to interstate and foreign commerce, but also to carry out treaty obligations to a foreign power bordering upon some of the lakes concerned and, it may be, also on the footing of an ultimate sovereign interest in the lakes."

Americans in general are too inclined to think of the Great Lakes as our lakes, with little regard to Canada. Citizens of lake cities think of the lake on which they happen to be situated as theirs instead of a possession shared with all the other communities and states along its border. The supreme court's decision should remind everybody that the lakes are no one's private property, and the same reasoning presumably applies to navigable lakes and streams throughout the country.

Trailing Francis Drake

A group of Englishmen have just set sail from Appledore, the Devonshire port from which Francis Drake sailed many years ago, to follow Drake's course around the world. They are voyaging in a three-masted frigate, the "Marian." The crew is made up of 14 hardy mariners selected from hundreds of eager applicants. Most of them will get nothing out of the trip but adventure. The mate is a real sea dog who has spent 60 years on the seas and has never yet shipped on anything but a sailing vessel. There is to be a chronicler for this twentieth century adventure, an Englishman who is an explorer and who has mapped much of Borneo and the islands south of India and China.

The voyage has a historical purpose. The ship is to make stops at numerous cities which have sprung up along the coasts passed or touched by Drake. It is hoped to gather some data of Drake's trip never before recorded.

The farewell message of one of the leaders of the expedition sets an imaginative person to dreaming.

"Sails will serve us better than steam. Time is no immediate object. We shall drop down the Bideford river, as British sailors sailed before, and we may see you all again in five years' time."

Even the presence in the ship's equipment of the most up-to-date moving picture and photographic outfits, or the fear of seasickness, can hardly dispel the charm of that voyage to the stay-at-home to whom time and work are pressing.

The Cross-Word Crook

Evidently there are unsuspected perils lurking in the apparently innocent cross-word puzzle. It may become an instrument of crime.

Consider the sad experience of John Sankowski and Edward Segar, of Lynn, Mass. Those ardent cross-word fans were seated in a restaurant, working out a puzzle, when a stranger came up and won their confidence by showing that he knew more about puzzles than they did. Eventually he invited them to his room to continue working out their solutions.

Later, the two boys reported that the obliging stranger had stolen their overcoats, fountain pens, gold watches and money.

Beware the cross-word confidence man!

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

OUR FOREIGN DEBTORS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Within the next few weeks the American people will hear much concerning the indebtedness of European countries to our government. Two developments have brought the question to the fore. First, France has had several things to say recently concerning her large debt, and, second, the life of the World war debt funding commission, the body which has charge of negotiations for the American government, expires by limitation on February 9. Congress must act to extend the life of hte commission or there will be no direct agency with which the foreign debtors may deal.

The original debt of ten billions has grown through interest accretions to over twelve billions. The American people are taxed to pay the interest on the unfunded and dormant portion of this debt, and, as a matter of course, every citizen is concerned with having the question settled.

The present status of the debt is summarized as follows: Forty-two per cent of it is funded. This amounts in figures to $4,249,434,720. Great Britain, our largest debtor, has entered into an agreement whereby she pays yearly instalments averaging $160,000,000. Sixty-two years will be required to repay the whole debt. The other funding arrangements have been or will be on the British model. Interest continues to run throughout the long period so that a far greater sum than the original amount lent will come back to the United States.

Finland has funded her debt of over $9,000,000 and the loan of $50,000,000 to Hungary also has been put on a funded basis. A small loan to Lithuania has been funded and the loan of approximately $160,000,000 to Poland has been taken care of on the British model.

Funding is a term of technical finance which merely means the concluding of a definite agreement for the payment of a debt. When the loans were originally made to the allies and later to the succession states, such as Poland and Finland, they were in the form of demand obligations. That is, each nation gave its notes to pay to the United States on demand the full amount of the loan with accrued interest. No one ever expected payment of the whole sums at once, but so long as they are in the form of demand obligations they constitute an immediate liability. No country can know at what moment the United States might make the demand for payment in full. For this reason it is of importance to the debtors as well as to the United States to make funding arrangements.

CUBA HAS PAID IN FULL

The neighboring republic of Cuba is the only war debtor who has paid in full. The $10,000,000 loan made to Cuba by the United States when the island declared war on Germany has been repaid with interest.

Other debts remain unfunded. France heads the list with a debt of about $4,100,000,000, including interest. Italy, Belgium, Armenia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Esthonia, Greece, Latvia, Liberia, Nicragua, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Russia are the other debtors. Some of these countries have begun negotiations for funding, but about half of them have made no move in that direction at all. This state of affairs shows the importance of extension of the life of the debt funding commission after next February, as it would be impossible to clear up the remaining debts within the intervening brief period.

The case of France is that which has attracted most attention. From the very first there have been many suggestions from various public men of the United States and foreign countries that the United States should cancel all or at least a part of the debt France owes. This is based partially on the heroic part France paid in holding the Germans and partially on the fact that France lent generously to the United, States in George Washington's days when we were impoverished and required funds to carry on the Revolutionary war and the functions of government.

This sentiment is not general, it being felt that the American troops who swept back the Germans from French territory repaid the old debt, while the money loan is purely a financial consideration.

The United States already has canceled hundreds of millions of the debt and stands prepared to cancel more. The original loans were made at from 5 to 5½ per cent interest. When the funding negotiation was made with England, as with the other countries, the rate was dropped to 3 and 3½ per cent. Over the 62 years amortization period allowed, this means a virtual cancellation of vast sums. Under the original contracts entered into by the European nations, they agreed to pay the higher rate and the United States legally and morally could hold them to those terms.

CANCEL ONE, CANCEL ALL

Every country which took part in the war contributed heroic efforts, in the view of the American government, and if the debt of one is to be cancelled, the debt of all would have to be. Each president and each secretary of the treasury since the war has stoutly maintained that there can be no cancellation beyond the substantial cancellation represented by the cut in the rate of interest.

Recent developments in the French debt situation have been of the highest interest. Jules Jusserand, about to end 22 years' service as ambassador at Washington, called upon the secretary of the treasury, Mellon, chairman of the debt funding commission, for a talk with him on the debt status, prior to his departure for France. Mr. Mellon outlined in general terms the wishes of the United States. Ambassador Jusseran notified his government of his consersation. He received instructions from Paris to continue, and subsequently a meeting of the full commission was called, at which the French position was considered. It was hinted that later a special mission would come to the United States to settle details.

Thereupon, Winston Churhill, chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain, announced that if France were ready to pay her debts, Great Britain would like to be remembered. This was regarded by the American government as a natural development. Secretary Mellon said: "If a man owes several other men and announces he is ready to pay any one of them, the other creditors step up and suggest that what is due them be also remembered." However, some criticism of the British position was expressed in congress, it being declared that England was trying to block payment to the United States.

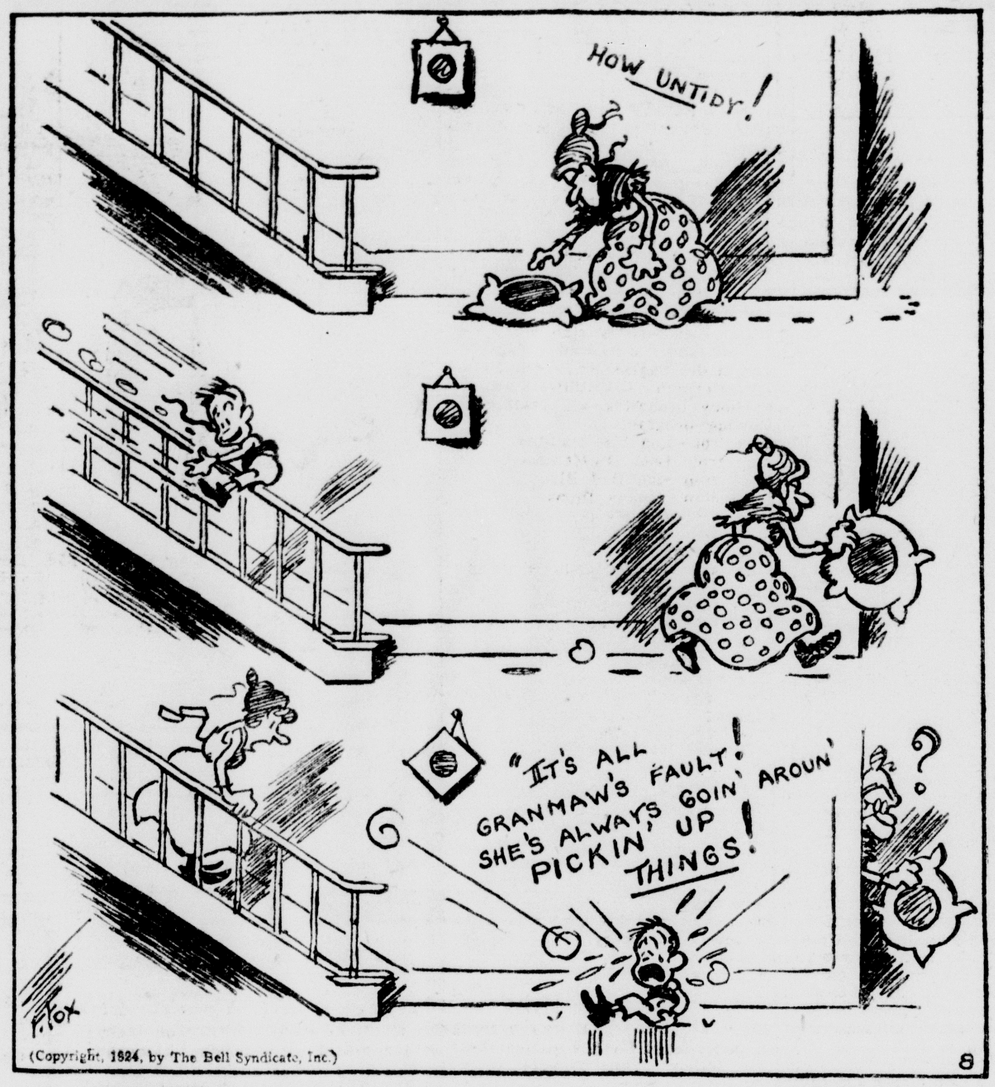

France then said, in effect, that if she had to pay England at once she could not pay the United States. This statement has caused much chagrin and a feeling in this country that France may be resorting to diplomatic means to postpone further negotiations. This is where the case stands now. It is regarded as possible that the American government may dispatch a note to France asking a definite statement of her intentions.

The American policy is to reach an agreement whereby the debtor country can make annual payments in the full amount settled upon without being economically crippled. That is, the United States in no case has sought to exact payments of a magnitude which would impose an undue burden of taxation upon the debtor country. Further, it desires to leave in the hands of the debtor sufficient income adequately to develop its resources and carry on its trade, being aware that the surest way to obtain ultimate payment of the full sum is to advance the prosperity of the debtor rather than reduce it by taking too much wealth out of the country at one time.

He belonged to the age of 10 cents a box paper collars—turned on Thursday, taffy pullings and shoefly neckties. One I remember had a circuit of small towns, visiting each once a week. He was popular with parents and when he died he left an estate of $75,000—a big fortune in those days.

Eventually to complete the cycle I predict the return of the square dance. There must be some relief from jazz and the square dance furnishes it with its, "Balance all, first gent to the right, swing corners, all hands around."

And a friendly correspondent writes me to inquire if I remember the days when the boys had their pants slit at the ankles with three buttons sewed on each pant leg. That was a little before my time. My father, I believe, went in for them. But I belonged to the taffy pulling age and remember distinctly how the hostess would ask all the guests to grease their hands with butter so the taffy wouldn't stick. Butter was then eight cents a pound. It seems to me we had more fun pulling the dark brown candy into a golden brown than the young men of today have swigging drug store gin.

AGED 105 AND THAT'S ALL

An old gentleman celebrates his one hundred and fifth birthday, not unusual in these days of long living, and newspapers distribute his views.

"Never give any advice," says he, "and don't worry. I have always done what I wanted to do and have never worried."

Never worry and you will live long. Worry poisons the mind and kills in the end.

But the gentleman aged 105, is aged 105, and that's all you can say about him. To do what you don't want to do and to worry may mean shorten life. It also may mean doing something worth while.

To be a Harriman, or a Hill, open up great territories, conquer a Salton sea, make a short cut across Salt Lake, help create the great northwest and die too young is better than never worrying and living to 105.

$70,000,000 PER PLANE

The regularly established airplane service between London and Berlin makes the 600-mile trip in four hours. These machines, headed this way, would cross the Atlantic in 20 hours.

That is something to interest this nation which talks and spends, but makes no airplane progress.

In spending we are very efficient. On airplane service, since the war, this nation has spent more than $400,000,000. How much of that went in waste and graft, do you think?

For our $400,000,000 spent since the war, and about one thousand millions spent during the war, we have, according to official testimony, just 20 airplanes fit to be of service in war.

That makes out good machines average up about $70,00,000 each, which is not cheap. If the country spends $400,000,000 more you may be sure that Calvin Coolidge will get some flying machines for this money. Why not buy, for a start, 1,000 machines abroad, where they know how to make the kind that fly.

THE DROP DID NOT COME

That predicted 1925 drop did not visit the stock market yesterday. Almost everything went up, railroads leading, cotton and wheat following. Call money used in speculation dropped to 3 per cent and all was serene.

The lambs have not gained full headway yet. They are thinking, dear little things. Once they get really started there will be busy moments for stray bears.

Elmer Schlesinger, party of the inside works of Chadbourne, Stanchfield & Levy, lawyers with clients of the big kind, says: "This is going to be such a boom year as nobody living has ever seen." He is a cool, not excitable young man. And he is probably right. Whatever else you do, be careful not to sell short. "That way madness lies." But don't gamble.

MUMMY FINGERPRINTS

When the lawyer writes "hereto I set my hand and seal," he refers to the ancient custom, as old as Egypt, of sealing documents with the print of the thumb.

Three thousand years before Christ fingerprints and thumbprints were used for identification. The Chinese use fingerprints to identify armies of laborers as they are paid off.

Mr. Bogan, expert of the navy, has been making fingerprints of mummies, and says that in all the thousands of years no two human beings have had fingerprints alike.

What's more important, no two have had brains alike, and that accounts for change and progress.

Sugar companies, oil and railroad companies are organizing great mergers, bigger and bigger industrial units are coming. In the end, perhaps, single units will include entire industries. The big steel company would probably control the nation's steel business tomorrow, except that Judge Gary is conservative.

No need to worry it, the bigger the better, if the public gets its share of the savings. If the public is not intelligent enough to watch and regulate one big concern, it won't be able to watch and control the secret inside of a dozen little concerns.

Very expensive is the overhead in wasteful competition, and the public pays the entire bill always. If 10 companies sent five milk wagons and five baker wagons to your block, you and others on the block would pay for the eight unnecessary wagons.

Henry Ford loaded 5,000 automobiles on his ship Oneida in New York harbor yesterday, and sent the load down to Jacksonville, New Orleans and Houston. Factories, mines, forests, waterpower, ships and money enough to buy Morgan & Co., that once imagined it could buy him. When will the first all metal Ford airplane appear?

WHO'S WHO

HSUAN TUNG.

Hsuan Tung, "Son of Heaven," remains an outcast from his native land of China—an exile in Japan. As little Pu Yi, two years old, he ascended the Chinese throne in 1908. Four years later, with the advent of the republic, he abdicated, and since then has been allowed to live in retirement in the palace of his fathers.

HSUAN TUNG

In December, 1923, he married a daughter of Jung Yuan, a Manchu noble, and, learning that western monarchs used personal names, he chose "Henry" for himself and "Elizabeth" for his wife.

A few years ago he angered the imperial dowagers by having his queue cut off. On November 5 soldiers broke into his retreat, demanding that he leave the palace, give up title and privileges and accept reduction of his annual income from $4,000,000 to $500,000. The influence of Sun Yat Sen and the Bolshevist Ambassador Karakhan, have been credited with the action.

Hsuan Tung moved, with the empress and second consort, to the house of his father, Prince Chun. His English tutor, R. F. Johnston, was refused admittance. The new Chinese government granted Hsuan Tung his freedom, and his first act was to fly from the empire—a refugee.

DINNER STORIES

Bernard Shaw, who is not everfond of music now, probably because of his early career as critic, happened to be beguiled to a musicale given by a prominent London society woman, who, during the evening, found the author sitting disconsolate and bored in a corner of the room.

"Now, really, Mr. Shaw," said the hostess, "don't you think this orchestra plays beautifully. These men have been playing together for 11 years."

"Eleven years?" repeated Shaw. "Haven't we been here longer than that?"

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like "a vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poltice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35¢ "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.

"The radio courtship" began three months ago, when Miss Hess sent Mr. Mallie a note of congratulation after hearing a concert.

Mystery in Finding Of Bodies at Seaside; Officials Baffled

PARIS — The discovery of the bodies of two men on the seashore at Carras, near Nice, together with the broken remains of a small boat, is mystifying the local police.

One man had apparently died of burns, and as there are no signs of burning on his clothes it is obvious that his body must have been clothed after death and then thrown into the sea. The other man was naked.

Suffering Reported.

NELSONVILLE.—Considerable suffering is reported throughout the Hocking coal field and in several nearby mining regions, with the coming of cold weather. Heads of families have been idle so long that, in many homes, there is little to eat or wear. Relief agencies are doing what they can to help in many instances.

Men as well as women of the better classes in Greece use cheap perfumery extensively.

Her Tragic Mistake

Not all the tragedies of life are played in the city. A mere farm may provide the background for as thrilling a drama as ever was unfolded. Minnie found that out. Born and raised on the farm, the discontent that came of drudgery grew swiftly into revolt. She longed to escape—to meet real men and women—to enjoy the ease and pleasure she believed were to be found in the great world outside her own.

This true story of a farm-girl who wanted life and "freedom," might well be the story of any girl. It is entitled "A Strange Marriage," and appears as one of the many absorbing features in True Story Magazine for February.

Beauty

35¢ "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.

Radio Romance Comes To Light; Vocalist Weds Chicago Girl

PITTSURGH—A radio romance which had its inception when Thomas Mallie, Pittsburgh, vocalist and song writer, appeared as a soloist on a program at a local broadcasting station and Miss Dorothy Hess, of Chicago, an actress, "listened in" in her New York apartment, was revealed here when announcement was made of their marriage.

"The radio courtship" began three months ago, when Miss Hess sent Mr. Mallie a note of congratulation after hearing a concert.

Mystery in Finding Of Bodies at Seaside; Officials Baffled

PARIS — The discovery of the bodies of two men on the seashore at Carras, near Nice, together with the broken remains of a small boat, is mystifying the local police.

One man had apparently died of burns, and as there are no signs of burning on his clothes it is obvious that his body must have been clothed after death and then thrown into the sea. The other man was naked.

Steel bungalows have been perfected.

Suffering Reported.

NELSONVILLE—Considerable suffering is reported throughout the Hocking coal field and in several nearby mining regions, with the coming of cold weather. Heads of families have been idle so long that, in many homes, there is little to eat or wear. Relief agencies are doing what they can to help in many instances.

Men as well as women of the better classes in Greece use cheap perfumery extensively.

Her Tragic Mistake

Not all the tragedies of life are played in the city. A mere farm may provide the background for as thrilling a drama as ever was unfolded. Minnie found that out. Born and raised on the farm, the discontent that came of drudgery grew swiftly into revolt. She longed to escape—to meet real men and women—to enjoy the ease and pleasure she believed were to be found in the great world outside her own.

This true story of a farm-girl who wanted life and "freedom," might well be the story of any girl. It is entitled "A Strange Marriage," and appears as one of the many absorbing features in True Story Magazine for February.

"WAR DEBT MEET O. K." -LOGAN

Encouraging Declaration Made by American Observer.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—"Our conversations are progressing normally."

This encouraging declaration was made today by Colonel James A. Logan, American observer on the reparations commission, when he came out of an hour's conference with Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill of England. The conference was held in the British embassy.

Colonel Logan went to the American embassy where he reported to United States Ambassador Herrick and Kellogg on the progress which had been made toward a settlement of America's war claims.

At the conclusion of his "informal conversation" with Colonel Logan, Churchill immediately took up with Finance Minister Clementel further negotiations looking to a settlement of France's war debt to England.

Clementel's Proposal.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—A proposition for French payments—on long time terms and at low interest rates, but none the less a definite proposal to pay—has been made by Finance Minister Clementel to Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill, official circles here reported today.

By the terms of Clementel's reported proposition, France would pay Great Britain and the United States at the same time, a point on which the British have insisted. France would pay its debt in 80 years, but want's a ten-year moratorium first. The interest rate in the first ten years of payment following the morotorium would be half of one percent and in the second decade one percent with arrangements for payment of the principal left for the present to future negotiations.

Diplomatic circles also were discussing the information informally transmitted to Britain by the United States, advising Britain that under no circumstances can the United States enter a general debt conference unless congress amends the debt funding law.

State Department Satisfied.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Marked satisfaction was expressed at the state department today over the progress being made at Paris impressing upon the allied finance ministers the justice of the American claim to equal participation in the Dawes annuities.

Col. James A. Logan reported to the department after his conference with Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, that the basis for an agreement had been reached.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The shallowness of France's recent "proposals" for settling her four billion dollar war debt was emphasized here today by an official announcement that no meeting of the American debt funding commission will be called to consider the terms proposed in the Clementel memoradum.

After a thorough examination of this remarkable document, administration officials have reached the conclusion that M. Clementel has not proposed, even informally and unofficially, anything worth considering.

Large Crowd Attends Union Prayer Meet In First M. E. Church

A large crowd attended the union service, held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, last evening, in connection with the week of prayer observance.

Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor, presided. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, read the scripture, while a prayer was offered by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The sermon was delivered by Dr. Donald W. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, whose subject was "The Home." He declared the home to be the beginning place for religious instruction, and urged the re-establishment of the family altars in Christian homes.

Tonight's service will be held in the First Baptist church, West Fifth street, when Rev. John Dimit, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, will preach. The concluding service of the campaign will be held in the First Methodist Protestant church Friday evening, when Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will preach.

Acetylene Drill Blamed for Blast; 15 Laborers Hurt

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—A workman with an acetylene drill is believed to have been the innocent cause of an explosion here Thursday morning in which 15 laborers at the East End plant of the Union Gas and Electric company were injured and the lives of scores endangered.

Leaking fumes in the main take-off leader were ingnited by the drill. The walls of the building were rent in many places. Many windows in the neighborhood were shattered and doors were torn from their hinges. The new filtration system, which the men were installing at the gas palnt, was wrecked. Harold Wheeler, who operated the acetylene drill, said he thought sewer gas backed into the water gas tank he was borning brought about the explosion. Martin C. McCollum, who lives near the plant, was thrown out of bed by the explosion and declared he thought it was an earthquake.

The force of the explosion was carried through a 42 inch gas pipe and blew off a gas head plate 200 feet from the building, carrying the plate through the air to the river bank, 400 feet away.

Kentucky Youth, Heir to Fortune, is Hold-up Suspect

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—Leroy Wetherell, 20, held by the Cincinnati police on three charges of robbery, is said to be heir to one-third of a million dollar estate at Paris, Ky., and will get the money when he is 21, only a year hence. But Leroy couldn't wait, the police declare, and has been identified by three victims as one of the two bandits who held them up. The youth claims to be the son of the late J. F. Wetherel, a wealthy farmer who lived near Paris. A sister and brother are the other heirs.

The total loot of Wetherel and his pay was $42, it is said. The police declare he told them he served time in the Iowa federal reformatory for "raising" currency.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Stock prices were generally inclined upward in the early trading in the stock market today, but prices changes were narrow and trading was confined to a smaller number of active issues, in which the rails and oils predominated. Dividends on stocks like southern Pacific, which made a strong "play" in the market yesterday were sold in good volume on profit taking and declined a point or two. Oil stocks lost nothing by the heavy volume of selling which came into some of the more active issues; but some of the specialties stocks, including Universal Pipe and Radio, were heavy.

Despite, the Flower about 75,000 barrles of crude oil daily in the new Wortham pool in Texas, total production of oil last week was only 2,000 barrels a day more than in the preceding week, reports reached the traders of pending increases in crude oil prices, some of which may take effect before the end of the month. Already a premium is being paid above posted prices in the Midcontinent and Pennsylvania fields. The oil stocks reflected the better feeling in the industry.

Strength in steel stocks was due to reports that important manufacturers of steel are preparing to speed up production. The United States Steel corporation will expand its operations at 89 per cent of capacity next week, against the current rate of 85 per cent. Motors were also in good demand, though prices showed a tendency to drop to slightly lower levels.

Bears made an effort to dislodge holdings of industrial stocks in the second hour by concentrating heavy selling on American Can, Worthington Pump and other active industrials. The effect of these tactics was to slow up the market rather than to cause any weakness in speculative shares. The use of teh words "bankruptcy, disaster, receivership," etc., in connection with the financial affairs of the St. Paul Railroad by those who presumably intended to be helpful, caused some irregularities in both the stocks and bonds of that company in the listed market. Outside of that the fail list was steady in this period.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent. Cotton and grain markets were fairly steady in the early trading.

ion was almost unanimous that the money should be kept intact and used only for the purpose for which it was voted.

Memorial for Gompers.

The original fund was $40,000 but dwindled to approximately $38,000 by interest on the bonds.

The organization also rejected a resolution submitted by Mrs. Mary Waters, secretary of the City Central committee of the Workers Party, condemning the so-called "criminal syndicalism laws" in connection with the recent conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg, of Lansing, Mich., on charges of sedition. The reolution framed by the Labor Defense Council of Chicago, was merely filed without action on the part of Trades council.

The labor organization also voted to conduct a memorial service for the late Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who died about three weeks ago, at the next regular meeting January 21. Union workers, who were personally acquainted with the labor chief, and who heard him speak at the national convention of the American Federation of Labor at El Paso, Texas, late last fall, just before his death, will speak at the memorial.

VANDERLIP GAVE BOND FOR MEANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Gaston B. Means, former federal agent under $10,000 bail on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice, sprang a sensation at his trial before Federal Judge Walter Lindley today by revealing that Frank A. Vanderlip, international banker, had furnished bond for him.

Means, whose testimony in the Teapot Dome investigation was a feature of the oil scandal, said he persuaded Vanderlip to approve his bond during the investigation.

Means' trial was postponed until Monday at the request of his attorney, Abraham Menin, who said he needed more time to study the case.

Means, who said he had lost sixty-five pounds and was suffering from gall stones, smiled in promising to give some "warm" testimony.

in the church. Visiting pastors had occupied the pulpit during the forepart of the week. Last night the pastor delivered the sermon.

Rev. MacDonald had been preaching for 25 years. He came to Chester from Enon Valley, Pa., about eight months ago, succeeding Rev. H. M. Hanna.

He was born in Oil City, Pa., August 21, 1873, a son of George B. MacDonald, a pioneer oil refiner.

Held Pennsylvania Charges.

Rev. MacDonald attended Slippery Rock Normal school and later entered Grove City college. He graduated from the Western Theological Seminary in 1899. His first charge was at Dawson, Pa. He was later stationed at Carmichaels, Monessen, Mercer and Enon Valley, Pa., coming here from the latter place last May.

Besides his wife, he leaves five children, Mrs. Ruth Malimit, a teacher in a government school at Concho, Okla.; Eunice, Rachel, Paul and Betty, at home. He is also survived by one brother, George, of Newport, Ky.; two sisters, Mrs. Earl McClymonds, Ellwood City, Pa., and Mrs. Edward Dombaugh, of Portersville, Pa.

The body was taken to the C. A. Arner Funeral home.

Missing Cashier's Family's Plight is Sad; Search Renewed

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 8. — Detectives for three private agencies as well as those of the county and state redoubled their efforts today to apprehend Joseph M. Schilling, 40, missing bank clerk who is alleged to have stolen $32,000 in currency from the foreign department of the Dollar Savings & Trust company here.

Friends of Schilling in Pittsburgh are being questioned in an effort to trace him. Detectives also visited the Schilling farm near Salem to learn more of the man's habits. It developed, Schilling recently sold the farm, containing 200 acres, and has left his family consisting of his wife and five children almost destitute.

Schilling's description was broadcast over the radio as an aid in the search, and all seaports are being watched as it is believed by police he will attempt to escape the country.

Former Cleveland Discount Company Officers Indicted

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—Josiah Kirby, now under arrest in Los Angeles on a federal warrant charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud, and former president of the Cleveland Discount company, an alleged $42,000,000 concern, was indicted by a federal grand jury here today. He was charged with issuing a false financial statement.

J. R. Poland, former treasurer of the company, was also named in the indictment. His arrest is momentarily expected.

Following the indictment it was learned from authorities here that a nation-wide search has been started to locate Kirby. Following his arrest in Los Angeles and his posting of a $15,000 bond he disappeared, it is claimed. He was last seen in Chicago ten days ago.

200 Clasp Evangelist's Hand After Church of Christ Sermon

Dr. W. J. Lockhart Appeals to Hearers to Live as Christians — Discourse on "Transformed Church."

More than 200 church members passed down the aisles of the First Church of Christ, last evening, and clasped the hand of Evangelist W. J. Lockhart, at the close of his sermon on the subject, "A Transformed Church."

The evangelist voiced an appeal to the church member "to so live that the world may know there is a difference, a real difference between the Christian and the man without the church." A greater part of the audience stepped forward at the close of his sermon, pledging themselves to live closer to God.

Special musical numbers were given by Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Harbison, of Fairmont, Ind. Rev. Mr. Lockhart will speak on the subject, "Is There a Real Hell?" at Thursday night's service.

"This is a fine growth of interest," said Mr. Lockhart, "not so much in the crowd as in the way you look at us and respond. A revival never begins till people quit sizing up the evangelists and begin to think about what they say. And I want to say to you tonight that the church and the church people must be transformed. A lot of you have been doing the very same thing the world has been doing, singing the same songs, attending the same shows, going to the same dances, taking the same joy rides, leading the same crooked lives, and then you wonder why the young people have been going to the Devil and the church losing its power. The church can not conform to the world in its services and give people, as the theatres do just what they want. The church must give people what they need. That is what I am going at least to try to do while I am in your city.

"You may not like my plain preaching, but I don't have to please you. I am working under a higher authority than yours. I must please Him who sent me. It is not always popular to tell the truth. It was not in John's day. He told the old wicked king of his licenciousness and how he was living with a woman who was not his wife as no doubt a lot of you fellows in this town are doing, and he lost his head. Jesus spoke the truth and they crucified him. The apostles came on and bore testimony to truth and they, too, with one exception, lost their lives. Yet my friends, the Master does not make it any easier today. He bids me call you from conforming to the world and asks that ye be transformed.

"My friends, the Christian must live a different life. It is not an easy thing to be a Christian, but it is a wonderful thing. In this day it means character. It takes courage. I do not understand the philosophy of the Cross of Christ but I know that until we are willing to suffer for Jesus' sake we cannot find power in turning the world to. Him. But when you get to the place that you are willing to give up all for Jesus, then you gain power over others."

George Creel

pendent" in 1899. For 10 years he fought the political machine and their bosses and his great victory was the election of J. W. Folk as governor.

In 1909 he went to Denver where he became associated with the Denver Post and later with the Rocky Mountain News. In Missouri, Creel's writings were largely responsible for the adoption of the initiative and referendum act and as many other reforms, including the mothers' compensation law, home rule [illegible] cities, workmen's compens[illegible] labor laws, eight-hour [illegible]s and similar measures. He formed a "Citizens' Party" which elected a mayor, abolished the "red light district" and fought the open saloon.

When Creel left Denver he was practically penniless, but had the endorsement of better element of citizens, churches, non-political clubs and organizations. Witbin a year he was writing articles for magazines, but found time to travel the country in the interests of municipal reforms, equal suffrage and child labor laws.

Offered Presidential Appointment.

It was in 1916 that Creel's work attracted the attention of President Wilson. He was offered a presidential appointment but he refused to enter politics. President Wilson drafted Creel as chairman of the committee on publicity information shortly after America entered the war. In this post Creel built up vast publicity machinery which reached to every corner of the United States and every part of the civilized globe. The printed and spoken word, motion pictures, wireless, airplane and cable—all were used to make Americans understand, to stimulate the allies and shatter the enemy morale. In March, 1919, Creel returned to private life and between books conceived the idea of "Uncle Henry." This series of articles, which have been published by one of the country's leading magazines for two years, have been taking the nation by storm. His entrance to the lecture field is another proof of Creel's versality.

The auditing committee of the chamber of commerce made up of L. C. Cooper, J. W. Moore, J. A. Anderson met this afternoon to go over the books of the treasurer and secretary. Their report will be made at the annual meeting.

Results of the election for seven members of the board of directors also will be announced.

Reservations for the meeting may be made with H. B. Barth, secretary of the chamber.

"WAR DEBT MEET O. K."—LOGAN

Encouraging Declaration Made by American Observer.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—"Our conversations are progressing normally."

This encouraging declaration was made today by Colonel James A. Logan, American observer on the reparations commission, when he came out of an hour's conference with Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill of England. The conference was held in the British embassy.

Colonel Logan went to the American embassy where he reported to United States Ambassador Herrick and Kellogg on the progress which had been made toward a settlement of America's war claims.

At the conclusion of his "informal conversation" with Colonel Logan, Churchill immediately took up with Finance Minister Clementel further negotiations looking to a settlement of France's war debt to England.

Clementel's Proposal.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—A proposition for French payments—on long time terms and at low interest rates, but none the less a definite proposal to pay—has been made by Finance Minister Clementel to Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill, official circles here reported today.

By the terms of Clementel's reported proposition, France would pay Great Britain and the United States at the same time, a point on which the British have insisted. France would pay its debt in 80 years, but want's a ten-year moratorium first. The interest rate in the first ten years of payment following the morotorium would be half of one percent and in the second decade one percent with arrangements for payment of the principal left for the present to future negotiations.

Diplomatic circles also were discussing the information informally transmitted to Britain by the United States, advising Britain that under no circumstances can the United States enter a general debt conference unless congress amends the debt funding law.

State Department Satisfied.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Marked satisfaction was expressed at the state department today over the progress being made at Paris impressing upon the allied finance ministers the justice of the American claim to equal participation in the Dawes annuities.

Col. James A. Logan reported to the department after his conference with Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, that the basis for an agreement had been reached.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The shallowness of France's recent "proposals" for settling her four billion dollar war debt was emphasized here today by an official announcement that no meeting of the American debt funding commission will be called to consider the terms proposed in the Clementel memoradum.

After a thorough examination of this remarkable document, administration officials have reached the conclusion that M. Clementel has not proposed, even informally and unofficially, anything worth considering.

Large Crowd Attends Union Prayer Meet In First M. E. Church

A large crowd attended the union service, held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, last evening, in connection with the week of prayer observance.

Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor, presided. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, read the scripture, while a prayer was offered by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The sermon was delivered by Dr. Donald W. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, whose subject was "The Home." He declared the home to be the beginning place for religious instruction, and urged the re-establishment of the family altars in Christian homes.

Tonight's service will be held in the First Baptist church, West Fifth street, when Rev. John Dimit, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, will preach. The concluding service of the campaign will be held in the First Methodist Protestant church Friday evening, when Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will preach.

Acetylene Drill Blamed for Blast; 15 Laborers Hurt

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—A workman with an acetylene drill is believed to have been the innocent cause of an explosion here Thursday morning in which 15 laborers at the East End plant of the Union Gas and Electric company were injured and the lives of scores endangered.

Leaking fumes in the main take-off leader were ingnited by the drill. The walls of the building were rent in many places. Many windows in the neighborhood were shattered and doors were torn from their hinges. The new filtration system, which the men were installing at the gas palnt, was wrecked. Harold Wheeler, who operated the acetylene drill, said he thought sewer gas backed into the water gas tank he was borning brought about the explosion. Martin C. McCollum, who lives near the plant, was thrown out of bed by the explosion and declared he thought it was an earthquake.

The force of the explosion was carried through a 42 inch gas pipe and blew off a gas head plate 200 feet from the building, carrying the plate through the air to the river bank, 400 feet away.

Kentucky Youth, Heir to Fortune, is Hold-up Suspect

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—Leroy Wetherell, 20, held by the Cincinnati police on three charges of robbery, is said to be heir to one-third of a million dollar estate at Paris, Ky., and will get the money when he is 21, only a year hence. But Leroy couldn't wait, the police declare, and has been identified by three victims as one of the two bandits who held them up. The youth claims to be the son of the late J. F. Wetherel, a wealthy farmer who lived near Paris. A sister and brother are the other heirs.

The total loot of Wetherel and his pay was $42, it is said. The police declare he told them he served time in the Iowa federal reformatory for "raising" currency.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Stock prices were generally inclined upward in the early trading in the stock market today, but prices changes were narrow and trading was confined to a smaller number of active issues, in which the rails and oils predominated. Dividends on stocks like southern Pacific, which made a strong "play" in the market yesterday were sold in good volume on profit taking and declined a point or two. Oil stocks lost nothing by the heavy volume of selling which came into some of the more active issues; but some of the specialties stocks, including Universal Pipe and Radio, were heavy.

Despite, the Flower about 75,000 barrles of crude oil daily in the new Wortham pool in Texas, total production of oil last week was only 2,000 barrels a day more than in the preceding week, reports reached the traders of pending increases in crude oil prices, some of which may take effect before the end of the month. Already a premium is being paid above posted prices in the Midcontinent and Pennsylvania fields. The oil stocks reflected the better feeling in the industry.

Strength in steel stocks was due to reports that important manufacturers of steel are preparing to speed up production. The United States Steel corporation will expand its operations at 89 per cent of capacity next week, against the current rate of 85 per cent. Motors were also in good demand, though prices showed a tendency to drop to slightly lower levels.

Bears made an effort to dislodge holdings of industrial stocks in the second hour by concentrating heavy selling on American Can, Worthington Pump and other active industrials. The effect of these tactics was to slow up the market rather than to cause any weakness in speculative shares. The use of teh words "bankruptcy, disaster, receivership," etc., in connection with the financial affairs of the St. Paul Railroad by those who presumably intended to be helpful, caused some irregularities in both the stocks and bonds of that company in the listed market. Outside of that the fail list was steady in this period.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent. Cotton and grain markets were fairly steady in the early trading.

ion was almost unanimous that the money should be kept intact and used only for the purpose for which it was voted.

Memorial for Gompers.

The original fund was $40,000 but dwindled to approximately $38,000 by interest on the bonds.

The organization also rejected a resolution submitted by Mrs. Mary Waters, secretary of the City Central committee of the Workers Party, condemning the so-called "criminal syndicalism laws" in connection with the recent conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg, of Lansing, Mich., on charges of sedition. The reolution framed by the Labor Defense Council of Chicago, was merely filed without action on the part of Trades council.

The labor organization also voted to conduct a memorial service for the late Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who died about three weeks ago, at the next regular meeting January 21. Union workers, who were personally acquainted with the labor chief, and who heard him speak at the national convention of the American Federation of Labor at El Paso, Texas, late last fall, just before his death, will speak at the memorial.

VANDERLIP GAVE BOND FOR MEANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Gaston B. Means, former federal agent under $10,000 bail on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice, sprang a sensation at his trial before Federal Judge Walter Lindley today by revealing that Frank A. Vanderlip, international banker, had furnished bond for him.

Means, whose testimony in the Teapot Dome investigation was a feature of the oil scandal, said he persuaded Vanderlip to approve his bond during the investigation.

Means' trial was postponed until Monday at the request of his attorney, Abraham Menin, who said he needed more time to study the case.

Means, who said he had lost sixty-five pounds and was suffering from gall stones, smiled in promising to give some "warm" testimony.

in the church. Visiting pastors had occupied the pulpit during the forepart of the week. Last night the pastor delivered the sermon.

Rev. MacDonald had been preaching for 25 years. He came to Chester from Enon Valley, Pa., about eight months ago, succeeding Rev. H. M. Hanna.

He was born in Oil City, Pa., August 21, 1873, a son of George B. MacDonald, a pioneer oil refiner.

Held Pennsylvania Charges.

Rev. MacDonald attended Slippery Rock Normal school and later entered Grove City college. He graduated from the Western Theological Seminary in 1899. His first charge was at Dawson, Pa. He was later stationed at Carmichaels, Monessen, Mercer and Enon Valley, Pa., coming here from the latter place last May.

Besides his wife, he leaves five children, Mrs. Ruth Malimit, a teacher in a government school at Concho, Okla.; Eunice, Rachel, Paul and Betty, at home. He is also survived by one brother, George, of Newport, Ky.; two sisters, Mrs. Earl McClymonds, Ellwood City, Pa., and Mrs. Edward Dombaugh, of Portersville, Pa.

The body was taken to the C. A. Arner Funeral home.

Missing Cashier's Family's Plight is Sad; Search Renewed

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 8. — Detectives for three private agencies as well as those of the county and state redoubled their efforts today to apprehend Joseph M. Schilling, 40, missing bank clerk who is alleged to have stolen $32,000 in currency from the foreign department of the Dollar Savings & Trust company here.

Friends of Schilling in Pittsburgh are being questioned in an effort to trace him. Detectives also visited the Schilling farm near Salem to learn more of the man's habits. It developed, Schilling recently sold the farm, containing 200 acres, and has left his family consisting of his wife and five children almost destitute.

Schilling's description was broadcast over the radio as an aid in the search, and all seaports are being watched as it is believed by police he will attempt to escape the country.

Former Cleveland Discount Company Officers Indicted

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—Josiah Kirby, now under arrest in Los Angeles on a federal warrant charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud, and former president of the Cleveland Discount company, an alleged $42,000,000 concern, was indicted by a federal grand jury here today. He was charged with issuing a false financial statement.

J. R. Poland, former treasurer of the company, was also named in the indictment. His arrest is momentarily expected.

Following the indictment it was learned from authorities here that a nation-wide search has been started to locate Kirby. Following his arrest in Los Angeles and his posting of a $15,000 bond he disappeared, it is claimed. He was last seen in Chicago ten days ago.

200 Clasp Evangelist's Hand After Church of Christ Sermon

Dr. W. J. Lockhart Appeals to Hearers to Live as Christians—Discourse on "Transformed Church."

More than 200 church members passed down the aisles of the First Church of Christ, last evening, and clasped the hand of Evangelist W. J. Lockhart, at the close of his sermon on the subject, "A Transformed Church."

The evangelist voiced an appeal to the church member "to so live that the world may know there is a difference, a real difference between the Christian and the man without the church." A greater part of the audience stepped forward at the close of his sermon, pledging themselves to live closer to God.

Special musical numbers were given by Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Harbison, of Fairmont, Ind. Rev. Mr. Lockhart will speak on the subject, "Is There a Real Hell?" at Thursday night's service.

"This is a fine growth of interest," said Mr. Lockhart, "not so much in the crowd as in the way you look at us and respond. A revival never begins till people quit sizing up the evangelists and begin to think about what they say. And I want to say to you tonight that the church and the church people must be transformed. A lot of you have been doing the very same thing the world has been doing, singing the same songs, attending the same shows, going to the same dances, taking the same joy rides, leading the same crooked lives, and then you wonder why the young people have been going to the Devil and the church losing its power. The church can not conform to the world in its services and give people, as the theatres do just what they want. The church must give people what they need. That is what I am going at least to try to do while I am in your city.

"You may not like my plain preaching, but I don't have to please you. I am working under a higher authority than yours. I must please Him who sent me. It is not always popular to tell the truth. It was not in John's day. He told the old wicked king of his licenciousness and how he was living with a woman who was not his wife as no doubt a lot of you fellows in this town are doing, and he lost his head. Jesus spoke the truth and they crucified him. The apostles came on and bore testimony to truth and they, too, with one exception, lost their lives. Yet my friends, the Master does not make it any easier today. He bids me call you from conforming to the world and asks that ye be transformed.

"My friends, the Christian must live a different life. It is not an easy thing to be a Christian, but it is a wonderful thing. In this day it means character. It takes courage. I do not understand the philosophy of the Cross of Christ but I know that until we are willing to suffer for Jesus' sake we cannot find power in turning the world to. Him. But when you get to the place that you are willing to give up all for Jesus, then you gain power over others."

pendent" in 1899. For 10 years he fought the political machine and their bosses and his great victory was the election of J. W. Folk as governor.

In 1909 he went to Denver where he became associated with the Denver Post and later with the Rocky Mountain News. In Missouri, Creel's writings were largely responsible for the adoption of the initiative and referendum act and as many other reforms, including the mothers' compensation law, home rule for cities, workmen's compensation, labor laws, eight-hour days and similar measures. He formed a "Citizens' Party" which elected a mayor, abolished the "red light district" and fought the open saloon.

When Creel left Denver he was practically penniless, but had the endorsement of better element of citizens, churches, non-political clubs and organizations. Within a year he was writing articles for magazines, but found time to travel the country in the interests of municipal reforms, equal suffrage and child labor laws.

Offered Presidential Appointment.

It was in 1916 that Creel's work attracted the attention of President Wilson. He was offered a presidential appointment but he refused to enter politics. President Wilson drafted Creel as chairman of the committee on publicity information shortly after America entered the war. In this post Creel built up vast publicity machinery which reached to every corner of the United States and every part of the civilized globe. The printed and spoken word, motion pictures, wireless, airplane and cable—all were used to make Americans understand, to stimulate the allies and shatter the enemy morale. In March, 1919, Creel returned to private life and between books conceived the idea of "Uncle Henry." This series of articles, which have been published by one of the country's leading magazines for two years, have been taking the nation by storm. His entrance to the lecture field is another proof of Creel's versality.

The auditing committee of the chamber of commerce made up of L. C. Cooper, J. W. Moore, J. A. Anderson met this afternoon to go over the books of the treasurer and secretary. Their report will be made at the annual meeting.

Results of the election for seven members of the board of directors also will be announced.

Reservations for the meeting may be made with H. B. Barth, secretary of the chamber.

AUTO LICENSE BILL FRAMED

Senator Hagus Has Bill to Change Distribution Method.

State Senator Wright Hagus of Ohio county, announced yesterday that he will introduce a bill in the legislature when it convenes next week, providing for local distribution of auto licenses.

The inability of the commission to provide prompt delivery of the license plates and its arbitrary refusal of any time extension has resulted in thousands of automobiles and trucks being forced out of service.

This condition which Senator Hugus plans to remedy with his change in the state road law has been of yearly occurrance. The commissioners have been deaf to all requests for the establishment of a system of distribution in the various sections of the state.

Senatof Hugus proposes to relieve the commission of this work and in his bill he would have local automobile dealers given authority to sell the plates under regulations similar to those now in effect in Ohio.

In this way every automobile owner in West Virginia could be supplied with his plates within one or two days, Senator Hugus believes. And there would be no additional expense for the state. Experience elsewhere has been that automobile dealers and garage owners are more than glad to avail themselves of this opportunity to maintain close contact with the motor trade.

Senator Hugus believes his bill will have much support as reports from other districts indicate that the confusion and inconvenience is worse in many instances than in Wheeling.

STADIUM WORK BEING SPEEDED

Harry A. Stansbury, athletic director of West Virginia University, and active head of the organiation in charge of the drive for funds for the new West Virginia stadium, said last evening that the new stadium will be entirely completed within the next 30 days, and that the contractors will submit their final estimates.

He said that the subscriptions made by West Virginians to date aggregate $490,000, just $10,000 short of the $500,000 required. Of this amount $251,000 has already been paid in cash and the remainder is payable at six months intervals on deferred payments during the next three years.

Mr. Stansbury said that West Virginia's greatest need for the advancement of athletics has been realized, and that the stadium is a monument to the generosity of the public-spirited citizens of West Virginia.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

When the Children Cough, Rub Musterole on Throats and Chests

No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then's when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief. It does not blister.

As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Thousands of mothers know it. You should keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

AUTO LICENSE BILL FRAMED

Senator Hagus Has Bill to Change Distribution Method.

State Senator Wright Hagus of Ohio county, announced yesterday that he will introduce a bill in the legislature when it convenes next week, providing for local distribution of auto licenses.

The inability of the commission to provide prompt delivery of the license plates and its arbitrary refusal of any time extension has resulted in thousands of automobiles and trucks being forced out of service.

This condition which Senator Hagus plans to remedy with his change in the state road law has been of yearly occurrance. The commissioners have been deaf to all requests for the establishment of a system of distribution in the various sections of the state.

Senatof Hagus proposes to relieve the commission of this work and in his bill he would have local automobile dealers given authority to sell the plates under regulations similar to those now in effect in Ohio.

In this way every automobile owner in West Virginia could be supplied with his plates within one or two days, Senator Hagus believes. And there would be no additional expense for the state. Experience elsewhere has been that automobile dealers and garage owners are more than glad to avail themselves of this opportunity to maintain close contact with the motor trade.

Senator Hagus believes his bill will have much support as reports from other districts indicate that the confusion and inconvenience is worse in many instances than in Wheeling.

DATE FIXED FOR FARM MEETING

Nominating Committee Will Present Ticket at Session.

The date of the annual meeting of the Columbiana County Farm bureau has been changed so that the meeting will now be held commencing at 10 o'clock the morning of January 17 in the Grand theater, Lisbon.

L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, has advised the Columbiana County Farm bureau offices that he will be in Lisbon to attend this meeting, leaving Columbus Friday evening before.

The nominating committee, which met this week, will present its ticket at this meeting, although it may be augmented by other nominations from the floor of the meeting.

Officers to be voted upon for the 1925 term are:

President—John F. Kerr, C. W. Holm, O. O. Thomas.

Vice President—E. Y. Gamble, A. E. Bailey, Clark Thompson.

Secretary—Van J. Morris, L. H. Everett, H. H. Lang.

Treasurer—A. W. Noble, Jesse Potorff, E. H. Myers.

Women Directors, three to elect—Mrs. Leroy Frederick, Mrs. E. M. Farmer, Mrs. C. Q. Gonzales, Mrs. Sidney Cope, Mrs. Thurman Underwood.

Delegates to the State Convention, three to elect—Ellsworth Rice, Frank Bowman, E. N. Hiekman, J. V. Wilms, Dallas Hahn.

Soon after the annual meeting is called to order, President John McB. Kerr will read his annual report. Former County Agent Clarence E. Rowland will also attend this meeting and he will read a combined report of the activity of all agencies associated with the county organization.

Various townships will put on the entertainment features. The address of Mr. Palmer will feature the work of the state organization, and he is expected to also mention some legislation that is expected to be enacted at the present session at Columbus that will be helpful to the farm interests of the state.

Two Leetonia Lads Sent to Reformatory For Petty Robberies

A score or more robberies at Leetonia have been solved by the arrest of Tony Mancuso and Ralph Sposato, aged about 14 years, and their being sentenced to the Boys' Industrial school by Judge Lodge Riddle.

Marshal J. M. Sullivan, of Leetonia, when he took the boys before the court presented the court with a list of thefts charged to these youngsters. The list read:

Dr. Wilson's office, Caldwell's feed store, Caldwell & Whittacre's flour mill twice, Stanbaugh's car and store, Knights of Columbus room, Mrs. McCready's rooms in K. of C. building, Frank Aiken's car and garage, stealing from Willis Corll's house, Woodward's house, Slater's house, basket of eggs from Clark Halverstadt and selling them to Wahenhouser grocery, blankets from autos at different times and carrying guns, one being hidden in a lumber yard; public school and taking things from pupils and teachers.

Columbiana

Columbiana High School basketball teams won two games Friday night in the home gym from Monaca High school, a fair-sized crowd viewing games. The local boys won 30 to 18. Coach McKain's boys did not display their real ability, due perhaps to some extent to the injection of subs several times. The Monaca boys were in poor physical condition and took time out repeatedly and also made frequent substitutions. Metz played a fine game at guard while Burkle and Rupert led in the scoring, each with ten points.

The girls home team won 44 to 12, Coach McKain using all his second string players at various times. The Monaca girls are playing basketball for the first time this season and accordingly displayed little knowledge of the game. Capt. Gleckler, as usual, was the Columbiana star, making seventeen points, even though she played almost half of the game at guard. Lower played her best game of the season and W. Mitchell guarded well.

Coach R. E. Knesal and his East Palestine squad scouted the game as they play both Columbiana and Monaca later in the season.

The New Year's night bill of basketball was very interesting, the feature event being Miller Brothers win over the Tri-State Collegians by a score of 40 to 34, in their fastest game of the season. Graham played his best game this season, Anderson guarded well and Bob Marshall and "Buck" Burkle did well, playing in the absence of Hawkins and the illness of Hoover. Paul McKain, last year C. H. S. captain, played a wonderful guarding game for the Collegians.

In a preliminary game, the C. H. S. girls alumni team won from Fairfield Alumni girls by a score of 29 to 16.

Next Wednesday night Miller Bros. play the St. Aloysius Club of Youngstown, a team that gave them plenty of opposition last year.

Columbiana

Columbiana High School basketball teams won two games Friday night in the home gym from Monaca High school, a fair-sized crowd viewing games. The local boys won 30 to 18. Coach McKain's boys did not display their real ability, due perhaps to some extent to the injection of subs several times. The Monaca boys were in poor physical condition and took time out repeatedly and also made frequent substitutions. Metz played a fine game at guard while Burkle and Rupert led in the scoring, each with ten points.

The girls home team won 44 to 12, Coach McKain using all his second string players at various times. The Monaca girls are playing basketball for the first time this season and accordingly displayed little knowledge of the game. Capt. Gleckler, as usual, was the Columbiana star, making seventeen points, even though she played almost half of the game at guard. Lower played her best game of the season and W. Mitchell guarded well.

Coach R. E. Knesal and his East Palestine squad scouted the game as they play both Columbiana and Monaca later in the season.

The New Year's night bill of basketball was very interesting, the feature event being Miller Brothers win over the Tri-State Collegians by a score of 40 to 34, in their fastest game of the season. Graham played his best game this season, Anderson guarded well and Bob Marshall and "Buck" Burkle did well, playing in the absence of Hawkins and the illness of Hoover. Paul McKain, last year C. H. S. captain, played a wonderful guarding game for the Collegians.

In a preliminary game, the C. H. S. girls alumni team won from Fairfield Alumni girls by a score of 29 to 16.

Next Wednesday night Miller Bros. play the St. Aloysius Club of Youngstown, a team that gave them plenty of opposition last year.

TOTAL ECLIPSE OF SUN WILL OCCUR JAN. 24

Rare Sights for First Time in U. S. in 100 Years.

MOON'S JOURNEY

Scheduled for 9:10 a. m. in Most Eastern Cities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 8.—All traffic squads, attention! On the 24th of January there will occur in the skies something that you probably will never see again—a total eclipse of the sun, in some places, and a partial eclipse over the greater part of the United States. Caution all drivers to go slowly.

If you live in a belt 100 miles wide and 5,000 miles long and flung from northern Minnesota across northern Wisconsin and Michigan, over the Great Lakes to New York, Long Island, Connecticut and Rhode Island, parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Massachusetts you will see the flaming son blotted out on the morning of the 24th.

Those who live near this path across the country—a path that ends at sunset near the north of Scotland—will see the sun shadowed in part.

Moon the Cause.

For the first time in more than a hundred years the moon will pass between the earth and the sun, throwing its shadow on our sphere. It is the first total eclipse of the sun visible in this section of the country since 1806.

This eclipse will be total in Duluth, Buffalo, New York city, New Haven and many other large cities in this part of the country. The partial eclipse will be very large, nearly total, in some of the largest cities in the United States, including Boston, Providence, Albany, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Chicago. Even as far south as New Orleans, and as far west as St. Louis and Omaha, the partial eclipse will be large.

The total eclipse in New York city will take place about 9:10 a. m., and the time of the greatest eclipse for most of the cities in the east that keep Eastern Standard time will vary but a few minutes from this time. The partial eclipse will begin about 8 o'clock in the same section, and the eclipse will be over about half-past ten.

Solar Corona Seen.

The brighter stars and planets, and also the beautiful solar corona that the astronomer is so anxious to study, appear. This is a magnificent halo of pearly light extending to a great distance from the sun, and different in shape and appearance at every eclipse. It is never visible except during a total solar eclipse and can be studied only at that time.

Those who find themselves within the path of total eclipse should look for the shadow bands—wavy bands of light and shade that flit over the landscape and buildings just before and after the total eclipse. Also, they should look out for the interesting phenomenon known as "Baily's Beads," which are seen as the thin, thread-like solar crescent breaks up into beads of light as the total eclipse is about to begin, and which are seen again just as it ends.

Glowing Gases.

Look, also for the scarlet solar prominence during the total eclipse, which are flames of glowing gases of hydrogen and helium rising from the hidden surface of the moon to heights of thousands of miles and visible beyond the edge of the moon in queer forms and shapes.

The brighter stars and planets appear during the total eclipse and even a little before and after it. The three planets, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter, should be seen in a close group some distance to the southwest of the sun.

Although the event of this one day dwarfs all others by comparison in the January skies, it must be remembered that in midwinter the evening skies are at their best, the American Nature Association points out. There are more brilliant stars in view than at any other time of the year.

Strange to say, many people fail to notice how greatly the stars differ in color. Nearly everyone is aware that the planet Mars is decidedly red, but how many know the colors of the first-magnitude stars? Over in the southwest this month one will have a good study in star colors. Take the constellation of Orion alone. There is Rigel, blue-white in color, a perfect "diamond in the sky;" and Betelgeuse, in the same constellation, is a deep red—a ruby, rather than a diamond, of the sky. There is Aldeberan, the "eye of the bull," another deep red star in the Hyades, a little to the northwest of Orion, in Taurus.

As an example of a perfectly white star there is Beta Tauri, which is at the tip of one of the horns of Taurus and directly south of Auriga and north of Orion. Procyon, in Canis Minor, the Lesser Dog, is yellowish-white; and Sirius, in Canis Major, the Greater Dog, following close on the heels of Orion, is white in color.

Mrs. J. H. Collins' Family Claims New Sunday School Mark

Mrs. J. H. Collins, whose address is R. F. D. No. 2, East Liverpool, claims to have a record for Sunday school attendance in her family that is far superior to that of the family of Lewis M. Andric, 920 Florence street.

Walter A. Collins, her eldest son, has 12 years' perfect attendance to his record; Rodney, another son, and May, a daughter, each have attended Sunday school for ten years without missing. Mrs. Collins, the mother, has not missed for nine years. The total attendance of the four members of the family is 4 years as compared to 24 years recorded by the four members of the Andric family.

The Collins family attends the Methodist Episcopal church and have books presented from year to year, in recognition of their faithful attendance.

Weakening Night Coughing Banished Very Simple Way

It is really astonishing how a persistent, exasperating cough that has kept you awake night after night, and is rapidly wearing you down is usually stopped short by a very simple method. Hundreds have found that they can sleep the whole night through undisturbed often the first time they try it.

The method is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. Getting at the cause like this, in a perfectly simple way, it stops the spells almost instantly, you get your best night's rest perhaps in weeks, and in very short time the whole cough condition is gone.

This simple treatment is splendid not only for coughs and chest colds, but also for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and almost every kind of throat irritation, including children's spasmodic croup. Very economical too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. On sale at all good druggists. Ask for

THE DOUBLE HOUSE

By Elizabeth Dejeans

Mary Bliss opened her eyes swiftly, "I thought it was he coming to see!" she said in a terrified whisper.

"No, no," Karesia soothed. "All he wanted was to keep you from being ill as you were this afternoon. Don't you remember how you frightened me? He is the father of that pretty girl you like, and my friend. You must not be afraid of him."

The woman reached and caught her hand. "You won't let him come in here? You won't?" she begged pitifully.

With a resolute effort Karesia borrowed some of Dascome's firmness. "Not if you will go to sleep. Try to go to sleep now and I promise no one shall come near you. Then in the morning you can talk to the pretty girl."

"I will," Mary Bliss promised humbly. Her twisted mouth quivered. "You're so good to me—to that girl, too, but I'm afraid he'll hurt you. I'm afraid——"

"Don't be afraid, dear," Karesia repeated. "Now go to sleep."

She stayed a few minutes, smoothed Mary Bliss' hair and held her hand, as one would with a frightened child, and, when the woman said that she wasn't frightened any more, she left her. Dascome was standing in the glazed room, looking at the lights on Rossiter Hill. Evidently Rossiter was not sleeping; here were two men looking at each other across a black gulf.

But he smiled at Karesia she she came in. "She has not had another attack?"

"No, just frightened—she is always frightened."

"I can stay only a few minutes, but please be comfortable while I am here. Lie back on the couch and put your feet up—you look ill."

He piled the cushions behind her, then took the Russian shawl of many colors from the foot of the couch and laid it over her, his hand touching her cheek as he folded it back from her face. Then he closed the doors into the next room and they were in partial gloom.

He stood looking down at her. "You thought I was brutal to that woman. I am sorry," he said abruptly.

"I didn't understand at first—I do now," Karesia protested. "You meant that she should not have one of those attacks, and you had to act quickly."

"And apparently brutally," he appended. "There is certainly something seriously wrong with that woman. I think that probably she has been ill-treated, as you said this evening, and her brain dulled, but I believe her main trouble is hysteria. The sort of fit into which she was throwing herself is dangerous, and I know that a shock will sometimes divert a hysterical patient and prevent convulsions. That is why I did as I did. I don't want you to be afraid of me." Dascome's deep voice had deepened into appeal; as if most people feared him and it hurt.

"Sit down here by me, please," Karesia said impulsively. When he was close to her she said softly: "You must not think that, ever. When I see anything done forcefully, I am a little frightened. I get very angry sometimes, but I am a timid woman, really." She felt an uncontrollable desire to comfort him; there was something desolate about the man. "Do you know what I thought that first evening, almost as soon as I saw you?"

"I cannot guess. You'll have to tell me," he said as softly as she.

"That I had never met a man who gave me so instantly a feeling of liking and trust, of confidence and security."

Dascome was absolutely silent. Karesia felt rather than saw that he was swept by emotion; that he was scarlet and tongue-tied. She was startled; never in her life had she said anything with an honester intent. She flushed in confusion. "So you see, I was not afraid to entrust even my precious paintings to you," she added with a poor attempt at lightness.

He seemed to have found his voice at last, and it was toneless. "I shall try to deserve your trust."

The unemotional words relieved her embarrassment. She had stirred him deeply, without meaning to do it; the man had tremendous self-control. He went on: "There is something I have wanted to say; you have already suffered a deal of annoyance because of me and my family. If ever my being in your house should make it embarrassing for you, I want you to tell me, and I shall go instantly and without any financial loss to you. I haven't words to thank you for your kindness to that poor child in there—and to me. I have traveled this world over pretty well—I have never met a woman who is more genuinely a woman than you are. You deserve happiness."

Karesia was thankful for the dimness, for the tears stood in her eyes. He knew; he was thinking of Rossiter when he said that. "Thank you," she said. "You are sitting in your home now. It is my house and I want you here." She hesitated, then, "Mr. Dascome, I want to ask you something, and I know you will not misunderstand me. Is your daughter in love with Randsome Rossiter?"

"Yes—completely so."

"And—he?"

"I think not. Not now. He met her in New York and she did not give him her right name. She knew who he was, she had seen him on the stage when she was a child—Clarice has the theater in the very marrow of her bones. She intrigued him. She met him several times, but she would not tell him who she was. He thought her a French girl—she speaks French perfectly. There is no doubt that he was interested in her, fascinated for the time being and devotedly attentive. He told her about Hollywood and the studios here and about his home here. Clarice understood that he was unmarried. Then, suddenly, he failed to keep an appointment and Clarice learned that he had left for Hollywood.

"Clarice was with the woman who has been her teacher and nominal guardian for a number of years. I was in Los Angeles on business. First I received a telegram from Clarice that she was coming out here to me; then in a few days she came. She told me she wanted to go into pictures. The child has it in her, and she would screen wonderfully. I was only too glad that she was interested—she would be a great deal safer here than in New York, and not idle. So we came to the Hollywood Hotel.

Mary Bliss opened her eyes swiftly, "I thought it was he coming to see!" she said in a terrified whisper.

"No, no," Karesia soothed. "All he wanted was to keep you from being ill as you were this afternoon. Don't you remember how you frightened me? He is the father of that pretty girl you like, and my friend. You must not be afraid of him."

The woman reached and caught her hand. "You won't let him come in here? You won't?" she begged pitifully.

With a resolute effort Karesia borrowed some of Dascome's firmness. "Not if you will go to sleep. Try to go to sleep now and I promise no one shall come near you. Then in the morning you can talk to the pretty girl."

"I will," Mary Bliss promised humbly. Her twisted mouth quivered. "You're so good to me—to that girl, too, but I'm afraid he'll hurt you. I'm afraid——"

"Don't be afraid, dear," Karesia repeated. "Now go to sleep."

She stayed a few minutes, smoothed Mary Bliss' hair and held her hand, as one would with a frightened child, and, when the woman said that she wasn't frightened any more, she left her. Dascome was standing in the glazed room, looking at the lights on Rossiter Hill. Evidently Rossiter was not sleeping; here were two men looking at each other across a black gulf.

But he smiled at Karesia she she came in. "She has not had another attack?"

"No, just frightened—she is always frightened."

"I can stay only a few minutes, but please be comfortable while I am here. Lie back on the couch and put your feet up—you look ill."

He piled the cushions behind her, then took the Russian shawl of many colors from the foot of the couch and laid it over her, his hand touching her cheek as he folded it back from her face. Then he closed the doors into the next room and they were in partial gloom.

He stood looking down at her. "You thought I was brutal to that woman. I am sorry," he said abruptly.

"I didn't understand at first—I do now," Karesia protested. "You meant that she should not have one of those attacks, and you had to act quickly."

"And apparently brutally," he appended. "There is certainly something seriously wrong with that woman. I think that probably she has been ill-treated, as you said this evening, and her brain dulled, but I believe her main trouble is hysteria. The sort of fit into which she was throwing herself is dangerous, and I know that a shock will sometimes divert a hysterical patient and prevent convulsions. That is why I did as I did. I don't want you to be afraid of me." Dascome's deep voice had deepened into appeal; as if most people feared him and it hurt.

"Sit down here by me, please," Karesia said impulsively. When he was close to her she said softly: "You must not think that, ever. When I see anything done forcefully, I am a little frightened. I get very angry sometimes, but I am a timid woman, really." She felt an uncontrollable desire to comfort him; there was something desolate about the man. "Do you know what I thought that first evening, almost as soon as I saw you?"

"I cannot guess. You'll have to tell me," he said as softly as she.

"That I had never met a man who gave me so instantly a feeling of liking and trust, of confidence and security."

Dascome was absolutely silent. Karesia felt rather than saw that he was swept by emotion; that he was scarlet and tongue-tied. She was startled; never in her life had she said anything with an honester intent. She flushed in confusion. "So you see, I was not afraid to entrust even my precious paintings to you," she added with a poor attempt at lightness.

He seemed to have found his voice at last, and it was toneless. "I shall try to deserve your trust."

The unemotional words relieved her embarrassment. She had stirred him deeply, without meaning to do it; the man had tremendous self-control. He went on: "There is something I have wanted to say; you have already suffered a deal of annoyance because of me and my family. If ever my being in your house should make it embarrassing for you, I want you to tell me, and I shall go instantly and without any financial loss to you. I haven't words to thank you for your kindness to that poor child in there—and to me. I have traveled this world over pretty well—I have never met a woman who is more genuinely a woman than you are. You deserve happiness."

Karesia was thankful for the dimness, for the tears stood in her eyes. He knew; he was thinking of Rossiter when he said that. "Thank you," she said. "You are sitting in your home now. It is my house and I want you here." She hesitated, then, "Mr. Dascome, I want to ask you something, and I know you will not misunderstand me. Is your daughter in love with Randsome Rossiter?"

"Yes—completely so."

"And—he?"

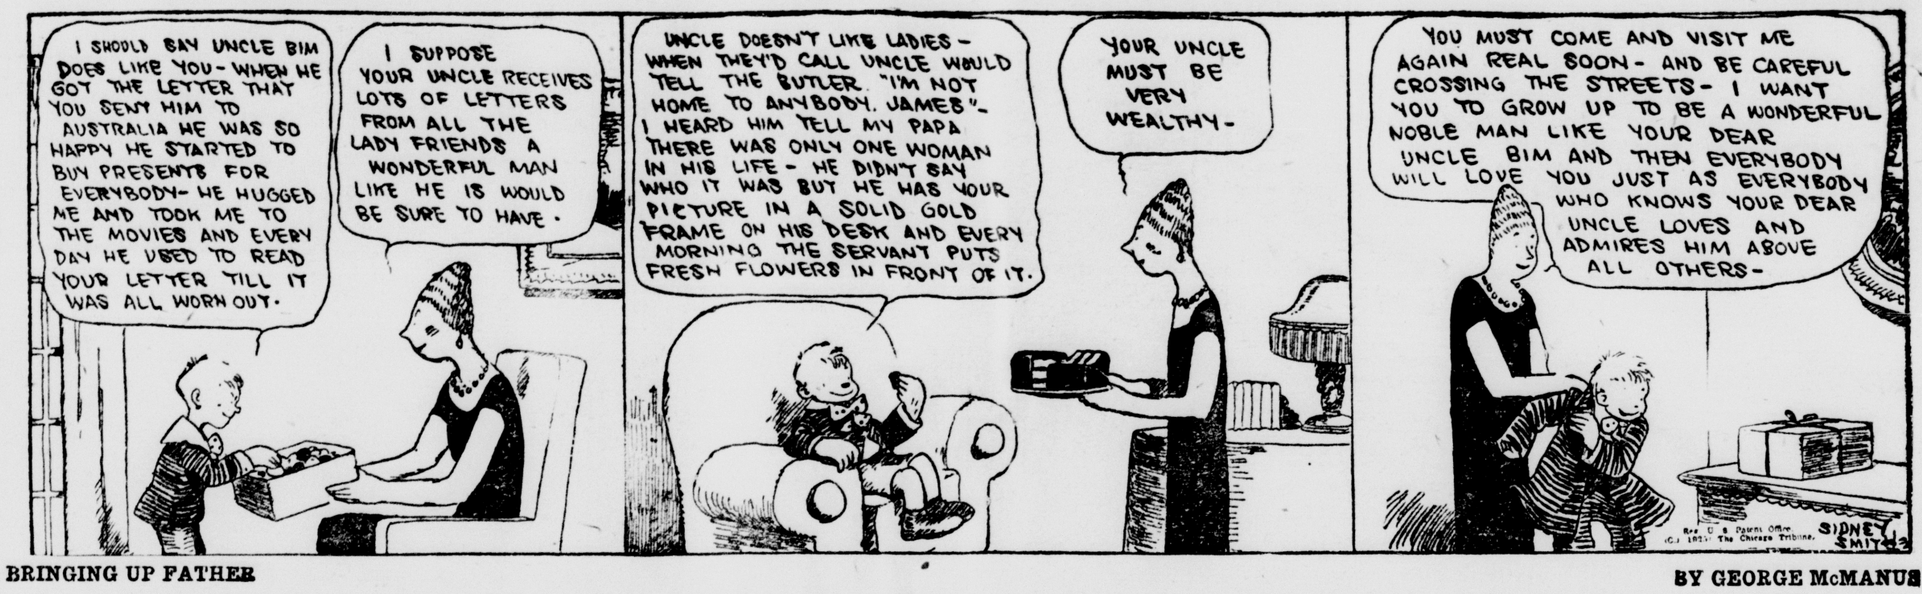

"I think not. Not now. He met her in New York and she did not give him her right name. She knew who he was, she had seen him on the stage when she was a child—Clarice has the theater in the very marrow of her bones. She intrigued him. She met him several times, but she would not tell him who she was. He thought her a French girl—she speaks French perfectly. There is no doubt that he was interested in her, fascinated for the time being and devotedly attentive. He told her about Hollywood and the studios here and about his home here. Clarice understood that he was unmarried. Then, suddenly, he failed to keep an appointment and Clarice learned that he had left for Hollywood.

"Clarice was with the woman who has been her teacher and nominal guardian for a number of years. I was in Los Angeles on business. First I received a telegram from Clarice that she was coming out here to me; then in a few days she came. She told me she wanted to go into pictures. The child has it in her, and she would screen wonderfully. I was only too glad that she was interested—she would be a great deal safer here than in New York, and not idle. So we came to the Hollywood Hotel.

MOULDS, WILKIN SEEK ROAD AID

Good roads proposals will be among the chief issues confronting the state legislature which convenes next Monday at Charleston.

J. W. Moulds, member of the lower house from Hancock county, and State Senator Wilkin have announced their intention of seeking appropriations for improvement of roads in this district. The former is a candidate for the speakership of the lower body.

POLICE OFFICER MAY BE NAMED

Questions of naming an enforcement officer here will be discussed at a mass meeting of citizens to be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the high school building.

Those who favor the proposal claim burglary hazards would be lessened if a night patrolman were named.

High Basketeers Practice.

The high school basketball squad will hold final practice session this afternoon prior to the game tomorrow evening with Salineville high five at the latter place.

Orphans Give Entertainment.

Newell plants of the Homer Laughlin China company were largely represented at the entertainment given last evening in the East Liverpool High school auditorium by 30 children of the Jefferson county home at Yellow Creek. The affair was under the auspices of the Industrial Welfare department of the company of which Joseph Dickey is director.

Cottage Prayer Services.

Cottage prayer meeting will be held Friday evening in the home of John Graham, Grant street. These meetings are held weekly under auspices of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Ceramic Class Meeting.

Members of the Ceramic class will meet at 7:30 tonight in the high school building. New pupils were enrolled at the meeting held Monday evening.

England Has Famous Wall.

Hadrian's Wll in England from Solway Firth to the mouth of the Tyne, was erected in 121 A. D. by the Roman Emperor Hadrian and added to by Emperor Septimus Severus in 208. It was originally 70 miles long, but when finish it was more than 80 miles in length. Its remains are still extensive today. In the days of the Roman occupation of England it was garrisoned by 10,000 men.

Wood is little used in Greece during its present building boom, nearly all buildings being constructed of stone, cement or adobe.

Duchess Seeks Leader for Scottish Clan on This Side of Atlantic

The Duchess of Portland, wife of one of the wealthiest peers of England, is coming to America to seek the senior member of the Scottish clan of Dallas. The death of the Duchess' father, Thomas Dallas-York, leaves the leadership of the clan unclaimed, and she believes she can find the rightful heir to the title on this side of the water.

General Tire Co. Chief Hits British Tax Burden on Auto

Interest on both sides of the Atlantic has been attracted by a statement recently made by William O'Neil, president of The General Tire & Rubber company, Akron, in a recent public address in which he criticised the tax burden placed by the British government on the automobile, and analyzed the failure of the motor car industry to develop in England. "A grave economic mistake is being made," declares Mr. O'Neil.

In England it costs nearly $500 a year in taxes alone to own and operate a car of the Ford class, and from there on up. Such an imposition makes it impossible for automobiles to come into popular use. The car industry is practically at a standstill in England,—a country with 2,000,000 unemployed men. It is strange that the British government has never seemed to sense a connection between the two,—nor sensed a cure for her industrial illness.

If a similar tax burden were placed on the manufacture and use of automobiles in America today, the industry would practically stop. America should have immediately some 5,000,000 unemployed, and that number would increase to 20,000,000 in six months. England stands in her own light, in her attitude toward the automobile.

If the taxes on car owning and operating were abolished or lowered to a minimum and the purchase and use of cars were thus encouraged, there would be a startling decrease in unemployment at once. There would be more and larger car makers, with many more employees, more agents and salesmen; more garages and repairman; more handling of gasoline, tires and accessories, and thus the unemployed would be put at work. Wages would be created, every kind of business would be stimulated and government revenues from other sources would quickly increase to an amount much greater than the sum now derived from the various automobile taxes. As the situation now stands, the British throttle this great potential source of prospevity before it has a chance to function.

1925 World Almanac, Indispensable Annual, Is Better Than Ever

America's standard annual is now in its fortieth year. The World Almanac and Book of Facts for 1925, just published, has promptly fallen into its accustomed place as the one indispensable book of reference ready at your hand. Ask the question, here's the answer.

Compressed into its 900 pages is the history of the United States and of the whole world, in fact, for 1924. The index points the way to a million facts. The multitude of carefully revised tabulated statistics are up to date, as are all its well-tested familiar features.

Essential facts that every one must have before him whereby he may form his judgment on the big problems of 1924-1925, are here—from reparations and the Dawes plan to the balance sheet of the American farmer; from the air fleets of the great powers to the enforcement of the prohibition law, from the immigration law to the income tax. The aim of the editor is accuracy in collection of these facts; terseness in handling them, and accessibility in presenting them.

As a hand-book of politics and public affairs it is unequaled. The record of the presidential year is given for all time in the 48 pages of election returns by states, the popular and the electoral votes in the last nine campaigns, and, further, in the reports of the national conventions, with the three party platforms in full. As many pages are needed also for the records of the great sporting events of the year.

It is a mine of information for the busy man.

The World Almanac is published by The New York World. Price, 50 cents postpaid. Readers who appreciate the advantage of keeping the series on their book shelves will welcome the cloth bound copies published at 90 cents.

Lawmakers—lawbreakers.

Exciting Experience.

POMEROY.—Mr. and Mrs. Victor Waelchli and infant enroute here from Northwest, Pa., in an auto, were pinned under their car which left an icy road near here. They remained imprisoned for a considerable time in the bitter cold. The parents were quite badly hurt but the child was not harmed.

Forty-Niners Pass Bonanza.

Although any Forty-niner who made good in the gold rush to California in 1849 had no bone to pick with his fate, it is a comment that many of them and their brothers who were not so successful walked right over a rich bonanza in the southern part of Mexico, along the Isthmus of Janama over which many of them trekked. Along the river of the Winding Snake many Forty-niners walked on their way to the Pacific Coast, little knowing that later prospectors would find a rich field of oil beneath their feet.

Suburban railways in and about Cape Town, South Africa, are to be electrified.

facts about Child-birth

IT has been proven conclusively that much of the suffering, pain and dread experienced during expectancy, as well as at child-birth is entirely unnecessary.

An eminent physician, Dr. J. H. Holmes, expert in this science, first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend," which aids the muscles and tissues to expand more easily, during the constant readjustment, month after month, right up to the climax of child-birth.

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally. Three generations of expectant mothers have used it. "Pains disappeared in two days after using 'Mother's Friend,'" writes a user. "I owe my life to 'Mother's Friend,'" declared another. Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did, start today and experience the wonderful comfort it will give you.

Walker Fails In His Effort to Lift McTigue's Title

Runyon Says

Metoquah Wins Some Titles.
Is Now Champion of Two Americas.
The Old Globe Trotter Writes.
Hays Dixon Greatest Bantam.
McCoy Could Have Licked Firpo.

By DAMON RUNYON.

CHIEF METOQUAH writes.

Metoquah is a tall, skinny fellow from Hutchinson, Kansas who has been winning heavyweight titles in Central and South America.

Metoquah claims he is an American Indian. He is quite swarthy and has a Dixie accent. Mike O'Dowd, the former middleweight champion of the world, first brought him East, if memory serves.

Later Metoquah was in Jess Willard's training camp.

That was when Willard was attempting his famous "come-back." He "came back" far enough to whip Floyd Johnson, but fell before Luis Angel Firpo.

The writer saw Metoquah in Leiperville, Pa., on the baronial premises of Mr. Dougherty. "The Baron of Leiperville." At that time Metoquah was training with George Godfrey, poetically known as "The Black Shadow of Leiperville."

Leiperville is a place of much pugilistic romance and tradition. You should see it. Godfrey told the writer that Chief Metoquah had an excellent left hand, but he wasn't sure how the Chief could "take it."

Afterwards Chief Metoquah came to New York and knocked out a young man named Haines in Madison Square Garden with his excellent left hand.

Then the Chief went to Cuba and knocked out somebody there. He was with Jack Dempsey for a short time in Florida as a sparring partner. Next he returned to Cuba and was in turn knocked out by somebody in two rounds. Then he faded into the silences.

The Chief's letter is written from Cristobal, in the Canal Zone, in a neat hand. He says he knocked out Ben Johnson, heavyweight champion of Peru in twelve rounds.

This was a slight business error on the part of the Chief. There was no one else in Peru for him to fight. He had to go to Panama. There he beat one King Solomon for the championship of Central America in fifteen rounds.

Following this exploit, the Chief knocked out one Gunboat Smith in six rounds.

This Gunboat Smith must not be confused with the original Gunboat Smith, a real good heavyweight of some years back. The original Gunboat Smith now works for Tex Rickard at Madison Square Garden, and you may hear his voice in front of the ticket windows on the night of a fight yelling, "Get in line, there!"

The original Gunboat Smith has a very loud voice. He was a heavy hitter, knocking out opponents by slugging them back of the ear. He fought Dempsey a four-rounder when Dempsey was first rising to fame. He hit Dempsey back of the ear and Dempsey didn't know whether he was afoot or horseback for a couple of hours.

That is real hard hitting.

The Gunboat Smith who was knocked out by Chief Metoquah is a chap who has been fighting in Central and South America for some years.

He once fought Luis Angel Firpo. There is no record of his activities in the United States.

Metoquah says he is coming back to New York after another stop in Cuba. He says he went away to acquire more experience, a statement which would indicate that the Chief has some intelligence.

He is a good boxer, no doubt of that. The question remains; can he "take it?" That is most important.

You need not smile at Metoquah's titles, heavyweight champion of Peru

Welter Champion, Howcver, Is Given Popular Decision

Wins Clean Lead Over Heavier Opponent in Eight of the 12 Rounds; Mike Takes Three as he Fights Defensive Battle.

By Tom Thorp.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 8.—Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, gained a clean-cut decision over Mike McTigue, light heavyweight title holder, in a fast and furious 12-round bout at the Sussex armory last night.

Walker had a clean lead on his heavier opponent in eight of the 12 rounds. The fifth was even, while McTigue was given credit for the sixth, seventh and eighth. In all of the others Walker displayed superior fighting ability.

It could be no more than a popular decision, for the Jersey law permits no other. Walker could have added another title only by a knockout.

Walker gained the popular decision by carrying the fight to his adversary from the opening of the final gong. The weights were: Walker, 149½; McTigue, 160.

McTigue attempted to fight a defensive battle. His work was of the inferior sort. Time and again when Walker wanted to carry at a fast pace he was stopped by McTigue's holding on.

Walker scored the greater number of blows and most of these had strength behind them. It was only at rare intervals that McTigue came back. Because of his aggressive tactics Walker piled up points until nothing but a knockout could have won in the closing rounds for McTigue.

Carrying the fight to his adversary tired Walker.

He kept pummeling McTigue's head and body. Few of these blows, toward the close of the fight, carried any real steam behind them. However they were of sufficient importance to gain the popular decision for Walker. He was roundly cheered as he made his way out of the ring to his dressing room.

FREMONT GETS OPENING DATE

Short Ship to be Approved by Stewards Jan. 23.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—Stewards of the Ohio Short Ship Circuit were to return to Cleveland January 23 to iron out difficulties in schedule-making left after yesterday's meeting at which a tentative schedule of trotting and pacing events throughout the circuit was drawn up.

The season will open at Fremont May 25. Canton gets the week of June 8, Mansfield August 3 and either Marion or Akron the week of June 1. The weeks beginning June 15 and July 6 were assigned to Cranwood and July 16 to Brooklyn.

Changes in rules made by the stewards of the Grand Circuit were ratified.

A banquet designed to bring together 500 Ohio horsemen will be one of the features of the adjourned meeting Jan. 23.

Phillies Learn Art Of Getting to First

The Philadelphia Nationals led the National League last year in being hit by pitched balls. No great honor can be attached to the distinction but the fact, as revealed in statistics of the outfit for 1924, is interesting for one reason. That is because Art Fletcher, crafty leader of the Phils, is a past master himself at stopping pitched balls with his body, thereby earning free transportation to first base.

Fletcher led the league season after season in being the victim supposedly unwilling, of wild pitches.

The fact of the matter was however, that Fletcher had reduced the art of getting hit to a science.

He stood close to the plate when batting. Pitchers tried to scare him back by hooking them to the inside of the plate. This was what Fletcher wanted. He would apparently turn away to escape the ball but would fail to dodge it. The ball would hit his left arm, raised to protect his head, or glanced off his shoulder. Rarely was he severely hurt, so adept was he at the game. Can it be that he has taught his Philly regulars the art?

LIVELY TRADE SESSIONS LOOM

National League Clubs Said to Be Unusually Active.

By Les Cnklin.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Dame Rumor has it that there will be considerable trading between clubs of the National League before the training season begins.

With the exception of Pittsburgh and Chicago, the clubs in the older organization have done little to strengthen themselves. At the joint meeting of the two leagues here practically all the trading was done by American League managers.

The clubs which are most anxious to complete a deal of some sort are Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Boston. The magnates of the latter two clubs realize that they must get out of the second division or face financial disaster, while the good burghers of Porkville yearn for a return to the pennant-winning days.

The Phillies and the Braves, strangely enough, plan to get new players from the Reds. Cincinnati is said to be willing to part with Fanseca, Caveney and Bohne, all infielders.

Jack Hendricks is casting wistful eyes on "Stuffy" Mslnnis, Boston's veteran first baseman. Bancroft also might part with Cotton Tierney, the second baseman, and Mickey O'Neill, the lively backstop.

Bancroft and Fletcher both announce that they plan completely to reorganize their teams. Which of their players Hendricks would be willing to accept in trade, however, is not known. The Cincinnati manager would like to bring Jimmy Ring back into the Redland fold, but he is the one player whom Fletcher wants to keep.

The only solution for Philadelphia and Boston is to loosen up on the bankroll for new talent, a procedure extremely distasteful to both.

The Giants will, in all probability, present an unchanged line-up this season. McGraw still has the best team in the National League, and knows it.

Pacific Coast Star Has to Show Robbie

When Outfielder Cox of the Portland Pacific coast league club reports to Uncle Robbie, Brooklyn Dodger boss, next spring, the westerner will have to step some to convince Robbie that he has the goods. Through no fault of Cox's either. The outfielder comes to the Dodgers as the memory of two dismal failures purchased from the same coast league club, lingers with Robinson and Owner Ebbetts. They willingly paid $50,000 for Pitcher Yarrison and Infielder Johnny Jones last year, only to see both prove themselves spring bloomers. Both have been shifted back to the minors.

Cox, however, seems to be a more staple article. His work with Portland was more consistent than flashy. He joins the Dodgers at the right time. Tommy Griffith, diligent rightfielder, is feeling the effects of his years of service. Cox will be given every opportunity to prove that he can hold down the berth.

St. Stephens Passers Lose to Ford Motors

On the St Stephen's floor last night the Ford Motors defeated the St. Stephen's basketball tossers by the score of 41 to 28.

The St. Stephen's aggregation played good basketball but was outclassed by the superior playing of the Motors. No one starred individually for the Fords and all figured in the scoring.

Webb for the St. Stephen's five was the scoring ace of the game, while Mackey and Sayre also performed well for the St. Stephen's passers.

Lineup and summary:

Ford Motors		St. Stephens
Vail	F	Webb
McDevitt	F	Hancock
Canne	C	Mackey
Patton	G	Sayre
Bromby	G	Pennybaker

Field goals—Patton 5, Vail 4, McDevitt 3, Canne 4, Bromby 3, Webb 7, Mackey 2, Sayre 2.

Foul goals — Vail, McDevitt 2, Webb 3, Mackey 2.

Referee—Davies.

He has no intention of trading Bill Terry to Cincinnati unless he gets Donohue or Ed Roush in return.

In the American League there has been considerable activity in the trading mart, with the Yankees, the Senators and the Browns in the limelight. Stanley Harris, the "boy manager," set a precedent by acquiring old players instead of young ones to strengthen the champions. With Vean Gregg, Dutch Ruether and Stanley Coveleskie added to the payroll, the Washington club will look like an old men's home, yet the pitching effectiveness of the staff which they augment has other clubs a bit worried.

Can't Beat the Finns.

Clash With Warren School Quintet; Meet Bethany Freshmen Passers on Local Floor Saturday Night.

For the first time this season, East Liverpool high school cagers will leave the home court tomorrow night. They are scheduled to mix with the Warren scholastic quintet at Warren in the first of two contests between the two teams.

One other out of town engagement originally had been billed for the Blue and White, but this game, with New Castle, was called off by the Pennsylvanians.

The Warren clash will furnish a severe test. And on Saturday night there will be another when the Bethany Freshmen appear on the local court.

These two contests mark the beginning of hard work for Boone's boys. They will be at it constantly for the remainder of the season, or up until the tournament, playing one and sometimes two games a week. The games that might be classified as easy, if any, are few and far between.

What appears at the present time as the outstanding clash of the season is scheduled for February 13 with New Philadelphia at East Liverpool.

Lindstrom Learning Now What Fame Means

Freddy Lindstrom, young Giant infielding star, now realizes even more clearly than he did last fall, what fame means. Freddy knew it meant something when he heard the plaudits of 40,000 wild bugs ringing in his ears and then cashed a check for several thousand berries as his share of the world's series divvy. But he got a more striking illustration the other day when he read about some enterprising person out west forging his name to a worthless check.

As Freddy himself remarks, a year or so ago it would have been hard to find a bank teller who had ever heard of him.

M'EWAN COACH OF ARMY TEAM

Named to Direct Cadets for Another Season.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—Captain John E. McEwan has been named as head coach of the army football team for another season, it was learned today. He served in that capacity in 1923 and 1924, and was a line coach before that. McEwan was named all-American center by Walter Camp in 1916.

Fonseca and Caveney Doomed to Pass Out

Louis Fonseca and Jimmy Caveney, both youngsters in baseball, seem destined to pass out of the photo at an early date, the victims of Fate.

When the two joined the Cincinnati team a few years ago they were destined to take their places in the Red lineup and hold them for years.

Caveney was a wonderful fielder, fast on his feet, a good thrower and a heady player. Fonseca seemed a star in the making.

Then Caveney's legs failed to stand up under the pounding an infielder's legs receive day after day.

Fonseca found himself chased constantly by old man Joe Hoodoo. Louis would get his chance in the infield, go like great guns for a few days and then come a cropper by injuring himself.

All Star Team Needs Layden and Crowley

"Red" Grange opines that an All-American football team which doesn't include Jim Crowley and Elmer Layden of Notre Dame isn't complete. Which ought to settle the argument. Grange ought to have some ideas on the subject of good football players. He's the best in the game right now, if not the greatest of all time.

Walker Fails In His Effort to Lift McTigue's Title

Runyon Says

Metoquah Wins Some Titles.
Is Now Champion of Two Americas.
The Old Globe Trotter Writes.
Hays Dixon Greatest Bantam.
McCoy Could Have Licked Firpo.

By DAMON RUNYON.

CHIEF METOQUAH writes.

Metoquah is a tall, skinny fellow from Hutchinson, Kansas who has been winning heavyweight titles in Central and South America.

Metoquah claims he is an American Indian. He is quite swarthy and has a Dixie accent. Mike O'Dowd, the former middleweight champion of the world, first brought him East, if memory serves.

Later Metoquah was in Jess Willard's training camp.

That was when Willard was attempting his famous "come-back." He "came back" far enough to whip Floyd Johnson, but fell before Luis Angel Firpo.

The writer saw Metoquah in Leiperville, Pa., on the baronial premises of Mr. Dougherty. "The Baron of Leiperville." At that time Metoquah was training with George Godfrey, poetically known as "The Black Shadow of Leiperville."

Leiperville is a place of much pugilistic romance and tradition. You should see it. Godfrey told the writer that Chief Metoquah had an excellent left hand, but he wasn't sure how the Chief could "take it."

Afterwards Chief Metoquah came to New York and knocked out a young man named Haines in Madison Square Garden with his excellent left hand.

Then the Chief went to Cuba and knocked out somebody there. He was with Jack Dempsey for a short time in Florida as a sparring partner. Next he returned to Cuba and was in turn knocked out by somebody in two rounds. Then he faded into the silences.

The Chief's letter is written from Cristobal, in the Canal Zone, in a neat hand. He says he knocked out Ben Johnson, heavyweight champion of Peru in twelve rounds.

This was a slight business error on the part of the Chief. There was no one else in Peru for him to fight. He had to go to Panama. There he beat one King Solomon for the championship of Central America in fifteen rounds.

Following this exploit, the Chief knocked out one Gunboat Smith in six rounds.

This Gunboat Smith must not be confused with the original Gunboat Smith, a real good heavyweight of some years back. The original Gunboat Smith now works for Tex Rickard at Madison Square Garden, and you may hear his voice in front of the ticket windows on the night of a fight yelling, "Get in line, there!"

The original Gunboat Smith has a very loud voice. He was a heavy hitter, knocking out opponents by slugging them back of the ear. NURMI PLANS TO LIVE IN U. S.

Human Thoroughbred May Revive Interest in Track.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Paavo Nurmi, the greatest of human thoroughbreds, is planning to make his home in America. Like his good friends and compatriots, Hannes Kolehmainen and Willie Ritola, Nurmi finds this country much to his temperamental taste. If he does go back to Finland it will be for a short time. The western germ has taken a firm hold.

It wasn't until the great Olympic champion found himself at home on an indoor track that he began to consider the idea of setiling here. Now that he finds indoor racing to his liking his mind is half made up. A group of influential Finns is working on the other half.

His friends made no secret of the fact that Nurmi was a little nervous about running indoors when he first came over. It was a new experience for him. The king of the outdoors shied at the stuffy armories. For a while he even considered returning to Finland without running here at all.

Paavo was offered all sorts of opportunities and jobs, but he turned them all down. He elected to wait and see. He waited but a short time and saw that indoor running was not nearly so hard as he imagined. And then the cold snap came along, which made him feel at home all the more.

Nurmi's main occupation at present is to groom himself for the indoor season. When he isn't out on the track he sleeps. And when he isn't doing that he eats plenty of white bread and fish that isn't dry.

Nurmi has made remarkable progress in his indoor workouts. At first he experienced a little difficulty in breathing. But he has overcome that. On his present form he should have little trouble winning all his races here.

Whether he leaves this country or stays, Nurmi's visit will have a more far-reaching effect upon distance running in America than all the campaigns which have been launched in its behalf since the sport began to die an unnatural death.

Nurmi hopes to show athletic aspirants that distance running is quite as much an art as, and even more spectacular than, the much overplayed sprints. He expects to show them that distance running is not drudgery except when it is not well done. He will show them how to do it well.

America has not fared so well in long-distance events at the Olympic games because United States runners talked themselves into the belief that they couldn't compete with Finland. The reasons advanced were that the Finns, living in a colder climate and feeding on black bread and dried fish, are naturally trained for endurance.

That endurance is not a matter of geography or climate may be proved by America as soon as its athletes take up distance running in a serious way. The material is here. All the athletes need is a little more training and a little more perseverance.

NURMI BOOKED FOR MORE RACES

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—Paavo Nurmi, who set three world's records at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night, will run in Chicago, Boston, New York and Baltimore during ensuing weeks, it was learned today. His next appearance will be at the Garden next Thursday night in a three mile team race against the country's leading distance runners. Then he will go to Chicago to participate in the Illinois A. C. games.

His entry in the Millrose A. C. games in New York, the Boston A. A. tournament in Boston and the Johns Hopkins college meet in Baltimore is expected.

FIRPO AT LOSS AMONG ENGLISH

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, looking for a London match with Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, was up bright and early today searching for Spanish friends living in London. He was at considerable loss on his arrival yesterday when he missed connections with them and faced an English speaking metropolis with but a few words of ammunition.

Firpo intends to have a conference today with "Peggy" Bettinson, head of the National Sporting club, over the prospective Gibbons match.

Howard Shanks Ready To Start 13th Year

Howard Shanks, veteran utility player recently traded to the Yanks for Mike McNally, is waiting to start his thirteenth year in the big show. He has set an unusual record. For 12 years he has remained in fast company despite the lack of a good batting eye. Only once in his career has he hit .300 or over for the season. That was in 1921, when he socked the ball for a .302 average.

The rest of the time his average has been around two dollars and a half.

Shanks has played the outfield and all infield positions in his career. His value lies in his ability to step into ony one's shoes and play a dependable game afield while adding strength to the team through his keen baseball brain.

Because of a shortage of bristles in Russia and China, Germany's brush industry is facing stagnation.

LANDIS WILLING TO TELL PUBLIC ABOUT SCANDAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—Promise that he will make public testimony in the case which resulted in the banishment of Jimmy O'Connell and "Cozy" Dolan, of the Giants, from organized baseball is made in a letter received by New York baseball writers today from Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

The Commissioner promised, it was stated, that O'Connell's testimony will be made public within a few days. It has been withheld since last October, when Henry sand, of the Phillies, charged he had been offered a bribe "not to bear down" against the Giants, then in the thores of a hectic pennant struggle.

and Central America. We have pugilists claiming championships over much less territory than that.

The same mail brings a letter from another fistic tourist of more fame, of more scope than Chief Metoquah.

He is Jack Grace, the old Globe Trotter of Fistiana. He toured those regions just covered by Metoquah long before the Chief was born.

Jack Grace is a great character. He was once a boxer, also variously a promoter and manager of boxers. He is a restless soul, always on the go. The writer has encountered him in many different places, and Jack is usually just starting for somewhere else.

Wanderlust is in his blood. His feet are constantly itching for travel. Many men are that way. The old adage says "a rolling stone gathers no moss." Jack Grace has at least gathered experience, worldly wisdom. He has had his thrills. He has done the thing he wanted to do; therefore he is to be envied.

Grace writes from Chicago. The letter is dated Christmas Day.

He reflects on other Christmas Days in his fifty-some-odd years of life.

Sydney in 1902, where it was very hot. Johannesburg, South Africa, in 1903, where it was just comfortably warm. Buenos Aires in 1904—blistering weather. Calcutta in 1905, with the temperature about 70.

In Chicago as he wrote, he says, it was real old-fashioned Christmas weather—snowy and cold.

His real purpose in writing is to give his opinion of the greatest bantam of all time. The writer's recent article on this subject has produced a surprising amount of correspondence.

Heine Rafael, manager of Frankie Neil, the California bantam, who held the world's title, wrote a long letter holding that Neil could not be overlooked.

Jack Grace does not agree that Neil was a GREAT bantam. He says he saw Joe Bowker, the Englishman, box Neil at the National Snorting Club in London in 1905, that Bowker was far from being an Attell, a McGovern, or a Billy Plimmer, yet he easily beat the American.

All Neil had, Grace says, was a long left hook to the body.

Grace names as his selection of all-time greatest bantam, George Dixon, a wisp of a colored boy, who was known as "Little Chocolate."

"When Dixon beat Nunc Wallace and the late Cal McCarthy, he scaled only 116 pounds," says Grace.

"Another wonder was little Jimmy Barry, who never scaled over 112-13 pounds, and who took on such stars as Sammy Kelly and Billy Rotchford, giving them five and seven pounds. Barry is here in Chicago working at the City Hall."

(The original article on the great bantams named Barry with Coulon and Herman, the name of Kid Williams being later added by Charles Mathison, the veteran boxing expert.)

The writer fears Grace is getting old. He shows it in his reflections on the greatness of the old-time fighters. It is a sure sign.

He says the year 1924 failed to develop a legitimate opponent for Dempsey. He seems somewhat disgusted by Gene Tunney's failure to stop Jeff Smith in their fifteen-round battle at New Orleans.

'I can just picture Jeff Smith fighting Peter Maher, or Kid Carter, or my old pal, Kid McCoy," says Jack. "All of them were terrific punches. McCoy could always do 160 pounds in his prime.

"McCoy would have tamed Firpo, the Wild Bull, in a few rounds. He is too slow and too easy to hit. Tommy Gibbons is a great boxer and has everything but the real knockout wallop. I'm going to Hot Springs, Ark., to conduct a boxing school at the Fordyce Baths in January."

WOOSTER OPENS WITH B-W CAGERS

WOOSTER, Jan. 8.—Wooster college will open the 1925 collegiate schedule here Thursday evening with the fast Baldwin-Wallace team for opposition. Coach Boles has packed a stiff battle for the opener. Last season Baldwin-Wallace had one of the best teams in the conference and has a veteran team on the floor this season.

Wooster basketball fans are anxiously waiting for this game to serve as a sort of a barometer of the strength of the Wooster court five for this season. Last year Wooster's forwards were unable to locate the basket and the Wooster crew had a bad season. New material this season has given Wooster some men who were crack shots with the fresh five last year.

Love, Gee, Dodez and Langell are playing the forward positions. Pfeiffer, Wooster's best scorer last season, is to get back into the game soon. He has been out of the pre-season game due to a football injury.

Anderson and Starn are playing the center place and working at guards. Captain Hurst, Manly, Boxwell and McGlashan are the other defense men.

Iron Man Stuff Fails To Keep Bell Going

Iron-man propensities aren't enough to hold a pitcher in the big show. Herman Bell, young righthander with the Cardinals last year can tell you that.

Bell was sent in against the Boston Braves in the first game of a doubleheader last July. He won the first game and asked—to be allowed to pitch the second. His request was granted and he won it. Now he has been released under option to the Milwaukee club of the American association. He served mostly as a relief hurler for the Cards. He pitched five complete games and was credited with a total of three victories.

Last Night's Fights

Tremaine is Headed For Crack at Martin

Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantamweight, is destined to get an early crack at Eddie Martin, new bantamweight champion, according to reports. If Tremaine is at his best when the pair meet Martin will be lucky to escape a knockout. But Tremaine probably will be off form. This is typical of Carl. Jimmy Dunn, astute manager of Tremaine, has built the lad up several times to a position where the title was within his grasp, only to have Carl fight like an amateur on the big night. A crushing defeat would send his stock flopping to the bottom again.

He'd Be Useful.

Charley Rigoulat, Olympic light heavyweight lifting a champion, recently set a new world's record by lifting with two hands a bar weighing 336.2. pounds.

NURMI PLANS TO LIVE IN U. S.

Human Thoroughbred May Revive Interest in Track.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Paavo Nurmi, the greatest of human thoroughbreds, is planning to make his home in America. Like his good friends and compatriots, Hannes Kolehmainen and Willie Ritola, Nurmi finds this country much to his temperamental taste. If he does go back to Finland it will be for a short time. The western germ has taken a firm hold.

It wasn't until the great Olympic champion found himself at home on an indoor track that he began to consider the idea of settling here. Now that he finds indoor racing to his liking his mind is half made up. A group of influential Finns is working on the other half.

His friends made no secret of the fact that Nurmi was a little nervous about running indoors when he first came over. It was a new experience for him. The king of the outdoors shied at the stuffy armories. For a while he even considered returning to Finland without running here at all.

Paavo was offered all sorts of opportunities and jobs, but he turned them all down. He elected to wait and see. He waited but a short time and saw that indoor running was not nearly so hard as he imagined. And then the cold snap came along, which made him feel at home all the more.

Nurmi's main occupation at present is to groom himself for the indoor season. When he isn't out on the track he sleeps. And when he isn't doing that he eats plenty of white bread and fish that isn't dry.

Nurmi has made remarkable progress in his indoor workouts. At first he experienced a little difficulty in breathing. But he has overcome that. On his present form he should have little trouble winning all his races here.

Whether he leaves this country or stays, Nurmi's visit will have a more far-reaching effect upon distance running in America than all the campaigns which have been launched in its behalf since the sport began to die an unnatural death.

Nurmi hopes to show athletic aspirants that distance running is quite as much an art as, and even more spectacular than, the much overplayed sprints. He expects to show them that distance running is not drudgery except when it is not well done. He will show them how to do it well.

America has not fared so well in long-distance events at the Olympic games because United States runners talked themselves into the belief that they couldn't compete with Finland. The reasons advanced were that the Finns, living in a colder climate and feeding on black bread and dried fish, are naturally trained for endurance.

That endurance is not a matter of geography or climate may be proved by America as soon as its athletes take up distance running in a serious way. The material is here. All the athletes need is a little more training and a little more perseverance.

NURMI BOOKED FOR MORE RACES

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—Paavo Nurmi, who set three world's records at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night, will run in Chicago, Boston, New York and Baltimore during ensuing weeks, it was learned today. His next appearance will be at the Garden next Thursday night in a three mile team race against the country's leading distance runners. Then he will go to Chicago to participate in the Illinois A. C. games.

His entry in the Millrose A. C. games in New York, the Boston A. A. tournament in Boston and the Johns Hopkins college meet in Baltimore is expected.

FIRPO AT LOSS AMONG ENGLISH

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, looking for a London match with Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, was up bright and early today searching for Spanish friends living in London. He was at considerable loss on his arrival yesterday when he missed connections with them and faced an English speaking metropolis with but a few words of ammunition.

Firpo intends to have a conference today with "Peggy" Bettinson, head of the National Sporting club, over the prospective Gibbons match.

Howard Shanks Ready To Start 13th Year

Howard Shanks, veteran utility player recently traded to the Yanks for Mike McNally, is waiting to start his thirteenth year in the big show. He has set an unusual record. For 12 years he has remained in fast company despite the lack of a good batting eye. Only once in his career has he hit .300 or over for the season. That was in 1921, when he socked the ball for a .302 average.

The rest of the time his average has been around two dollars and a half.

Shanks has played the outfield and all infield positions in his career. His value lies in his ability to step into ony one's shoes and play a dependable game afield while adding strength to the team through his keen baseball brain.

Because of a shortage of bristles in Russia and China, Germany's brush industry is facing stagnation.

LANDIS WILLING TO TELL PUBLIC ABOUT SCANDAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—Promise that he will make public testimony in the case which resulted in the banishment of Jimmy O'Connell and "Cozy" Dolan, of the Giants, from organized baseball is made in a letter received by New York baseball writers today from Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

The Commissioner promised, it was stated, that O'Connell's testimony will be made public within a few days. It has been withheld since last October, when Henry sand, of the Phillies, charged he had been offered a bribe "not to bear down" against the Giants, then in the thores of a hectic pennant struggle.

RUNYON SAYS

and Central America. We have pugilists claiming championships over much less territory than that.

The same mail brings a letter from another fistic tourist of more fame, of more scope than Chief Metoquah.

He is Jack Grace, the old Globe Trotter of Fistiana. He toured those regions just covered by Metoquah long before the Chief was born.

Jack Grace is a great character. He was once a boxer, also variously a promoter and manager of boxers. He is a restless soul, always on the go. The writer has encountered him in many different places, and Jack is usually just starting for somewhere else.

Wanderlust is in his blood. His feet are constantly itching for travel. Many men are that way. The old adage says "a rolling stone gathers no moss." Jack Grace has at least gathered experience, worldly wisdom. He has had his thrills. He has done the thing he wanted to do; therefore he is to be envied.

Grace writes from Chicago. The letter is dated Christmas Day.

He reflects on other Christmas Days in his fifty-some-odd years of life.

Sydney in 1902, where it was very hot. Johannesburg, South Africa, in 1903, where it was just comfortably warm. Buenos Aires in 1904—blistering weather. Calcutta in 1905, with the temperature about 70.

In Chicago as he wrote, he says, it was real old-fashioned Christmas weather—snowy and cold.

His real purpose in writing is to give his opinion of the greatest bantam of all time. The writer's recent article on this subject has produced a surprising amount of correspondence.

Heine Rafael, manager of Frankie Neil, the California bantam, who held the world's title, wrote a long letter holding that Neil could not be overlooked.

Jack Grace does not agree that Neil was a GREAT bantam. He says he saw Joe Bowker, the Englishman, box Neil at the National Sporting Club in London in 1905, that Bowker was far from being an Attell, a McGovern, or a Billy Plimmer, yet he easily beat the American.

All Neil had, Grace says, was a long left hook to the body.

Grace names as his selection of all-time greatest bantam, George Dixon, a wisp of a colored boy, who was known as "Little Chocolate."

"When Dixon beat Nunc Wallace and the late Cal McCarthy, he scaled only 116 pounds," says Grace.

"Another wonder was little Jimmy Barry, who never scaled over 112-13 pounds, and who took on such stars as Sammy Kelly and Billy Rotchford, giving them five and seven pounds. Barry is here in Chicago working at the City Hall."

(The original article on the great bantams named Barry with Coulon and Herman, the name of Kid Williams being later added by Charles Mathison, the veteran boxing expert.)

The writer fears Grace is getting old. He shows it in his reflections on the greatness of the old-time fighters. It is a sure sign.

He says the year 1924 failed to develop a legitimate opponent for Dempsey. He seems somewhat disgusted by Gene Tunney's failure to stop Jeff Smith in their fifteen-round battle at New Orleans.

'I can just picture Jeff Smith fighting Peter Maher, or Kid Carter, or my old pal, Kid McCoy," says Jack. "All of them were terrific punches. McCoy could always do 160 pounds in his prime. "McCoy would have tamed Firpo, the Wild Bull, in a few rounds. He is too slow and too easy to hit. Tommy Gibbons is a great boxer and has everything but the real knockout wallop. I'm going to Hot Springs, Ark., to conduct a boxing school at the Fordyce Baths in January."

WOOSTER OPENS WITH B-W CAGERS

WOOSTER, Jan. 8.—Wooster college will open the 1925 collegiate schedule here Thursday evening with the fast Baldwin-Wallace team for opposition. Coach Boles has packed a stiff battle for the opener. Last season Baldwin-Wallace had one of the best teams in the conference and has a veteran team on the floor this season.

Wooster basketball fans are anxiously waiting for this game to serve as a sort of a barometer of the strength of the Wooster court five for this season. Last year Wooster's forwards were unable to locate the basket and the Wooster crew had a bad season. New material this season has given Wooster some men who were crack shots with the fresh five last year.

Love, Gee, Dodez and Langell are playing the forward positions. Pfeiffer, Wooster's best scorer last season, is to get back into the game soon. He has been out of the pre-season game due to a football injury.

Anderson and Starn are playing the center place and working at guards. Captain Hurst, Manly, Boxwell and McGlashan are the other defense men.

Iron Man Stuff Fails To Keep Bell Going

Iron-man propensities aren't enough to hold a pitcher in the big show. Herman Bell, young righthander with the Cardinals last year can tell you that.

Bell was sent in against the Boston Braves in the first game of a double-header last July. He won the first game and asked—to be allowed to pitch the second. His request was granted and he won it. Now he has been released under option to the Milwaukee club of the American association. He served mostly as a relief hurler for the Cards. He pitched five complete games and was credited with a total of three victories.

Last Night's Fights

Tremaine is Headed For Crack at Martin

Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantamweight, is destined to get an early crack at Eddie Martin, new bantamweight champion, according to reports. If Tremaine is at his best when the pair meet Martin will be lucky to escape a knockout. But Tremaine probably will be off form. This is typical of Carl. Jimmy Dunn, astute manager of Tremaine, has built the lad up several times to a position where the title was within his grasp, only to have Carl fight like an amateur on the big night. A crushing defeat would send his stock flopping to the bottom again.

He'd Be Useful.

REV. W. C. STOKES TO GIVE SERMON

Rev. W. C. Stokes, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, will preach this evening at the week of prayer services to be held in Free Methodist church. Rev. J. C. Campbell, pastor of the Second United Presgyterian church, spoke last evening in Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. These meetings are being largely attended.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASSES TO MEET

Members of class No. 12 of the Second Presbyterian church will meet this evening in the church parlors. Orchestra practice will also be held tonight.

Class No. 14 will hold an indoor picnic, business meeting and election of officers tomorrow evening in the church.

Prayer Meeting Held.

Prayer meeting services were held last evening in the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ in preparation for the revival campaign which will open in the church Sunday. Rev. Kaye of New Castle, Pa., will deliver the sermons.

HEADACHE

Don't Suffer! Get a 10c package of Dr. James Headache Powders

Any kind of a headache is relieved in two minutes. Distress and pain vanish, your head clears and you are again ready for work or play.

Druggists sell millions of "Dr. James Headache Powders" because they are safe.

"The Wages of Sin—"

The hair of Bernard Grant, condemned Chicago youth, is now almost snow white. He is only 19, but he is doomed to be hanged this month, despite the fact that more than 5,000 letters and messages of protest have been written to the governor of Illinois. With another youth, he participated in a robbery in which a policeman was killed.

Many at Entertainment.

Homer Laughlin China company employes from this section were largely represented at the entertainment given last evening in the High school auditorium by children of the Jefferson county home at Yellow Creek. It was under the auspices of the Industrial Welfare department of the company.

PASTOR SUBMITS REPORT FOR YEAR

Rev. A. J. Travis, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ, has submitted the following report for his third year as pastor to T. M. Fullerton, church clerk:

Additions 86, statement 2, letter 2, primary 92, total additions 92; funerals 25, lectures 35, sermons 165, amount raised for current expenses $3,210, amount for benevolences $120.80.

Texas Snake Gets Credit.

Dr. W. H. Ballou, speaking before the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., recently declared that a lizard that roamed thru Texas more than 25,000,000 years ago was the father of all snakes. It took more than 10,000,000 years for the lizard to become a snake, he said. A Patagonian serpent that flourished 8,000,000 years ago was the conclusion of this particular development in Dr. Ballou's opinion.

Rubber paving has proved a failure in parts of London and is being replaced by wood blocks.

Was Weak and Miserable. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Auger's Strength

Lowell, Massachusetts. — "I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books that you send around and I felt very good after I had taken a couple of bottles of it. I had been in the Hospital and felt pretty well at first but I went down to nothing. I was weak and had to lie in bed almost all day. I had dizzy and faint spells, pains in my back and lower parts and was so nervous I could not bear my children around. I hope the Vegetable Compound helps other women as it did me. I do all my own work now and feel so well. I have told my friends about it and my sister and my aunt."—Mrs. OLIVE AUGER, 19 Howard Street Lowell, Massachusetts.

Over 200,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 out of every 100 of the replies say, "Yes" and because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women it should help you.

Reindeer More Than Pay for Alaska Buy; Big Herds Scattered

WASHINGTON. — Domesticated reindeer herds in Alaska are now worth $1,550,000 more than the United States paid to Russia in 1867 for the entire territory, the Bureau of Education announced in its annual report to the Secretary of the Interior.

Natives own the majority of the reindeer, which supply them with food, clothing and a livelihood. The industry has developed since 1892, when the bureau began to import the animals from Siberia.

Plans are under way now, the bureau report said, to establish cooperative marketing, so that reindeer products from the herds which are scattered throughout Alaska may be transported to market. The general consumption of reindeer meat throughout this country depends only on adequate transportation facilities, it was said.
